ITZEL REVEALS STATEMENT BY HERMAN BRADY

SOUGHT HER ADDRESS LATER, HE DECLARES

'If Roy Will Tell Story, He Will Set Me Free,' Herman Is Quoted.

BOMB LEFT AT DAWN, DETECTIVE BELIEVES

The signed statement of Herman Brady, 22, which resulted in the arrest of himself and his brother, Leroy Brady, 26, was revealed in part last night by the Maryland authorities investigating the Seat Pleasant triple bomb murder.

The statement, according to Lieut. Joseph Itzel, the Baltimore detective in charge of the investigation, contained three salient admissions, as follows:

Herman told Leroy about his illicit love affair with and subsequent marriage to Naomi Hall, 18, two or three weeks before she received a bomb, camouflaged as a Christmas box, that took her life and fatally injured a younger brother and sister.

Asked Where She Lived.

Not long after Herman had told Leroy about the marriage, Leroy asked him where his bride lived.

On the Sunday morning that the bomb was left on the doorstep of Mrs. John Buckley across the street from the Hall home, Leroy took Herman on a duck hunting trip into southern Maryland.

Lieut. Itzel quoted Herman as making the following statement Sunday night:

"Bring Roy in and if Roy will tell the story he can put me on the street."

Pair Grilled Again.

The Baltimore sleuth, who questioned the two brothers for more than four hours Sunday, went back at them again yesterday, but he did not get the "break" which he has been predicting will come. The questioning will be resumed again today.

"We have enough facts now to lead us to other facts," Lieut. Itzel said, "and we believe these will 'make' the case."

Lieut. Itzel decided to reveal in part the signed statement of Herman Brady in order that the public might know on what grounds he and his brother were being held.

Had Spoken Frankly.

Lieut. Itzel said he was convinced that the "gift" bomb was placed on the doorstep of the Buckley home around daybreak Sunday a week ago.

About the same time, he said, Leroy journeyed from Washington to Mitchellville, Md., where he was to pick up Herman for the duck hunt.

He quoted Herman as saying that he previously had talked frankly to Leroy about his affair with Naomi Hall. He told Leroy, the detective said, that Naomi was an expectant mother, and also told him how he eloped with her in November and was married in Fairfax, Va.

It was in a subsequent conversation, Itzel said, that Leroy asked Herman where his bride lived in Seat Pleasant. Although married, the two had never set up housekeeping.

'Second House on Road.

This could mean, Itzel pointed out, either the Hall house or the Buckey house, depending on which side of the street one looked. The Hall house was the second house on the south side, the Buckley house on the north side.

Whoever placed the bomb on the Buckley stoop thought he was leaving it at the Hall home, Lieut. Itzel said.

Box Delayed in Delivery.

Mrs. Buckley found the Christmas box containing the bomb when she went out to get her newspaper that Sunday morning. However, she did not send it to the Hall house until New Year's Day when she happened to see Leslie Hall, 18, passing by and called him in.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Nora Hall, 45, the mother, opened the box in the kitchen, and the terrific explosion followed. Naomi was so badly hurt that she died within an hour.

FORCES CHARGES

BRIBERY IS CHARGED TO REPRESENTATIVE

HE BLAMES POLITICS

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Assistant State's Attorney George S. Lavin said today that true bills had been voted by the county grand jury against Representative Stanley H. Kunz, of the Eighth Illinois District, and his son, Stanley, jr., charging them with conspiracy to commit bribery, confidence game and obtain money under false pretenses.

Representative Kunz had been subpenaed to tell the grand jury anything he might know of alleged payments made to city and other officials for help in getting jobs for civil service applicants. The representative, however, declined to respond to the subpena, standing on his rights as a representative and left last night for Washington. Before leaving, he told the Associated Press that $400 he was reported to have received from Roman Trochowski was a loan.

The son and Trochowski are reported to have testified before the grand jury before the true bills were voted. Bonds of $10,000 each are understood to have been set for Kunz and his son. Trochowski is reported to have told the grand jury that he paid the money to Kunz for the latter's aid in getting him a policeman's job that did not materialize.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Kunz, of Illinois, yesterday attributed charges, upon which he and his son were indicted by a Cook County grand jury, to politics.

Kunz said that he did not understand the charges. He said he had been served with a subpena in Chicago on Saturday, but had to leave at once to be in Washington on time for reopening of the House.

"A man can prefer charges of any kind against any man at any time," the representative said. "You know I am in politics and have many enemies."

Any further comment that he would have, he said, would have to await his return to Chicago or until such a time as he learned the full nature of the charges.

Ladder Used to Rescue Girl in Blazing Home

Occupants of an apartment building at 3022 Wisconsin avenue northwest were given a scare early yesterday morning when a blaze, believed to have originated from a pile of paper in the basement, filled the place with smoke and sent tenants scurrying to safety of the street.

Fourteen-year-old Shirley McGowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McGowan, was carried down a ladder from her smoke-filled apartment. Damage was reported slight.

Hoover and Conferees Meet at Breakfast Today in Final Discussion.

(Associated Press.)

The American delegation will enter the imminent conference on naval limitation in London prepared to discuss further restriction of aircraft carrier building, should that important matter be brought to the fore.

Final consideration of the fundamental issues at the meeting the world is awaiting has raised the aircraft carrier question.

With competion by the American delegation of detailed preparations for participation by the United States, the attention of official circles here turned to the basic objects of the parley, bringing forward not only the limitation of fighting sea forces but also the halting of competitive building of all categories of ships.

Aircraft Carriers Considered.

Among the classifications which offer possibilities of limitation is the aircraft carrier, which transports with the fleets the combatant and observation planes. That type of vessel was limited under the Washington treaty of 1922.

There have been no indications during the preliminary discussions among the powers, that the United States has changed its policy regarding the impractibility of limiting naval aircraft.

There have been indications, however, that the seven years since the signing of the Washington agreement have brought a change in the theory of American naval experts on the uses of the aircraft carrier.

Kellogg Calls on Stimson.

Secretary Stimson last night received from his predecessor, former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, a handclasp of farewell and a hearty expression of hope by Mr. Kellogg for the success of the parley. The former secretary visited Mr. Stimson at the latter's home, Woodley, where the Secretary spent yesterday resting preparatory to sailing for Europe Thursday on the United States liner George Washington.

The former Secretary, together with Foreign Minister Briand of France, shaped the general pact for the renunciation of war, which is expected by President Hoover to be one of the important considerations in reaching an agreement in London.

He also paid respects to the President yesterday at the White House.

CHIEF JUSTICE PLANS TO TAKE HOSPITAL REST

HE IS IN WEAKENED PHYSICAL CONDITION

AILMENT EXPECTED TO YIELD QUICKLY

Justice Taft Later Will Go to Asheville Where He Will Rest.

(Associated Press.)

Chief Justice Taft has decided to direct all his efforts toward the recuperation of his strength during the next few weeks. He is in a weakened physical condition, due to a recurrence of the bladder trouble for which he was treated several years ago.

With much protest, he finally yielded to the importunities of his family, his physician and his associates of the Supreme Court, and will go into Garfield Hospital here for treatment. It is expected that within a week he will be sufficiently relieved to go to Asheville, N. C., where he will rest.

Last June, in a weakened condition caused by the high tension under which he had been pushing the work of the Supreme Court, he went to Cincinnati to visit his brother, Charles P. Taft, who died last week. He overtaxed his strength on the trip, and was forced to undergo hospital treatment before starting for Murray Bay in Canada for the summer.

Wheeled to Train in Chair.

He was wheeled to his train in a chair after taking hospital treatment and was hopeful that a summer's rest would restore his strength. In that, however, he was disappointed.

He suffered a slight accident while at Murray Bay which aggravated an already weakening nervous condition. He came to Washington to attend the conference of circuit judges early in October to accelerate the clearing up of business in Federal courts throughout the country. Then he took up his own court work. Although Mr. Taft gradually grew weaker he refused to take a rest, and attended every session of the court until it went into a recess early in December.

Last week he insisted on attending his brother's funeral in Cincinnati, against the advice of his physician and the urgent requests of his associates on the court. His strength was further taxed because of the close bond that had existed between them.

When the Chief Justice returned to Washington Saturday, he went directly from the station to the conference room of the court and for several hours worked on court cases. Sunday he reluctantly yielded to the advice to take hospital treatment and rest. He did not go to the regular court session yesterday, and will remain free from court work in the hope that by doing so he will more quickly recover his strength.

Confident of Early Recovery.

The family of Mr. Taft, his physician, and his associates on the court expressed confident belief that, with the hospital treatment and rest, he would soon be able to resume his official duties.

Those most intimately familiar with his exact condition said they believed the trouble would respond quickly to treatment, as it did before. They predicted that, after he obtains relief, he will be able to build up his nervous system, and return once more to the court.

One of his closest associates on the court expressed the opinion that the Chief Justice would close the present term of the court in June with as large a volume of business to his credit as he had last year.

HAMILTON ROBBERY SUSPECT CAPTURED

$1,600 FOUND ON PERSON

Safe in Baltimore while police were combing the Catoctin Mountains near Frederick, Md., for him as the lone unmasked robber who last Friday held up the Farmers & Merchants National Bank at Hamilton, Va., for a loot of $4,260, William Francis Lindsay, youthful Loudoun County farmer, ventured near Frederick early yesterday afternoon and was captured in a short but spirited automobile chase after recognition by a man who had attended his wedding.

Lindsay, according to Deputy Sheriff Edward Stitely, of Frederick County, who made the arrest, readily confessed, joked about his daring holdup, his exciting escape by automobile into Maryland, and his abandonment of the machine, along with $2,300 of the stolen money and his young wife when police neared.

Lindsay and $1,600 said to have been found on him were turned over late yesterday afternoon to Sheriff E. S. Adrian and deputies of Loudoun County.

Hiring a taxicab in Baltimore, Lindsay proceeded to Woodsboro, a small town near Frederick, to arrive there about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He dashed into a store there owned by Magistrate Harry Dorcus and in using the phone asked the operator for Walkersville, the home of his 18-year-old wife, daughter of Thomas Cramer, prominent Maryland farmer and who had been held for questioning and then released after she had been found in the car Lindsay abandoned.

His voice immediately was recognized by a man lounging in the store, James Reddick, a close friend of Mrs. Lindsay, who had attended her wedding. He was in the act of accosting Lindsay when the latter turned and fled into the taxicab, which speeded north toward Midway, 3 miles away.

Deputy Sheriff Stitely and Mr. Dorcus, on reaching the store a few minutes later, gave chase in the latter's automobile and forced the fleeing machine to a stop in Midway, where Lindsay was taken in custody.

Lindsay was quoted as telling police in Frederick that he was "very fond" of his wife and that he "just wanted to phone her and find out how she was getting along."

Lindsay, nattily attired in a new overcoat, was unarmed when arrested. The pistol with which he was said to have held up Theodore Reed, cashier of the bank at Hamilton, had been found, in his abandoned machine when police seized it at Yellow Springs, about 8 miles from Frederick, after Lindsay escaped into the mountains late the same afternoon.

Seizure of $2,300 in the car and $1,660 on Lindsay upon his arrest leaves approximately $360 missing from the loot said to have been taken.

At the time of his capture, Virginia and Maryland authorities had virtually abandoned hope for his arrest.

Naval Delegation Ship Has Miniature Brewery

New York, Jan. 6.—Passengers on the United States liner George Washington, which arrived today from Hamburg, and on which the naval delegation will sail, revealed that the ship had been outfitted with a miniature brewery, a small machine capable of turning out a potable and potent brew in about 24 hours. When the vessel left Hamburg, they went on, it had 20 barrels of beer aboard, but this was consumed on New Year's Eve. Then Hans and his brew machine stepped into the picture and a good time was had by all.

Officers of the ship declined to say whether the machine would be used to relieve the thirst of passengers on the trip from the United States. United States Line ships have been serving non-Volstead beverages on trips from Europe for some time, but so far have not served them on ships from the United States.

SENATE'S REGULARS TROUNCE COALITION

SPLIT IN RANKS IS SEEN

The Democratic-insurgent coalition suffered a smashing defeat in the senate tariff fight yesterday, and to add to its humiliation, the reverse came on an item on which Senator Grundy (Republican), Pennsylvania, often denounced by the coalition for his tariff activities, had declined to vote occause of his personal financial interests.

Senator Grundy, who before he became a senator was frequently criticized as "Old Joe, the King of the Tariff Lobby," is now in the position of having set a new standard of senatorial ethics for his erstwhile critics. Although many of the wealthy members of the Senate have heavy financial interests in commodities affected by the tariff, Senator Grundy is the first to refrain from voting during the consideration of the present bill.

Following the coalition's reverse, there were indications of dissension in the ranks, Senators Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, two prominent coalitionists, serving notice that unless something is done about the matter they will vote against the bill. Such action represents a drastic change in the coalition's attitude, the announced plans heretofore having been to write a bill cutting down the higher industrial rates in line with the coalition's desire to equalize agriculture and other industries.

The vote came on a finance committee amendment proposing to increase the ad valorem duty on high-grade wool yarns from 40 per cent to 45 per cent. On the roll call 4 erstwhile insurgent coalitionists broke away and voted with 27 other Republicans and 4 Democrats in favor of the committee proposal; 8 Republicans and 21 Democrats voted against it.

When Grundy's name was called, he announced:

"I am interested in the industry which is sheltered under this paragraph. Therefore I would like to

VERDICT URGES BOTH RESUME OLD POSITIONS

INVESTIGATION FOUND THOROUGH, SEARCHING

OFFICER, ON STAND, DEFENDS HIS ACTS

Kelly Asserts He Would Conduct Quiz Again in Same Manner.

Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly were acquitted with honor last night by the extraordinary Trial Board, which heard the July grand jury's charges against them that they bungled the police investigation of the death of Mrs. Virginia McPherson.

The Trial Board declared that Lieut. Kelly, who had charge of the investigation under the general supervision of Inspector Shelby, "made a most thorough and searching investigation; and, in the opinion of the board, this officer should be commended for the efficient manner in which he handled the McPherson case."

The Trial Board also recommended that Inspector Shelby be "restored to his full duty as assistant superintendent of police in charge of the Detective Bureau," and that Lieut. Kelly be "restored to his full duty as chief of the homicide squad, the Detective Bureau."

To all specifications and charges against both officers the Trial Board returned a verdict of "not guilty."

The special Trial Board designated under Commissioners' order of December 5, 1929, to consider the charges against Assistant Superintendent William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, Metropolitan Police Department, submits herewith its findings and recommendations.

Pleas.

Findings.

Of all specifications and charges: "Not guilty."

Recommendation.

It is recommended that Assistant Superintendent William S. Shelby be restored to his full duty as Assistant Superintendent of Police in charge of the Detective Bureau, Metropolitan Police Department.

Remarks.

As to specification 3, while the Trial Board finds that the statement made in this specification has been substantiated, it is of the opinion that such procedure is not customary or necessary. The failure "to provide means of identifying every movable article in the McPherson apartment as to name, location and its relation to other objects therein" does not, in the opinion of the board, constitute an offense.

As to that portion of specification 8, which states that Assistant Superintendent William S. Shelby "did fail to require written statements of all witnesses," the evidence in the case shows that written statements have never been required of all witnesses in such cases and consequently, in the opinion of the board, this failure does not constitute an offense.

As to specifications 6 and 7 (dealing with the release of McPherson), the accused is charged with the failure to perform duties which the evidence shows were not incumbent upon him

Taylor Case Key Witness Names Actress as Slayer

Former Folsom Prison Convict Repeats Old Story of Film Murder, Laying Director's Death to Love-and-Drug Entanglement.

San Francisco, Jan. 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Said to be the key witness in the 8-year-old mystery of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, Hollywood motion picture director, Otis Hefner, a former convict, was found in San Francisco today.

He admitted it was he who in 1926 had made a statement to former Gov. Friend F. Richardson naming the supposed murderer of Taylor, and said he was willing to repeat this statement to District Attorney Burton Fitts, of Los Angeles. Reports from that city late today indicated Fitts will hear the former convict's story.

In a statement to newspapermen, Hefner frankly told his version of the crime and named a prominent motion picture actress as the person who perpetrated it.

Hefner declared that narcotics and tangled love affair were jointly responsible. He charged Taylor had been operating in narcotics among the film players and that it had become common knowledge that the slain director had given evidence against narcotic peddlers to Federal authorities.

The former Folsom prisoner's story exonerates Edward Sands, Taylor's chauffeur, but names Sands as present with Hefner at the scene and near the time of the murder. He and Sands, the former convict declared, saw the killer dash from Taylor's home and escape in a limousine.

Man Ends Life by Plunging 100 Feet From Hotel Roof

Mutilation of Body After Eight-Story Leap Delays Identification of Retired Army Sergeant, Thought Despondent Over Stock Losses.

Levin Connor, about 60 years old, was killed instantly late yesterday when he evidently leaped from the roof of the new Bellevue Hotel at 21 E street northwest, where he lived.

After an investigation, police were of the opinion that the man, said to have been despondent over stock market losses, climbed on to the ledge and dived to his death. He fell about 100 feet on to two thick oak boards lying across the excavation made for an adjoining hotel.

In substantiating their belief that the man had taken his own life, police pointed out footprints on the concrete ledging and a print on the ventilation pipe which indicated he had stepped on that pipe in getting on the ledging.

No one saw the man make the leap, but several guests of the hotel heard the impact when the body struck the sturdy boards.

The Casualty Hospital ambulance was called, and Dr. Louis Jimal pronounced the man dead. Because of the mutilated condition of the body, the man was not positively identified for some time. At first it was believed he was one of the engineers at the hotel, but after viewing the body at the District Morgue, J. Frank O'Brien, manager of the hotel, became convinced the man was Connor and under the existing conditions, and consequently, in the opinion of the board, failure to perform these acts does not constitute an offense.

As to specification 9, dealing with Shelby's grand jury testimony, the Trial Board finds that the statement attributed to the accused is substantially correct; however, in the opinion of the board, this statement was responsive to a query on the part of one of the members of the grand jury and was provoked by the conduct of the witnesses referred to in this specification, and the statement is believed to have been more or less justified. Despite this feeling on the part of the board, it is felt that Assistant Superintendent Shelby's conduct in this act is subject to criticism.

The specific accusation was that Shelby had urged indictment of Allen and Mrs. Heavrin for perjury.

As to specification 11, the securing of a written statement from Robert A. McPherson, jr., was not believed necessary in view of the fact that written statements are obtained only when suspects are making a confession of guilt and no such admission having been made by said McPherson, this failure to secure such a written statement does not, in the opinion of the board, constitute an offense.

Pleas.

Findings.

Recommendations.

It is recommended that Lieut. Edward J. Kelly be restored to his full duty as Chief of the Homicide Squad, Detective Bureau, Metropolitan Police Department.

Remarks.

As to specification 1, the evidence adduced in this trial shows conclusively that Lieut. Kelly made a most thorough and searching investigation; and, in the opinion of the board, this officer should be commended for the efficient manner in which he handled the McPherson case.

As to specification 3, while the evidence indicates that certain persons obtained admission to the McPherson apartment, some in a regular and some in an irregular manner, in the opinion of the board, such admissions did not prejudice an efficient investigation, and consequently did not constitute an offense.

As to that portion of specification 4 which states Lieut. Kelly "failed to provide, or cause to be provided, the means of identifying every movable article in the McPherson apartment as to name, location and its relation to other objects therein," the evidence in the case shows that such procedure is not customary. In the opinion of the board, such a procedure is not necessary, and therefore the failure specified does not constitute an offense.

As to that portion of specification 5 which states that Lieut. Edward J. Kelly "failed to have written statements taken from all witnesses regardless of their apparent value," the evidence in the case shows that written statements have never been required of all witnesses in such cases, and consequently, in the opinion of the board, this failure does not constitute an offense.

As to that portion of specification 6 which states that Lieut. Edward J. Kelly "failed to assemble, identify and classify all articles and things found in the McPherson apartment," the Trial Board finds that this statement has been substantiated, but is of the opinion that such procedure is not customary or necessary, and the failure to do so, in the opinion of the board, does not constitute an offense.

As to specifications 9 and 10, dealing with the release of McPherson, the accused is charged with the failure to perform duties which the evidence shows were not incumbent upon him under the existing conditions, and consequently, in the opinion of the board, failure to perform these acts does not constitute an offense.

As to specification 13, the securing of a written statement from Robert A. McPherson, jr., was not believed necessary in view of the fact that written statements are obtained only when suspects are making a confession of guilt and no such admission having been made by said McPherson, this failure to secure such a written statement does not, in the opinion of the board, constitute an offense.

There is transmitted herewith the official record of this trial.

In accordance with section 6 of Chapter XVII of the Manual of the Police Department both of the accused parties have been notified of the findings of the board.

Kelly Denies Rumors.

Lieut. Kelly, who had been on the stand all day Saturday, resumed the witness stand again yesterday, and sat throughout the day under direct and cross-examination, giving a detailed account of his investigation of the death of Mrs. Virginia McPherson, who was found strangled in her Park Lane apartment last September 14. Lieut. Kelly closed his appearance on the witness stand with a sweeping denial of published and word-of-mouth rumors and gossip which have been spread through the city since Mrs. McPherson's body was found.

"I want to make this final statement," the veteran detective told the Trial Board, "and I want to make it while all the representatives of the press are here. There has been a lot of very loose talking about this case.

"There was one report that the Secretary of War became interested in the McPherson case and communicated with the District Commissioners and high police officials and had them ask me to hide or suppress certain facts in the case. I want to say that that is a lie. The District Commissioners never told me to hide anything. Neither the superintendent of police nor any other high ranking police officer told me to hide anything. I have not hidden anything. Another report was that I was a brother of Mrs. McPherson. That is not so. I never knew the McPherson family until this case came up.

Religion Same as Allen's.

"Another rumor was that religion entered into my investigation. I didn't even know what McPherson's faith was. I knew what mine was. I wasn't concerned with him."

"You know now that McPherson's faith is not the same as yours, do you not?" asked James A. O'Shea, Lieut. Kelly's attorney.

"I do," replied Lieut. Kelly.

"You know also that Robert P. Allen, former policeman, professes the same faith as yours, do you not?" asked Henry I. Quinn, who, with George E. Strong, defended Inspector Shelby.

"That was what I had been told," Lieut. Kelly said. "I also was accused of receiving $2,000 from Mr. McPherson, sr. That is not true. I am not ashamed of my investigation, nor anything I have done in this case. I would do the same things over again under the same circumstances."

McPherson Innocent, He Asserts.

Earlier in the day Lieut. Kelly had declared that it was as much the duty of a police officer to protect an innocent person as it would be to convict a guilty person. McPherson, Lieut. Kelly declared, is innocent of murdering his wife, as he was charged in an indictment by the July grand jury. McPherson had been honest in his account of his actions, Lieut. Kelly said, and so had other members of the McPherson family.

"Mothers lie for their children," he told the Trial Board. "I don't blame them, but I know that they do. But sitting in the McPherson home, young McPherson's mother sat there and told me that she was asleep when her son said he came in and could not say at what hour he came home the night his wife died. She knew that it was vitally important to her son to have proof of the time he came home, but she wouldn't lie.

Gives Remarkable Details.

When Lieut. Kelly had concluded his direct testimony, Robert E. Lynch failed to shake his testimony. He even helped it by giving Lieut. Kelly opportunity to say that he had known of several other cases where women had committed suicide while nude or partially clothed.

Lieut. Kelly demonstrated how he believed the pajama belt had been tied by Mrs. McPherson about her neck. He used his handkerchief and kept talking as he demonstrated, but his face became congested, and Mr. Lynch cautioned him not to tie his handkerchief too tightly.

Lieut. Kelly declared that some of the grand jurors had paid little attention to his testimony after having heard Robert J. Allen as the jury's first witness.

Refused Lunch, Testimony.

Former Policeman Allen made another effort to get on the witness stand, offering himself as a rebuttal witness. The prosecution refused to call him, but put the matter up to the Trial Board. Defense Attorneys objected, saying the prosecution should decide whether it wanted to call Mr. Allen to the stand again, but Maj. Atkins said the board was ready to rule on the question.

"In view of the record already established in this case and which record will speak for itself as to the type of testimony which Mr. Allen gave when he appeared," the board sees no reason for calling Mr. Allen for any further testimony," Maj. Atkins said.

A few minutes later the trial adjourned. Lieut. Kelly was the ninety-ninth witness. The trial began on December 18.

Treasury Plans to Cut Off Canadian Liquor Flow by Closer Watch.

GUARDS TO BE INCREASED

(Associated Press.)

Plans for tightening up the Canadian border to prevent liquor smuggling have been worked out at the Treasury Department and tentatively provide for an increase of approximately 500 in the number of ports of entry and consolidation and increase of the border guards.

Under the plan, the number of ports of entry would be raised from 100 to approximately 600 and entrance to or exit from the country forbidden except at the designated points. The plan has been proposed to Canada.

If finally approved it is expected to reduce to a minimum the smuggling of liquor into the United States and of merchandise from this country into Canada.

At present any person may enter the United States from Canada at any point, the only legal restriction being that if the crossing is made in a vehicle or if merchandise is brought in, a report must be made to the nearest immigration station. As proposed the ports of entry and subports would have an intensive patrol between. Any person attempting to cross the border except at designated places would be stopped and compelled to enter through one of the ports.

The 750 customs border patrol, 800 immigration inspectors and several hundred guards would be combined under one authority and their number greatly increased. At each of the ports and subports at least one immigration officer, a customs officer and a public health service physician would be stationed, with as many guards as required.

Before the plan can be put into effect, an agreement must be reached with Canada as to the places where the ports of entry will be located. This is necessary so that the American and Canadian stations will be at the same point, or otherwise they would be useless.

Treasury officials who have been working out the plan have found that Canada regarded it favorably, feeling that it would prevent smuggling into that country as well as into the United States.

Daughter of Lodge Tells Story of League Report

She Takes Issue With Statement Made by Roosevelt's Sister That Late Senator Was Disappointed in Outcome of Treaty Fight.

"My father was perfectly delighted, and not in the least disappointed, when the Senate failed to ratify the League of Nations covenant."

In these words Mrs. Constance Lodge Williams, daughter of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, yesterday took sharp issue with Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of the late Theodore Roosevelt, as to the responsibility for the defeat of the treaty of Versailles in the Senate ten years ago. At a meeting in New York last Saturday, Mrs. Robinson asserted that President Wilson was responsible for the defeat of the treaty, because he had issued orders to Democratic senators to vote against any resolution which contained the Lodge reservations, and she further implied that the outcome was a keen disappointment to Senator Lodge.

"I am sorry Mrs. Robinson made that statement," said Mrs. Williams, "because she is entirely mistaken. I do not recall that she was here in March, 1919, when the vote was taken, but I was here living at my father's house, and I discussed this subject with him every day. She is mistaken thinking that Senator Lodge at any time favored our entrance into the League of Nations.

"The purpose of the Lodge reservations was to nullify any affirmative action the Senate might take. At first my father feared that the proponents of the league might be able to muster the two-thirds vote, and he was determined to protect America's interest in every way possible. He knew that the Lodge reservations would never be accepted by the other nations in the league, and for that reason he was entirely willing that the Senate should vote to ratify the treaty. His heart was with the irreconcilable group at all times, but he was not only the chairman of the foreign relations committee but the Republican leader of the Senate, and he had to weigh all these considerations in the course he pursued.

"I have a very vivid recollection of the night that the Senate refused to ratify the treaty and the covenant. There was a party at Mrs. Longworth's house, and Senator Lodge came there somewhat late, accompanied by Senator Moses. There were happy smiles on both their faces. I stepped forward and kissed him, and congratulated them on the success of their efforts. My father said simply, 'You know, those were my reservations.' That remark shows that he was personally willing to assume full responsibility for what happened."

Although the survivors of the old "battalion of death" in the Senate were reluctant to get into a controversy with Mrs. Robinson, most of them today substantiated Mrs. William's recollection.

NEW POISON ORDERS ISSUED BY DRY CHIEF

Wood Alcohol to Be Added to Industrial Product Under Doran Edict.

CONGRESS DEBATES NEAR

The alcohols used in manufacturing varnishes and lacquers, which bootleggers have been converting for beverage purposes, are to be made more deadly than before by instructions issued yesterday by Prohibition Commissioner Doran. The new orders provide a new formula for further denaturing this industrial commodity.

Some time ago, in its efforts to prevent conversion of industrial alcohols, the Government gave instructions that all such alcohols, when sold to manufacturers, must contain certain poisons. There was such an outcry against this that the dry authorities decided instead to place gasoline in the alcohols, thereby rendering them unpalatable. Two gallons of gasoline were added to each 100 gallons of ethyl alcohol.

This precaution has failed to prevent conversion of ethyl alcohol into synthetic gin, according to reports recently reaching the prohibition commissioner. Either the bootleggers have been too successful in "cooking out" the gasoline, or the palates of drinkers have become immune to the remaining traces of it.

Wood Alcohol Now Ordered.

Hence yesterday's new orders. They provide that in place of the 2 gallons of gasoline now added to every 100 gallons of ethyl alcohol, 4 gallons of denatured wood alcohol be added. In addition, there will be added henceforth 10 gallons of normal butyl alcohol, or refined fusel oil or amyl alcohol.

These ingredients will make it harder for the bootleggers to "cook out" the commercial alcohols. They will either have to take the chance of selling a poisonous product or look elsewhere for their alcohol supplies.

Prohibition flared up momentarily in both the Senate and House yesterday, with a promise of more fireworks today.

Senator Walsh, (Democrat, Massachusetts), was granted unanimous consent to insert in the Congressional Record a copy of the resolutions adopted by the Faneuil Hall meeting in Boston on January 2 in protest against "the wanton and unnecessary killing of citizens of Massachusetts by members of the Coast Guard off the coast of Rhode Island, on December 29."

Dry Record Inserted.

In the House Representative Cramton (Republican, Michigan), recognized dry leader, was granted unanimous consent to insert in the Record his recent statement on the accomplishments of prohibition enforcement agencies.

Representative La Guardia (Republican, New York), at the same time obtained unanimous consent to address the House for twenty minutes tomorrow. He announced he would discuss prohibition.

Unanimous consent was also granted Representative Schaefer (Republican, Wisconsin), who boasts that he is a dripping wet, to address the House for one hour on Friday.

Senator Brookhart (Republican, Iowa), announced that he would address the Senate tomorrow on prohibition.

FIRST 10 GUARDSMEN ADMIT LIQUOR THEFT

29 MORE TO FACE COURT

New London, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Showing a general disposition to plead guilty and accept their punishment, 10 Coast Guardsmen of the 39 involved in the theft and drinking of liquor from a captured rumrunner had appeared before a general court-martial when it adjourned late today.

The ten, whose names were not made public, admitted their guilt of becoming intoxicated at the State pier the night the Flor-Del-Mar, with its cargo of 4,000 cases of whisky was being unloaded. The ten were sent to their ships.

Court will be resumed tomorrow morning and will continue through the week until all cases have been disposed of.

The court was made up of Commander M. J. Ryan, president; Lieut. Comdr. Charles T. Henley and Lieut. G. E. McCabe, with Lieut. J. S. Rosenthal acting as official prosecutor.

Mellon to Review Penalties.

The sentences imposed on the guardsmen who faced the court will not be disclosed until they have been reviewed by the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington. Commander Ryan, however, said 15 of the 39 guardsmen who are charged with pilfering cargo from the Flor-Del-Mar are liable to dishonorable discharges, while the other 24 men, charged with intoxication are liable to a maximum sentence of 30 days restriction, 10 of which may be on bread and water.

In an official statement relative to the court-martial issued today, Capt. H. H. Wolf, commander of the destroyer Force, reviewed the circumstances leading to the liquor thefts. He also described in detail the steps taken to prevent a recurrence of the thefts and the sarch made to recover the liquor already stolen.

Unopened Bottles Found.

As a result of the investigation conducted following the thefts, Capt. Wolf said, in the statement, it was revealed that 56 unopened quarts, 13 unopened pints and 4 unopened sacks of liquor had been recovered.

"It was found," Capt. Wolf said, "that only enlisted men below the rating of chief petty officers were involved. No one on the Coast Guard 290 was in any way connected with the pilfering of the cargo, nor any of its personnel under the influence of liquor. None of the cargo of the C-5677 (Black Duck) was touched."

Accused Guard Questioned.

Boston, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Edward F. Foley, 54-year-old customs guard, under suspension pending official presentation of charges of intoxication and misconduct while guarding the captured rumrunner Black Duck in Pawtuxet Cove, R. I., visited the office of Moses B. Mann, deputy surveyor of the port, here today. He was subjected to a brief, informal questioning.

Wilfred F. Lufkin, collector of customs, said today that charges against Foley would not be presented officially to Washington until after a formal report on the incident from Rhode Island officials had reached his desk, presumably some time tomorrow. He said that, under civil service rules, Foley had five days in which to present a defense and that if he failed to advance one his discharge from the service would be automatic. Otherwise, he said, Foley would be given a hearing before his superiors who would forward to Washington their findings with recommendations.

Foley was suspended yesterday after the collector had investigated reports that while in an intoxicated condition he had brandished a revolver before persons who attempted to quiet him and telephoned to the Boston customs office for reinforcements on the grounds that he was being attacked.

The Black Duck is being held under guard pending the investigation of the killing of three rumrunners aboard her by Coast Guards a week ago.

HOUSE TO OPEN TALK ON WAR SUPPLY BILL

$454,231,000 IS ASKED

(Associated Press.)

The House will begin consideration today of the $454,231,000 supply bill of the War Department for 1931, without waiting for information on the economic survey of that branch instituted by President Hoover last June.

Although the measure, as reported by the House appropriations committee, calls for an increased outlay of $442,000 over the current year, it carries a provision which would restrict the use of funds appropriated should economies be enforced as a result of the survey.

Staying within the budget estimates by $2,767,000, the bill designated $387,058,000 for military activities and $117,173,000 for nonmilitary purposes. The former represents an increase of $6,019,000 and the latter a decrease of $5,577,000, as compared with 1930.

Army Housing Budget Cut.

The committee explained in its report that the saving from the budget estimates was effected by reducing the amount for Army housing by $2,000,000, while the decrease for nonmilitary activities was brought about by cutting off appropriations for the Inland Waterway Corporation, which had an unexpected balance of $8,000,000 from last year.

Permanent appropriations sought by the bill total $9,627,000, of which $8,251,000 would be for nonmilitary purposes and $1,375,000 for military activities.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the majority leader, said that general debate on the bill will occupy two days. It then will be taken up for amendments, and the plan is to act on the measure Saturday, thus making way for the Treasury-Post-office annual supply bill, which probably will be reported next Monday.

$55,000,000 for Rivers, Harbors.

In the nonmilitary portion of the War Department bill the sum of $55,000,000 was provided for rivers and harbors works, an increase of $5,000,000 over the current year; and $35,000,000 was set aside for Mississippi River flood-control work, also an increase of $5,000,000.

Other large appropriations coming under the head of nonmilitary activities of the Engineer Corps include $1,000,000 for Sacramento River flood control, $260,000 for Muscle Shoals Dam No. 2, $400,000 for emergency flood-control funds, and $800,000 for roads and bridges in Alaska.

The sum of $133,557,000 was set aside for the pay of the Army, which will care for 12,000 officers and an enlisted personnel of 118,750 men and 6,500 Philippine Scouts.

Militia Bureau Participates.

For civilian military activities the bill set aside $33,058,000 for the Militia Bureau, which included $27,014,000 for the National Guard, $6,542,000 for the Organized Reserves, and $6,822,000 for citizens' military training camps.

In its report the committee said that more than 20 per cent of the items in the bill for military purposes were chargeable to the Aviation Corps, which shows a shortage in personnel under the five-year expansion program.

Although the bill set aside $36,776,000, an increase of $1,396,000 over the present year, as chargeable directly to the Air Corps, the committee said the actual total for that service was $72,833,000.

Other Large Sums.

Other large sums for military purposes included $91,060,000 for the Quartermaster Corps, $11,603,000 for the Ordnance Department, $1,347,000 for the chemical warfare service, $2,687,000 for sea coast defense, and $2,470,000 for the West Point Military Academy.

In the nonmilitary procurements, the measure set aside $11,235,000 for the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, an increase of $1,168,000 over the present year; $11,553,000 for the Panama Canal, an increase of $1,642,000; $1,129,000 for national cemeteries, $303,000 for national military parks, and $300,000 for Washington-Alaska Cable maintenance.

Improvements Provided In Arlington Cemetery

The 1931 appropriation bill for the War Department carries $100,000 for the restoration of the Lee Mansion in Arlington National Cemetery; $110.00 for headstones for Confederate graves in the cemetery, and $58,270 to start work on a road to connect the cemetery with the new Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Motorists Warned To Get Auto Tags

Tax Assessor Says 100,000 Still Have to Obtain New Markers.

No extension of time for use of 1929 automobile tags will be granted past midnight on January 31, motorists were warned in a statement by Tax Assessor William P. Richards yesterday.

On January 2, Richards reports, 8,541 plates were issued for 1930, including trucks, and of these 5,000 were reserved in December. On the following day 5,674 plates were issued, while up to Saturday night only 19,013 automobile owners had obtained their 1930 tags, leaving more than 100,000 car owners still to apply, and only 23 working days in which to apply.

Plates for pleasure cars are issued on the ground floor of the District Building, while tags for trucks, buses, taxicabs and motorcycles are obtainable on the first floor. Personal property taxes for the last six months of 1930, or one-half the regular tax of $1.70 per $100 valuation, must be paid for all automobiles before plates will be issued.

Man Overcome by Gas Saved by Rescue Squad

Overcome by gas, Charles William Newman, 28 years old, was found unconscious on the kitchen floor of his home on Thirteenth street southwest, near C street, by his mother, Mrs. Delia Newman. Gas fumes were flowing from open jets of a kitchen stove, police reported.

Members of the Fire Department Rescue Squad were summoned and gave first aid. He was then removed to Emergency Hospital, where physicians reported he would recover.

Army Finds Good Food Keeps Down Desertion

The widely known formula for keeping husbands, "Feed the brutes," has been found practical in the Army as well, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, informed the House appropriations subcommittee on the War Department's annual supply bill yesterday, according to the Associated Press.

To back up his assertion, Gen. Summerall cited figures which showed that desertion had decreased from 7.39 per cent in 1925 to 5.20 per cent in 1929, because of an improvement in rations.

The chief of staff also made a plea for better uniforms for American soldiers, expressing the opinion that handsomer clothes make the men fight better, to say nothing of giving them a better appearance on parade.

Maj. Gen. C. C. Williams, chief of Army ordnance, testifying before the same committee, declared that the British still are supreme in army tanks, despite the fact that Americans are developing a war vehicle which will run 40 or 50 miles an hour on open fields and 70 miles on an open road.

The committee was informed by Maj. Gen. William B. Smith that entrance requirements at West Point will be more stringent beginning in July.

21 OPINIONS GIVEN BY SUPREME COURT

Baltimore Street Railway Wins Broad Victory in Fare Fight.

STATE LOSES TAX PLEA

(Associated Press.)

With Chief Justice Taft absent because of his physical condition, the Supreme Court had a busy time yesterday after a four weeks recess—delivering 21 opinions and announcing other important decisions.

The date for argument on the Chicago sanitary district lake diversion report, as returned by Charles Evans Hughes, the special master, was set for February 21. The court also granted one petition for Review and refused six, in addition to issuing numerous orders in disputes between States. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes presided.

Among the more important decisions were those dealing with street car fares in Baltimore and with the tax which States may place on telephone companies doing an interstate business. Ruling in the street car case that a fair return upon such property was not capable of exact mathematical demonstration, the tribunal held that present value of such property must be made the basis for rate making and that such corporations were also entitled to have present value applied in calculating depreciation. The case was sent back with instructions for further proceedings in the lower courts, but the decision was a broad victory for the company which was asking a straight ten cent cash fare.

Telephone Tax Decision.

In the telephone case the court decided that New Jersey had no right to impose a tax on the gross receipts of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., because a part of them came from interstate business which was exempt from State taxation.

One of the most important decisions came in a case from Minnesota. In it the court overruled its previous decisions and held that intangible as well as tangible property left by deceased persons could be taxed only in the State where the owner was domiciled at the time of death.

World War veterans were interested in a case which the court consented to review. It announced that it would decide the right of such veterans, in a case brought from Colorado by Robert G. Meadows, to have lapsed insurance reinstated. The Government had insisted that the decision of the director of the Veterans' Bureau was final in such matters and that the courts were without jurisdiction.

The court permitted the International Shoe Co. of St. Louis to acquire control of the W. H. McElwain Co., of Boston, notwithstanding the opposition of the Federal Trade Commission.

It also sustained a New York law under which an abandoned wife was permitted to attach the bank account of her absconding husband.

The preferred "A" stockholders of the Wabash Railroad were unsuccessful in their attempts to compel the payment of back dividends during years when net earnings had been applied to betterments.

In four cases involving the question how maritime suits arising out of the operation of Government merchant ships must be brought, the court held that such suits must be prosecuted under the admiralty act.

Delinquent Taxes Cause Sale Today

16,000 Pieces of Property Will Be Offered at District Building.

More than 16,000 pieces of property are to be sold for delinquent taxes in the offices of the tax collector in the District Building today at 10 o'clock.

This is a decline from last year, when 20,000 titles were offered, of which 7,160 found purchasers. These brought $800,330.06 to the District to make up the delinquent taxes.

Purchase of a tax title does not transfer final ownership of the property involved. Taxpayers whose property has been sold for taxes may redeem it within two years after the sale by paying to the collector of taxes the amount of the delinquent tax plus a penalty of 1 per cent per month and a fee of 50 cents for advertising charges.

When no bids are received for properties for sale to meet delinquent taxes, the tax titles are bought by the District and can be redeemed by payment of the taxes and advertising costs and a penalty of 8 per cent per year.

SENATE TO RESUME SUGAR LOBBY PROBE

Broker and Publicity Men to Appear Before Committee.

COMMERCE AID WITNESS

(Associated Press.)

Resuming activities after the Christmas recess, the Senate lobby committee today will plunge again into its investigation of attempts to influence Congress on the sugar duties in the pending tariff bill.

Witnesses for the opening session will be Rupert L. Purdon, of the Department of Commerce, and Junior Owens, secretary of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages.

Three witnesses were directed yesterday to appear on Wednesday. They are H. H. Pike, jr., Wall street sugar broker; W. H. Baldwin and Morris Merney, both engaged in publicity work in New York.

They were summoned as a result of testimony by Owens, who previously has appeared before the committee. He said he had spent about $25,000 on a campaign against raising the sugar duty in the tariff bill and that the money had been contributed by the Coca Cola Co. and the Hershey Co. through Pike.

At the same time, he testified, $1,500 a month was paid to the Baldwin Co. for handling publicity relating to the sugar tariff.

Owens will resume his testimony, which was interrupted by the Christmas holidays. Purdon, head of the confectionery division of the Commerce Department, will be questioned about reports that he conferred with representatives of sugar companies concerning a sliding scale for sugar duties.

Chairman Caraway, of the lobby committee, wants to ascertain who, if any one, directed Purdon to participate in the conferences.

Mrs. Gladys Moon Jones, of the United States Sugar Association, is scheduled to testify on Thursday.

DALE PENSION BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Measure to Liberalize Civil Service Retirement Now Goes to House.

COOLIDGE VETOED ACT

The Dale bill to liberalize the civil service retirement act once more is on its way to becoming a law. The bill, which passed both houses in the last Congress, only to be vetoed by former President Coolidge, was passed by the Senate again yesterday without a dissenting vote. It now goes to the House, which is expected to act on it at an early date.

This time the sponsors of the bill are confident that it will meet no such tragic end as it did the last time. In view of his attitude toward a liberal retirement law when he was Secretary of Commerce, there is every reason to believe that President Hoover will approve the Dale bill when it reaches him.

The bill as passed yesterday by the Senate is the same one that was approved by it in the last Congress.

It raises the maximum retirement annuity from $1,000 to $1,200 and permits optional retirement after 30 years' service. It also lowers by two years the age at which employes may retire after such a period of service.

Most of the Government workers in Washington are eligible for retirement with full benefits at the age of 70 after 15 years' service. Under the Dale bill they would be eligible for retirement at 68 after 30 years' service.

Postal employes, who now become eligible for retirement at 65 after 15 years' service, would become eligible at 63 after 30 years' service. Employes in hazardous pursuits, now eligible at the age of 62, would be eligible at 60.

Under the present law the average retirement annuity is $740; under the Dale bill it would be about $860.

When the Senate resumed its consideration of the tariff bill yesterday, the next measure on the calendar was the Brookhart bill to correct inequalities in the Welch pay-raise act.

The Brookhart bill, by adding an additional salary step-up to the various grades, would give a raise of $120 to those who got only a $60 raise, and one of $200 to those who got only $100. Moreover, the bill would make the raise retroactive to the time when the Welch bill took effect.

It is generally admitted that the Brookhart bill would give the slighted Government employes the salaries that most members of Congress thought was being given them when they voted for the Welch bill.

Debate Lasts 20 Minutes.

The Dale bill was passed yesterday after a debate lasting about 20 minutes. Senator Porter Dale (Republican), of Vermont, chairman of the civil service committee, and Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, answered questions propounded my other members.

Senator Dale declared that in the end the enactment of his bill would mean a saving to the Government, in that it would encourage many superannuated employes, who now are sticking in the service, to go into retirement.

Majority Leader Watson said he was voting for the bill with the understanding that it would not drive out elderly employes who still are efficient and wish to remain in the service.

Russell Heads Awning Group.

William E. Russell, of the Capital Awning Co., was elected chairman of the awning section of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association at a meeting yesterday. Mr. Russell will serve on the board of governors of the association. The fuel-oil group of the association will meet today.

SUSECT HELD IN BOMBING

William Forsythe, Post Staff Photographer.

Samuel, 19 months old, died two days later, and Dorothy, 4, died last Saturday. Mrs. Hall lost an eye, and Leslie and Thomas suffered injuries to their hands.

Lieut. Itzel said that he was convinced that the person who manufactured the fatal bomb also left it at the Buckley home. One planning such a ghastly crime, he said, would hardly take an outsider into his confidence.

Planned Hunt in Advance.

Hhe quoted Herman as saying that Leroy planned the Sunday duck hunt two days in advance. They went to southern Maryland and remained fourteen hours, he said, but did not get any ducks, although the conditions for shooting them were ideal.

Science entered the investigation of the bomb murder yesterday when Dr. Charles E. Munroe, explosives expert of the Bureau of Standards, began an examination of a piece of lead tubing, a strip of fuse and other articles that were found on the scene of the blast.

The brothers, who were taken in custody Sunday night, were still being held in the Marlboro Jail, one of them in the first tier of cells and the other in the tier above.

Leroy, who made his home with his wife and child on Massachusetts avenue, near Seventeenth street southeast, has been employed as an automobile mechanic at a local garage.

Called Good Mechanic.

Two officers who came into Washington to investigate his record yesterday—County Policeman Frank Prince and Headquarters Detective John Fowler—were told that not only was Leroy a good motor mechanic, but that he was well versed in electrical ignition and the use of acids, having studied these in a school in Kansas City.

It was Fowler and Prince who came in with what appeared to be the bomb fragments and turned them over to Dr. Munroe.

Itzel says that Naomi Hall Brady was murdered to "protect the family honor," that is, the honor of the Brady family.

Naomi Hall and Herman Brady lived on adjoining farms at Mitchellville before the Hall family moved to Seat Pleasant, and had known each other since childhood.

Last November Herman and Naomi eloped to Fairfax, Va., and were married. In a few months Naomi would have become a mother, and the detectives declare that this was responsible for her death.

Elder Brady Released.

In talking to reporters on the day of the explosion, Herman declared that he and Naomi were married in June. A few days later, however, it was found in the records that the marriage did not take place until November.

The wedding was kept a secret until shortly before Christmas, when Naomi told her mother. It was New Year's night, however, before Herman told his mother, and by that time his bride was dead.

The bridegroom and the bride had continued to live in their respective homes after the wedding, but Brady said that he was negotiating for a place to set up housekeeping the day the bomb exploded.

Clarence Brady, 50, a giant farmer of Mitchellville, and uncle of the two brothers now under arrest, was released from the Marlboro jail yesterday, after being held there since Friday night.

Proves to Be Woman Hater.

The uncle was arrested largely as a result of a story told reporters by Herman Brady. The latter said that the uncle had been in love with Noami when she and other members of her family lived on his farm and had tried to marry her.

This Clarence Brady denied, and, in denying it, he convinced the detectives that not only was he not interested in Naomi Hall, but that he was not interested in any woman. He told them that he had "no use" for the fair sex.

Fellow workmen at the garage on Sherman avenue, near Euclid street northwest, where he was employed expressed themselves yesterday as being dumbfounded by the report of Leroy Brady's implication in the bomb outrage.

Employed at Shop Five Years.

Brady has been employed in the repair shop of the motor company for about five years, and he was declared to be an efficient automobile electrician and mechanic. He was trained in the company's mechanical school and entered the employ of the company prior to his marriage.

Both the employment manager and foreman of the repair shop declared Brady was one of their best men and a very personable fellow. None of his fellow workmen had noticed any act of Brady's which could substantiate his implication in the crime. All were convinced he could not have constructed the infernal machine at the shop, nor have obtained any of the materials for its construction there. Gasoline was declared to be the only "explosive material around the shop."

Brady lives at 1714 Massachusetts avenue southeast. His young wife suffered a nervous collapse following his arrest, and she and her small child are now being taken care of by her sister, who declared Mrs. Brady had been highly nervous ever since the infernal machine mutilated and killed her brother-in-law's wife and members of her family on New Year's Eve.

PENOLOGISTS SCORE BAUMES STATUTES

Take Away Last Hope From Prisoners, Wardens Tell Crime Commission.

CROWDING IS DEPLORED

The Baumes penal laws came in for a raking yesterday by a number of leading penologists and prison wardens, who, sitting as a special advisory committee, met with members of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission in the first of a series of attempts to find out what is wrong with present prison management and to stop the deluge of serious prison outbreaks.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, told the commissioners that to "take away the last ray of hope of prisoners is a serious thing to do." He said that too stringent laws have made the life and long term convicts desperate, and attributed much of the present prison difficulties to the severity of the present-day penalties.

Other matters discussed, all of which were believed by the experts to have contributed to the bloody prison revolts, were:

Overcrowding of prisoners, too many prisoners in a prison unit, bad food, lack of work for the prisoners, politics in prison management, the fact that many prisoners are returned after several months or years of liberty, and the release of prisoners on parole merely because of the necessity for relieving the overcrowded institutions.

The discussions were general, with each man telling his view of the major causes of the present prison unrest. Although no conclusions were reached and the meeting was in executive session, it was learned that criticism of overharsh penal laws in New York and several other States were gone into at some length.

Man Runs Amuck In Kentucky Court

Farmer Litigant Throws Tribunal Into Uproar With Shotgun.

Smithland, Ky., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Flourishing a shotgun and gesticulating wildly, Jesse Fugate, declared by physicians and court officials to be insane, ran amuck in the Livingston County Courtroom here today. Fugate took charge of the court and held officers at bay for almost an hour while he made the court officials sign an order restoring his property to him. The man was finally disarmed and put in jail.

Several women screamed and fled from the room, but all of the men remained and other women spectators sank to the floor in fright, fearful that the man would open fire when he announced that he intended to kill J. R. Wells, Charles Ferguson, H. F. Green and Charles H. Wilson, all attorneys practicing at the Smithland bar. He also said he would kill any one else who tried to interfere with him.

Fugate lost his property about a year ago under a foreclosure proceeding in Livingston County Court. He is said to have been a patient in an asylum several years ago. He is a farmer about 59 years old.

New Charge Made In Vitale Inquiry

Magistrate Freed Admitted Thief Court Records Said to Indicate.

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Born of an interest aroused by the famous holdup dinner in a Bronx Italian restaurant, the police investigation into the professional and personal activities of Magistrate Albert H. Vitale continued today. Coincident with it Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen made public police and court records and affidavits indicating that the magistrate had set free on one occasion a self-confessed thief without calling to the stand the policeman to whom the confession had been made.

The records, which the commissioner said he would turn over to the Bar Association, which has summoned Magistrate Vitale before it, have to do with the arrest and trial of Charles Fawcett in August, 1928.

Fawcett appeared before Magistrate Vitale charged with having robbed the cash drawer of Joseph C. Harth, a coffee merchant. In court also were Walter Karkower, a neighbor of Harth, who testified that he saw Fawcett at the till with his hands filled with money, and Patrolman Richard Hannigan, who arrested Fawcett. Fawcett, the court records show, was dismissed.

Magistrate Vitale said today he could not remember the case.

Plans for Flight Around Globe Told

Cleveland Man Will Have $165,000 Plane and Crew of Eight.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Harry A. Husted, wealthy Cleveland manufacturer, announced here today that he would sign a contract for a $165,000 Fokker plane, to be used in an attempt to make a record ten-day flight around the world. Husted said that he would meet Fokker representatives here tomorrow to close negotiations for the 32-passenger ship.

The Clevelander expects delivery of the plane to be made in May and expects to hop off from San Francisco for Hongkong, China, on June 15.

Husted, in outlinning his plans for the flight, said he would carry a crew of eight. A regular passenger Fokker will be remodeled according to Husted's desires.

Plans to equip the machine with bunks and to carry cooking equipment have been given up because of the extra weight, Husted said.

COSTA RICAN ENVOY, SCHOENFELD, QUITS

HELD POST ONE MONTH

(Associated Press.)

Shortly after receiving the resignation of H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld as Minister to Costa Rica, President Hoover yesterday nominated Charles C. Eberhardt, of Salina, Kans., as his successor.

Mr. Schoenfeld, who plans to enter business in New York, was appointed to the Costa Rican post only a month ago. Eberhardt was formerly Minister to Nicaragua.

The State Department announced Schoenfeld's decision "with extreme regret," and expressed hope that he would reenter the diplomatic service at some later time.

By his resignation, Schoenfeld established the record of twice having been appointed a minister, but of never having served. He was named Minister to Bulgaria after seventeen years in the foreign service by President Coolidge, but before he could take over this post he was called to Washington to assist Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy with the Paraguay-Bolivia Commission of Inquiry and Conciliation.

In going to Costa Rica, Eberhardt will continue a diplomatic service which began in 1904.

Mathew E. Hanna, former first secretary of the legation in Nicaragua, was appointed minister in Eberhardt's stead at the same time that President Hoover selected Schoenfeld for the Costa Rican post.

The Rev. Father Philip O'Mara, Henderson priest, who assisted in locating the young woman, said she was a victim of overstudy.

Recently she returned to Aiken from Asheville, N. C., where she spent some time for her health.

MAN DIES IN LEAP FROM HOTEL ROOF

an investigation of the man's room proved that identification to be correct.

Connor was a retired Cavalry sergeant in the United States Army. He had lived at hotels in Washington for several years. It is reported he has friends and possibly relatives living at Pocomoke City, Md.

The man, who lived on the third floor of the hotel, evidently went to the eighth floor and then ascended a flight of steps to the penthouse. The door to the penthouse had the key sticking in the lock, which allowed him to gain admission to the roof.

withhold my vote on this amendment."

After the vote was taken, Senator Harrison served notice that he intends to vote against the tariff bill if the Senate continued to approve "indefensibly high rates" such as now are being written into the wool schedule.

"If the Senate continues to do what it has done today," said Harrison, "the bill will not get my vote on passage. If the rates on sugar are increased I will not vote for the bill."

The Mississippi senator asserted heatedly that there is no excuse for increased rates on wool and its products and cited statements of Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, to support the argument that the wool industry had been saved and made profitable by the rates of the existing tariff law. He agreed with Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, that the Senate, in considering the remaining rates of finished woolen products in the schedule, is merely doing what had been predicted a month ago when it voted to increase the rate on raw wool from 31 cents to 34 cents per pound.

Senator Smoot was taken to task for his failure to defend the amendment of the Senate finance committee for the 31-cent rate when he saw that some of the senators wanted a high duty. The Utah senator was referred to by Harrison as the "little shepherd of the West."

Senator Swanson chimed in to announce that he, too, will vote against the bill unless it is improved considerably over its present status.

The Senate finished up the remaining minor amendments to the wool schedule and adjourned in a wrangle over whether or not to take up the controverted sugar schedule today. Chairman Smoot wants to go ahead with this schedule, but coalition leaders indicated a desire to take up something else. The Senate lobby investigating committee is scheduled to bring in its report on the activities of the sugar interests later this week.

Five Traffic Charges Placed Against Youth

An antiquated automobile led to the arrest of Elmer Cock, 20 years old, of Clarendon, Va., on five charges yesterday afternoon and almost sent Seventh Precinct Policeman E. LaForce to a hospital when the machine, which he was testing for bad brakes on a hill behind the precinct station, slid to within a foot of a large stone wall and stopped suddenly without crashing.

Cock was charged with bad brakes, operating 32 miles an hour, no District permit, no registration card and dead rags when he was taken in custody at 5:45 o'clock in the afternoon at the Washington end of the Key Bridge.

Lad, Foul Play Victim, Identified by Mother

Reidsville, N. C., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Mrs. J. W. Diamont, of Greensboro, came here today and identified the skeleton found in a patch of woods near here last week as that of her son by a former marriage, Roy Johnson, 16-year-old Greensboro youth, missing for several months.

Police said the identification was positive. Mrs. Diamont recognized a ring, watch and other articles found upon the skeleton as belonging to her son. A coroner's jury had returned a verdict of foul play. Indications are that the youth's skull was broken by a heavy club.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Days of Past Are Recalled By Assembly

Brilliant Costumes Are Feature of Event at Willard.

By JEAN ELIOT.

WHEN the Washington assembly "went international" it was with the idea of bringing to a revival of the old time assemblies something of the cosmopolitanism which now colors Washington society—an idea which has worked out very successfully, to judge from the distinguished groups of diplomats who were present last night at the Washington International Assembly's annual costume ball. Some were subscribers and others attended as guests in various box parties which contributed to the brilliance of the ball.

Forbears of many of the men and women who danced at the Willard last night had attended the balls of a century ago, when the Washington Assembly ranked with the Philadelphia Assembly, the Baltimore Assembly and Charleston's famous St. Cecilia balls. And some of the guests last evening wore costumes which were historic in their associations. Others sponsored the smartest of modern modes, in piquant contrast to gowns of grandmother's —or great-grandmother's day. Although a subscription fete, the ball is given each year under the auspices of a board of governors, of which Mrs. Henry F. Dimock is honorary chairman, the list of those privileged to subscribe is carefully scanned by a committee and an invitation to be present is esteemed as a feather in one's cap.

Mrs. Dimock Heads Receiving Line.

Mrs. Dimock stood at the head of the receiving line, wearing a handsome gown of satin in the rich shade of blue, which is a favorite with this member of the group of "Washington's grand duchesses." With her were Mrs. Claude S. Swanson, gowned in pink moire made in the graceful mode of the moment, and Mrs. Joseph E. Washington, whose black velvet costume was set off strikingly by a white colonial wig. Both Mrs. Swanson and Mrs. Washington are members of the board of governors of the assembly.

In her box later Mrs. Dimock entertained her son-in-law and daughter, the Second Counselor of the Italian Embassy and Signora Catalani; Signor Catalani's niece, Miss Vittoria Catalani, who is a debutante of the season, being brought out under Mrs. Dimock's auspices; Miss Alice Morris, daughter of Mr. Dave Hennen Morris, of New York, and guest of Mrs. Dimock; Mr. Edward Van Devanter, Mr. Mitchell Carroll, Mr. Randolph Zell, Mr. Mulliken and Mr. Henry Fox.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel entertained a box party, having members of the embassy staff as their guests. The Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John A. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. Henry C. Corbin and Dr. Stanley Hornbeck were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William McClellan Ritter, first at a theater party to see William Gillette and then in Mrs. Ritter's box at the ball. Mrs. Edward C. Walker also entertained a notable company of guests in her box, coming on to the ball from the theater.

The Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro were honor guests of Mrs. Charles Graves Matthews in her box and she had with her also Gen. and Mrs. Chase Wilmot Kennedy, Col and Mrs. Frederick Coleman and Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett. Mrs. Matthews, who is a member of the board of governors of the assembly, was in colonial costume, a beautiful blue and pink silk brocade, with long full skirt and a slight train.

March of Nations Features Opening.

The ball opened characteristically with a "March of the Nations," in which a group of pretty girls took part, each bearing the flag of a foreign country, with Miss Elise Alexander as the standard bearer of the Stars and Stripes. Miss Maria Hortensia Diez de Medina, daughter of the Minister of Bolivia, carried the flag of Bolivia, and other charming foreign maids represented in this international pageant were Miss Ellis Bostrom, Sweden, Miss Loranda Prochnik, Austria, and Miss Lucia Tessada Guzman, Cuba. Daughter of Mrs. Frank B. Freyer, who has been decorated by the Peruvian government with its coveted Order of the Sun, Miss Engracia Freyer, carried the standard of Peru.

Brig. Gen. William E. Horton was marshal of this picturesque parade, which developed into a grand march in which all the guests in costume took part.

Exhibition dances by Marian Chace and Lester Shafer—in private life Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shafer—were a charming feature of the evening's entertainment. They had chosen a "Valse Directoire" and a "Garlande Plastique," an idyll, both created at the Denishawn Studio, with which they are connected, and both appropriately costumed. The music for the pastoral number was written especially for this dance by Mr. Roy Stoughton, famous for his organ compositions. The "Valse Directoire" was danced to the music of Drigo's "Serenade." Mrs. Shafer, a gifted danseuse, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Chace, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norment had with them in their box at the ball the group whom they had previously entertained at a dinner party in honor of the Minister of Norway and Mme. Bachke. Others in the company were the Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Eric Louw, the Counselor of the Swiss Legation and Mme. Lardy, the Counselor of the Norwegian Legation, Mr. Alexis Lundh; Mrs. Rushmore Patterson, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs Herbert Owen Williams.

Dinner Party Guests Gather at Assembly.

Guests from a dozen other dinner parties came together at the assembly. Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose had entertained for Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister of Switzerland, Justice James Clark McReynolds, Mrs. Henry J. Allen, Senator David I. Walsh, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor and Dr. and Mrs. James A. Lyon. Mr. Justice McReynolds did not go on to the ball but the party was joined there by Senator Allen.

Dr. and Mrs. John C. Merriam were the guests in whose honor Mr. and Mrs. Royal de la Meter Mead entertained at dinner at their residence and later at the ball. Their other guests were the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Putnam Birnie, Dr. and Mrs. John Turrentine, Miss Mabelita Mead and Mr. Albert Cousens. Miss Mead was a picturesque figure in the march of the nations, carrying the Hawaiian flag, which was draped with a lei, Miss Mead also wore a lei, which was most decorative. She was born in the Hawaiian Islands when her parents were living there and is familiar with its manners and customs, so that her selection for this part in the opening feature of the evening was particularly appropriate.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dulaney Cummin were hosts to an interesting company of dinner guests, who included Judge and Mrs. Charles D. Drayton, Mrs. Mark Reid Yates, Mr. and Mrs. William Morse, Miss Katherine Tallaferro Yates, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilman Bullard, Mr. Dysart McMullen and Lieut. W. Roland Gaines.

Miss Vittoria Catalani was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Frederick A. Parkhurst entertained a company of young people at dinner and later in her box at the ball. Others in the party vere Miss Loranda Prochnik, Miss Alice Morris, who is the guest of Mrs. Henry F. Dimock; Miss Emma Montanari, of Boston, and Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, of Concord, Mass., both of whom are visiting the Parkhursts; Miss Junia Culbertson, Miss Margaretta Wright and Miss Anna Parkhurst, daughter of the hostess.

Supper Is Served At Midnight.

Mrs. Henry W. Fitch had given her box to her son-in-law and daughter, Maj. and Mrs. Creswell Garlington, who entertained at dinner at their residence on Wyoming avenue preceding the ball, their guests including Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Holmes, of Pittsburgh, who have taken a house here; Lieut. Col. and Mrs. J. J. O'Hara and Commander and Mrs. Andrew Hickey.

Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons was hostess at a dinner party at the Mayflower for her box party before coming on to the ball, and had with her Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Harriman, Mrs. Thomas Reed, Mrs. Joseph E. Washington, Mr. Archibald C. V. Wells, of the men's floor committee; Mr. Henry Martyn Clark and Prof. John Gray.

In the role of a Colonial Dame, Mrs. Robert O'Donnell Hinckley wore a gown of sapphire blue velvet trimmed with rare lace, and beautiful diamond ornaments which are heirlooms in her family.

Mrs. M. de Clare Berry was in costume, wearing an old English bridal dress and bridal bonnet of white, with a short lace veil. It had been worn by Mrs. Berry's ancestress, Mary Todd, who married Capt. John Bickerton, of Hanover, Va.

Mrs. Laurence Gouverneur Hoes, whose husband was a member of the men's floor committee, was a charming figure in modern dress of orchid chiffon, made on long straight lines, with the skirt just clearing the floor.

Mrs. Edward R. Alexander, of the board of governors of the assembly, entertained in her box for her daughter, Miss Elise Alexander.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Savage had as guests in their box Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ogden and Miss Katharine Ogden, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Conger Baldwin and Mr. Edward Melcher, of Boston. Miss Ogden made her debut in New York two years ago.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: What a gay time we had last evening! With a famous actor drawing crowds at a downtown theater, the German Opera Company opening at Poli's with critics from New York and Philadelphia and everywhere, the International Assembly Ball at the Willard Hotel, and goodness knows what other minor entertainments, the entire city was very gala.

Considering the packed program of social events, which fill the days in society for the next several weeks, it is small wonder that the smart shops of the city are kept busy supplying evening frocks and wraps for women and girls whose lives demand innumerable changes in costume.

Herron's Department Of Dressmaking

—has caused quite a furore in this season when it is necessary to have so many frocks for all occasions. Herron's, second floor, 1735 Connecticut avenue, wisely decided to give a dressmaking service, and a surprising number of women are daily availing themselves of this opportunity to have copies of their favorite frocks, made up in other colors and materials than they have had before. The price for making is $10 and up for day dresses, and $15 and up and up, for evening frocks.

In the meantime you may still buy attractive frocks all ready to wear at Herron's for $16.50 and $25. Herron's, up one flight, holds much of interest in store for you.

Special Selling at Schwartz Today

—of women's and misses' dresses at only $20. Imagine chiffons, silk crepes and early prints in the newest modes for this amount. This group includes, really, the type of frocks you seldom find at this low price, all beautifully made and carefully finished in the manner of much higher priced garments.

The styles emphasize the stunning new version of the modified silhouette, slightly fitted at the waist-line with a gracefully lengthened skirt. All the popular shades are shown, the new green, blues, dahlia, brown, black and navy. Schwartz, 1328 Connecticut avenue.

The Fame of Underwood & Underwood

—is best understood by people who live away from Washington. Right here, where the studio window is always before our eyes, and where we encounter their news photographers at all important events, they seem so much a part of the picture that we are apt to lose sight of the fact that this firm stands as one of the most famous of its kind in all the world.

Coming here a stranger, a few years ago, I was so thrilled, I remember, to be passing along Connecticut avenue, and all of a sudden to become conscious of the name Underwood & Underwood in gold letters across the front of an attractive building. Previously that name had been identified in my mind with pictures of national events, taking place in the Capital and other important centers, with pictures of personages, in other words, this firm had opened the door to the events of the big world outside my own limited experience. And here was the center of their actual operation.

Look in their window today and see the collection of exquisite portraits of beautiful women, posed uniquely, with a hand showing against the cheek, or beneath the chin, with a lovely result. You will instantly want a picture made in just this way.

Pasternak Continues Clearance

—with pricings which are deservedly awe-inspiring. You must see the models at their new prices to realize what values they represent. Just for example, frocks which have been $55 to $75 are now $19.50. At $35 you may buy frocks which have been $65 to $95. Gowns at $45 have been as high as $125.

Coats are equally reduced, with values up to $165 for $95. Suits now marked at $95 have been $205. Evening wraps are now $65 which were originally $165 and more. Furs and hats have been remarked correspondingly. Hats are quite generally at two prices . . . $7.50 and $10. Pasternak, 1219 Connecticut avenue.

...RTISTS ACCLAIMED ...N WAGNERIAN OPERA

DIRECTOR ALSO SCORES

Mme. Johanna Gadski added more laurels to her fame last night in the role of Brunnhilde, in the presentation of Wagner's "Die Walkure" by the German Grand Opera Company at Poli's Theater. The veteran prima donna was greeted with acclaim when she first appeared on the stage. Her dramatic portrayal indicated that her art, voice and vivid personality have not diminished perceptibly in quality since she first achieved a wide reputation in this difficult Wagnerian role, a number of years ago.

"Die Walkure" was the first of a series of grand operas to be presented here this week by the visiting opera company under the general direction of S. Hurok and the local management of T. Arthur Smith. The selection of Mme. Gadski as the outstanding figure of last night's performance was most fortunate because it gave a fine start to the American tour of the German company which will sing in many cities during its stay in the United States this season.

The approval accorded Mme. Gadski assumed deafening proportions after her singing of the technically difficult and stirring battle cry. Mme. Gadski mastered its intricacies with the assurance of long familiarity, concluding with a gorgeous and ringing high C, well placed, rounded and full of the fire of her earlier years in this role.

In the "Fort Denn Eile" aria she scored again and she sustained the Brunnhilde role throughout in a manner worthy of herself.

Rudolph Ritter Scores.

Close behind Mme. Gadski in musical excellence and dramatic interpretation were Rudolph Ritter as Seigmund and Juliette Lippe as Seiglinde." Both of these artists are gifted with lovely appealing voices which reached the climax of effectiveness in their love song, one of the most beautiful of operatic melodies. Ritter in the "Sword Song" also won a special ovation which was well deserved.

Another artist whose work was outstanding, especially in the Magic Fire scene at the end of the opera, was Gotthold Ditter as Wotan.

Orchestra Wins Laurels.

The letter perfect familiarity of the cast with the opera score and libretto was one of the joys of last night's presentation of Die Walkure. The orchestral side of the opera was well handled by an augmented orchestra under the skilled baton of Ernest Knoch, whose Wagnerian repertoire is as extensive as the works of that master. The orchestra came in for a very special ovation of its own for its magnificent rendering of the prelude known as "The Ride of the Valkyries."

The Valkyries a group of German women singers won applause at their entrance at the conclusion of the orchestral prelude with their thrilling shout, musical yet pitched in heroic theme. Among those who shared honors last night were Edna Zahm, Isolde Von Bernahrd, Milo Miloradovich, Sheila Feyer, Mabel Ritch, Helena Lanvin, Maura Canning, while Carl Braun was an excellent Hunding with a good voice and Merran Reader did well in the role of Helmwige.

Scenic Effects Admirable.

The scenery was typical of the Bayreuth tradition in the presentation of Wagner operas and the general mounting was admirable while the costuming was in keeping with the period in which the opera was placed. Some nervousness was apparent here and there in the production, probably due to the excitement incident to a first night in America for an opera company from overseas. Yet, on the whole, the management has real reason to feel a sense of satisfaction with the presentation. Last night's production should prove a happy augury for the success of the entire American tour.

The next presentation here will be on Wednesday night, when the German Opera Company will sing Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," with Rudolf Ritter as "Tristan" and Juliette Lippe as "Isolde," a combination of operatic talent, which should make a delightful evening's entertainment. Herr Knoch is scheduled as conductor of Wednesday night's opera.

Sands discovered the director's lifeless body immediately thereafter, Hefner said, and then they fled. Sands later disappeared in Mexico.

Trapped in narcotic dealings several years later, Hefner said he was sentenced to Folsom. There he described Taylor's affiliations with the narcotic ring to Buck Cook, sentenced to Folsom for a Los Angeles jewelry robbery. Cook, he says, repeated his statement to prison officials, and he was called before them to repeat his story. A week later he was paroled, Hefner declared, and told his life was not worth a nickel in the prison.

Taylor and Sands, according to Hefner, had a falling out before the murder when Taylor accused his "chauffeur" of robbing his home. Sands, however, was said to have continued to deliver narcotics to Taylor and to have gotten his money on time.

Threats Made Against Director.

Hefner continued with the following statement:

"Word was passed around in the dope ring after a while that Taylor had turned 'rat' and was tipping us off to Federal officials. I heard several conversations in which it was remarked that Taylor would be bumped off if he did not play square.

"At first I paid no attention, as a lot of that sort of talk was going around; but they kept repeating it, and pretty soon I got really interested and began to think they meant business.

"On the evening of February 1, 1922, Sands and I were out at Redondo Beach on a job and Saw Taylor and ——— (naming two motion picture actresses) having dinner in a cafe.

Saw Woman Leaving.

"He went back to town and Sands went up to his apartment for a few minutes while I waited outside. He told me when he came down that he had just talked with Taylor on the phone—at Taylor's home—and that we were to deliver some 'hype' to the latter.

"Sands went and got a big limousine, which he said was Taylor's and had been loaned to him. He picked up his stuff at the pharmacy and we drove out to Alvarado street.

"This was about 2 o'clock in the morning. We parked the car across the street from Taylor's bungalow court. Sands and I left it and crossed Alvarado street.

"There was another limousine at the opposite curb with a driver at the wheel and the motor going. A woman was coming down the short steps from the entrance to the bungalow court. She was wrapped up in a fur coat, either black or dark brown, but I recognized her as ———.

"She passed Sands and me and got into the limousine hurriedly and drove away.

'Deader Than a Mackerel.'

"Sands told me to wait for him on the sidewalk while he went in with the bundle. He came back almost immediately and hurriedly crossed the street to our car, motioning me to step lively.

"When we were in the car Sands said to me, 'it's time to be going. The old man's got his. He's stretched out deader than a mackeral.'"

Telling of Sands' disappearance to Mexico, Hefner concluded:

"Sands did not kill Taylor; I'm sure of that. I don't think he meant to run away when he started for Mexico; I understood he was going down to arrange for more narcotic shipments.

"I think Taylor was shot between about 1:45 a. m. when Sands said he talked with him on the phone, from Sands' apartment, and 2:30 a. m. when we beat it from Alvarado street.

"I think—killed Taylor."

Hefner is living in San Francisco with his wife and baby, attempting, he says, to "live clean and honest." He is under an assumed name.

20 YIELD AS POLICE START TO RAM DOOR

Raiding Squad, Armed With Hammers and Crowbars, Raid Alleged Den.

ONE HELD AS PROPRIETOR

Armed with sledge hammers and crowbars, members of the Police Vice Squad yesterday prepared to batter in several heavily barred and electrically equipped doors of an alleged gambling den in a building in Eleventh street northwest near E street, when the occupants "raised the white flag." The doors were opened and twenty men were taken prisoners.

At the First Precinct, the raiding squad preferred charges of setting up a gaming table against Raymond Watson O'Neill, 37 years old, of E street northwest near Second street. The others were questioned and liberated as Government witnesses.

Leaving one detective on guard, other members of the squad went to their automobile and returned in a few moments with the hammers and crowbars. As they were preparing to assault the doors, a voice came through a "peep-hole" of one door notifying the raiders of the surrender.

Sergeant Letterman reported the seizure of a quantity of alleged racehorse slips, racing forms and other equipment. The place was equipped with numerous telephones, the sergeant said, and a radio.

Shoes? 12 Pairs Enough Dealers Tell Governor

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Take it from the shoe dealers themselves, the "well-dressed man" should have twelve pairs of shoes to be correctly clad on all occasions.

Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri today was the recipient of those dozen pairs, the gift of the National Shoe Retailers Association after he welcomed its members to St. Louis for a four-day convention.

Gov. Caulfield's display includes a pair of sport shoes trimmed in white and black to be worn with flannel trousers and dark coat, white and tan trimmed sport shoes for day wear with a brown ensemble, several pairs of street shoes in both black and tan, wing tip oxfords for afternoon wear and patent leather oxfords for formal evening occasions.

Two Bodies Are Found In Film Air Crash Debris

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan 6 (A.P.).—The bodies of Kenneth Hawks, motion picture director, and Thomas Harris, studio property man, two of the ten victims of last Thursday's midair crash of two airplanes engaged in filming a movie thriller over the Pacific Ocean, were recovered from the sunken wreckage of one of the planes today.

Charles Smale, deep-sea diver, found the bodies in the cabin of the plane. Bodies of three of the victims were recovered immediately after the planes plunged, enveloped in flames, into the ocean off Point Vicente. Those of the other five victims are believed to be gripped in the wreckage of the other plane which was located last Friday and then lost when a storm drove salvaging boats into port.

Dupont Circle Citizens Seek to Have Alleged Nuisance Law Violators Held.

PALL IS EVIDENT, CLAIM

Prosecution of violators of the smoke nuisance law of the District will be asked by the Dupont Circle Citizens Association. At a meeting yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel it was decided to send a formal complaint against alleged violators to Corporation Counsel McBride and the District health officer.

Specific defendants were named by the members, who said that the smoke, issuing from soft coal and oil-burning furnaces in apartment houses and hotels, cast a pall over the neighborhood.

Enforcement of the law would eliminate this condition, they argued, contending that the situation is due more to carelessness than anything else.

Alleged violators in the Dupont Circle section and those lodging the complaints are: The Highlands and Grafton Hotel, by H. Mulliken; the Galleons, Moorings and the Anchorage, apartments, by Mrs. W. B. Ridgeley; the Chastleton and the Jewish Community Center, by H. W. Gatchell.

Resolutions were adopted asking that the City Planning Committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations make a study of the industrial development of the Virginia side of the Potomac and its effect upon the Cramton bill. Maj. Clayton E. Emig introduced the measure.

Friday the City Planning Committee of the Federation will be addressed by two authorities on transportation systems, J. A. Queeney, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Charles Hensel, of New York City, who will outline plans for the betterment of trolley service.

Youth Living Here a Year Held Still Ohio Resident

The United States Civil Service Commission yesterday lost a decision in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals which may have a far-reaching result.

The case involved Nathaniel Ward, a minor son of William S. Ward, of Ohio, who is an attorney in the Department of Justice. The case reached the Court of Appeals as a result of the action of the District of Columbia Supreme Court granting a mandamus requiring the commission to permit the youth to take an examination as stenographer and typist as a resident of Ohio while living in the District of Columbia.

The commission claimed that the youth had resided in the District of Columbia for a year prior to his application and that he was not eligible to take the examination as a resident of Ohio.

In the opinion of the Court of Appeals which was rendered by Chief Justice George E. Martin, it was held that the boy's physical absence from Ohio for a year did not defeat his right to enter the examination as a resident of Ohio.

The court quoted a number of decisions of former Attorneys General Wickersham and Miller regarding the meaning of "actually domiciled." In this connection the court pointed out that Congress in enacting the Civil Service legislation had followed these interpretations.

In opposing the Government's contention in the original case the youth's counsel pointed out that his father had accepted a Government position while domiciled in Ohio and that under the laws of that State a resident is permitted to absent himself on Government business while still retaining his rights to citizenship in the State.

Taxi Drivers Called Before Utilities Body

All operators of taxicabs in the District have been ordered to report immediately at room 104, District Building, to have their brakes tested and to satisfy the Public Utilities Commission as to their ability to meet any judgments which may be levied against them as the result of accidents.

These instructions were made public yesterday by the commission, emphasis being laid on the point that every taxicab operator must comply with the new regulations by February 1.

The commission will devote not only the energies of its own Engineering Department to the work of testing taxicab brakes, but will draft as many additional assistants from other departments of the District government as may be necessary.

Couple Demands Jury Trial on Rum Charges

Curtis M. Youngs and his wife, Ella Youngs, who were arrested Saturday by Sergt. O. J. Letterman's squad at their home on Fourth street northwest, near G street, were arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of possession of intoxicants, and, after pleading not guilty and demanding a jury trial, were released on $500 bond.

The Youngs were originally booked on charges of possession of intoxicants and possession of apparatus designed for the manufacture of whisky. Attorney John P. Mullen appeared for them, while Assistant United States Attorney James R. Kirkland represented the Government.

Japanese Send Pin To Stimson's Aid

Naval Envoys Remember Messenger With Gem for His Attentions.

(Associated Press.)

Honors are nothing new in the life of Edward Augustine Savoy, the Negro personal messenger to Secretary of State for more than a score of years, but the one he received yesterday will not be soon forgotten.

Opening a little box addressed to him, 75-year-old "Eddie" found in it a handsome diamond stickpin and a note from Ambassador Debuchi, of Japan, presenting the pin on behalf of the Japanese delegation to the London Arms Conference.

It was a souvenir of their visit to Washington last month and an appreciation of Eddie's courtly manner toward them.

The gift and the remembrance brought the white haired messenger great pleasure but not a new experience. Great men have come and gone in Eddie's life, but all of those who have retturned paid their respects to Eddie.

THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH

carry on—Avoid that future shadow

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

"NATIONAL NEEDS."

Gen. Jan Smuts, who was Premier of South Africa before he became "the voice of the English-speaking world" on behalf of the League of Nations and the so-called world court, has arrived in the United States, and is receiving the usual courteous welcome extended to foreign visitors. He is here in pursuance of a carefully prearranged and well-financed plan to deliver a series of messages to the people, and he has already begun his mission of seeking to convert Americans to the new order of internationalism, as embodied in the league and the court.

Unlike Lord Cecil, another foreign propagandist who was here some years ago as a league idealist, and who discussed only the general aspects of the covenant as a panacea for world woes, Gen. Smuts has definite suggestions to make to the American people as to what they must or must not do in order to fulfill the responsibilities which he thinks they owe to Europe.

In lecturing Americans as to our duties, Gen. Smuts has the happy faculty of detecting just wherein they go wrong, and just why the traditionally American conception of national needs is out of date.

In his New York speech on Sunday Gen. Smuts warns Americans specifically against permitting their viewpoint of the London naval conference to be controlled by "national needs," or the needs of national defense. He expresses the fear that increased instead of reduced armaments may result if America's national needs are not subordinated to the Kellogg pact. He admits that Americans may be inclined to think in terms of national needs. "But," he adds, "to my mind national needs are not the standard to follow. It is the peace pact."

Surely the peace pact means something, Gen. Smuts declares, adding his conviction that the nations which signed it are determined to see it carried out. As to the method to be employed in compelling observance of the pact, Gen. Smuts refers only vaguely to the British plan of pledging all signatories to make "public war" against an aggressor. The medium of making the pact effective, by public war or otherwise, is apparently to be found in the world court, as soon as the United States has become a member of it. The court, at the behest of the league, is to identify a violator of the Kellogg pact and thereupon the nations, including the United States, are to go to war to stop war.

It may be a difficult task to convert the American people to the idea that they should ignore national needs in order to reach a naval agreement, but Gen. Smuts attacks the job with courage and optimism. He pays no attention to the declarations of Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, each of which has stressed the necessity of taking account of national needs in shaping a naval limitation agreement. The United States, apparently, is under no such obligation, but is free to sacrifice its needs.

As for committing the United States to an engagement to go to war whenever the League of Nations sounds the call, after the world court has identified a culprit, there are seemingly insuperable obstacles in the way; but Gen. Smuts does not permit these obstacles to dampen his ardent hope of reversing American traditions. To him, American traditions should not stand in the way of concessions which would place the resources and man power of the United States at the disposal of the League of Nations. It is delightful, however, to acknowledge the politeness with which Gen. Smuts disagrees with the American people.

RETIREMENT LEGISLATION.

By passing the Dale bill, liberalizing the civil service retirement law for Government employes, the Senate has merely confirmed its previous action. The measure also had the approval of the House, but failed by reason of President Coolidge's veto. This reenactment by the Senate should be concurred in by the House.

The Dale bill would raise the maximum annuity paid to retired employes from $1,000 to $1,200 per year. It would also give employes who have been in the service 30 years the option of retiring two years earlier than under the present law. The need for legislation of this kind has long been apparent and should not be longer delayed.

Some opposition to the Dale bill has developed among Government employes on the ground that it does not go far enough. Neither does it embody the recommendations of the Civil Service Commission. Retirement ages provided in the Dale bill are 60, 62 and 68 years for different classes of work. The recent report of the Civil Service Commission pointed out that a large percentage of employes are retired for total disability before reaching the retirement age, and suggested a flat optional retirement age of 60 years, with more liberal provisions for extension of service where employes are able and willing to continue. Virtually all able-bodied employes desire to continue working beyond the retirement age, but under the present system many are kept at work when partially disabled.

The Dale bill is a step in the right direction. It would be impossible at this time to put through an act which would fully satisfy all Federal workers. But this bill, if enacted and approved, will afford to the workers some relief, and there will be nothing to prevent them from pressing for legislation of a more liberal nature.

SYMPATHY FOR INDIA.

Before the Senate had settled down to business yesterday, a resolution was introduced by Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, which doubtless will attract widespread attention, especially in Great Britain, Egypt and India. It will be discussed on the Senate floor about the time the London naval conference gets underway, and may be particularly noted by Prime Minister MacDonald, whose campaign pledges so closely conform to the purpose which Senator Blaine apparently has in view.

The Blaine resolution asks the Senate to pledge its constitutional support to the President of the United States "whenever he may deem it proper to recognize the sovereignty and independence of India," and "recommends early recognition thereof."

The resolution sets forth that the Senate "participates with the people of the United States in the deep interest that they feel for the success of the people of India in their struggle to establish their liberty and independence."

Mr. Blaine links the resolution with the coming naval conference. An army of 250,000 is required to keep 300,000,000 people in subjection, he contends, and this army requires a navy to serve and protect it. If the need for the army could be dispensed with, the need for the requisite naval protection would disappear, in the opinion of the senator from Wisconsin.

On many occasions Congress has formally extended its sympathy to foreign peoples struggling for their independence. It is the historic attitude of the United States. Americans believe that world peace must be based upon liberty and justice in order to endure. Mr. Blaine's resolution may fail of adoption, but it unquestionably reflects the sentiments of the American people.

THE HUBERT BENEFACTION.

Washingtonians have special interest in the allocation of the estate of Conrad Hubert, inventor of the flashlight, because of the generous gifts to Catholic and Howard Universities and other institutions which directly benefit residents of this city. But aside from these local allotments there is unusual interest in the distribution of Mr. Hubert's millions.

Instead of establishing a foundation to perpetuate his name or bequeathing his fortune for the permanent endowment of some institution, Mr. Hubert chose to have his estate distributed for current use by three outstanding Americans. The manner in which the committee, composed of former President Coolidge, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Julius Rosenwald, has carried out his wishes illustrates the wisdom of this method of awarding benefactions. Mr. Hubert has left an excellent example for philanthropists to follow.

The estate seems to have been equitably distributed on both geographical and religious bases. Among the larger awards are substantial sums for the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of America and the Red Cross, the benefits of which will be carried throughout the country. In virtually every case the bequest was made with the understanding that an equal sum would be obtained from other sources, so that the total benefits will approximate $15,000,000. These funds will be spent for current needs, in most cases for construction of buildings or expansion of philanthropic activities. The committee chose only 33 institutions out of a total of more than 500 considered for the bequest, which means that the Hubert fortune will not be dissipated by division into awards so small that they would be ineffective.

Distribution of an estate left for the benefit of mankind on the practical basis of merit, need, and immediate use brings general satisfaction. Generosity is a laudable virtue, and when wisdom is added to it, the result is widespread benefits for those in need.

WOMEN'S NEW "FREEDOM."

Much is said in these days, when no profession or occupation is closed to women, about the newly found freedom of the so-called weaker sex. But Miss Agnes L. Peterson, assistant director of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor, is apparently not convinced that any real advantage has been gained. She refers to chivalry as a myth in matters of employment and complains of "unfair discrimination" in the wages paid to women.

It is commonly supposed that women have been relieved of the drudgery of housework as a consequence of a new era. But Miss Peterson throws cold water on the theory with a statement that cooking, dishwashing, scrubbing, laundering and care of dependents are still a burden upon most women who have become wage earners. From a survey of 30,000 families in four widely separated cities it was found that 20 per cent of the women workers were the sole breadwinners for their families, and 27 per cent of them were caring for families which did not have the aid of any male worker. Marriage, she concludes, fails to bring a woman the economic security it formerly did. Many women are forced to take employment because of sickness or unemployment of the husbands.

It is estimated that more than 8,500,000 women are employed in the United States in nearly 600 different occupations. This is one-fifth of the entire number of persons employed. It would be interesting to know how many of these have undertaken business, industrial or professional careers out of preference, and how many have been forced to work because of changed economic conditions. The assumption that modern women have a greater appetite than their mothers for business affairs may be a mistake.

One thing is certain. The new "freedom" of women has brought new responsibilities to a great number. Miss Peterson concludes that some of the more complex economic problems that confront women as a result of this change are a serious challenge to the present social order. In contemplating the new economic status of women it is well to remember that it has its distressing aspects as well as its advantages.

Now that Congress is back at the tariff and prohibition, here's an adage to be printed daily in the Congressional Record: Following the course of least resistance is what makes men and rivers crooked.

The only public man not involved in lobbying scandals, prohibition squabbles or other high crimes is Admiral Byrd; and he had to go to the South Pole to escape.

Gen. Summerall's dictum that a soldier must be well dressed to be a good fighter doesn't quite square with our experience in corner-lot engagements.

More than 40 bills concerning prohibition are before Congress, but 120,000,000 are required to express the sentiments of the American people.

Speaking of the dangers of gas in the next war, people inhaling the official atmosphere in Washington will be immune.

The wets and drys must have been attending one of those conferences on spontaneous combustion.

HISTORIC MARKERS

From the New York Times.

Southern hospitality is so deeply ingrained and Virginia courtesy in particular is so famed that it is not surprising to read in Sunday's New York Times that Virginia not only is taking the lead in marking historic spots, but numbers the signs so that "hurried motorists may gain the full benefit of the inscriptions without having to stop." The State furnishes a booklet containing the key numbers. Thus motorists may note the numbers on the signs that they pass and then read about them as they hurry on.

The passing tourist does not even have to slow down, but may take his history on the run, just as he takes his Europe on the quantitative principle, i. e., so many miles of picture galleries, so many dozen cathedrals, so many castles or ruins. Virginia has made the process even easier than has Europe by avoiding the language barrier (save for New Yorkers) and by looking on motorists as human beings rather than as prey.

The signs will be welcomed—even by those who take them at the speed limit. The principle is one which has only recently been applied outside of Massachusetts, and which deserves emulation throughout the country. In all fairness to Virginia it must be said that many tourists from the North have refused to avail themselves of the privilege of taking the signs by the numbers and have, instead, not only slowed down but have stopped and studied and visited with delight and profit. So well has Virginia done the marking that she has succeeded where others have failed.

It is to be hoped, for her own sake, that she is escaping the quarrels which have occasionally torn historians, genealogists, antiquarians and descendants of Revolutionary and other heroes in New York and New England over the exact spot where a certain occurrence actually took place. Fortunately, most of the monuments and houses in the Southern States still exist, so that it is easier to identify them. Here in New York we have had only last week a three-cornered dispute as to the exact spot in which the Christmas poem, "A Visit From St. Nicholas," was written. No sooner had Brooklyn announced that it wished to preserve the so-called Moore homestead in Elmhurst as the scene of the writing than historians in Manhattan rose to remark that the author really wrote the verses in Chelsea. Almost at the same time a claimant for a house in Newport, R. I., insisted that neither Chelsea nor Elmhurst was entitled to the distinction.

In facilitating and encouraging the restoration of the old houses and gardens in Virginia the people of that State are doing a service for the rest of the country. There is in Virginia so much beauty and so much of historic interest that others should be permitted to share in it. The historic signs will help in this—even though they be so arranged that he who rides may read.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A SHATTERED RESOLUTION.

I resolved to be patient and calm,
Of trifles no more I'd complain,
I would go through the year without causing a tear,
But my noble intentions were vain.

"No matter what happens," I said,
"I will not lose my temper or scold."
But that vow I forgot, for I like coffee hot,
And my coffee this morning was cold!

I wish to be gentle and kind,
I've tried to be year after year;
Many vows I have made, not to start a tirade,
But quickly such vows disappear.

Now another lies broken and dead,
Another that's scarce a week old;
But what man can grin when he has to begin
His breakfast with coffee that's cold?

Oh, women folks, help me, I pray,
I am doing the best that I can;
Yearly, vows I repeat to be kindly and sweet
And not such a grouch of a man.

But you're making my struggle so hard,
A truth which you ought to be told,
For my temper gets hot when my coffee is not,
And my coffee this morning was cold!

A Kicking Match Is Equal Fun for All Except the Chap Who Has Only One Leg.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHATEVER your opinion of the protective tariff may be, you will concede that what is sauce for the goose is quite likely to be sauce for the gander—that the way to cure a new fever blister is the way you cured another one.

The protective tariff, or prohibitive import tax, has served to bar alien competition and thus preserve for American manufacturers a monopoly of the American market.

Thus protected in their enjoyment of a good thing, the manufacturers have permitted themselves a generous margin of profit on their wares and have grown very rich.

That, in simple outline, is the story of the protective tariff.

Consider now the gander—and the second need of a cure.

Farmers of the United States, still in overalls while Industry wears a silk hat, appeal for relief—which means that they clamor for an advantage that will enable them to make more money with less effort

The people of the United States spend one billion dollars each year for agricultural products imported from abroad—and these imports are not limited to bananas and palm oil, but include such homely necessities as beans, eggs and cheese.

Obviously, if these imports were stopped there would be an increased demand for the home farmers' products and the farmers would have an extra billion dollars to divide.

Nor is that all. Secure in their monopoly of the market, farmers could and most certainly would obtain a higher price for their products. Perhaps they would get two extra billions instead of one.

Thus farming would be given parity with industry; and though some manufacturers object, because they use certain agricultural products in their business and now import them at a low price, their objections would vanish when the farmers appeared with two billion dollars to spend for play pretties.

What could be more fair, more pleasant? America for Americans! Everything foreign kept out!

But, alas, the cow goes dry if you don't feed her.

If the foreigner can sell nothing in the world's best market, where shall he get the money to buy the surplus America must export?

And who will protect or relieve the meek and voiceless man in a white collar who has five mouths to feed and nothing to sell but himself?

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE SKIN SHE LOVES TO BURN.

Have you seen those ladies' bathing suits for 1930 as revealed in store windows displaying smart styles for Southern winter resort wear? Boys, there's human apparel reduced to its lowest common denominator!

• • • •

The new suits are enough to make the bathing-beach censor of year before last develop acute palpitations of the upper eyelids and send out S O S signals for the Army and Navy.

• • • •

Suits isn't the word. They are really salt-water camisoles. You know what a camisole is: a bib with silk straps.

• • • •

The ultra smart bathing garment for 1930 is mostly straps. The only difference between a girl in a bathtub and a girl on the Palm Beach sands this winter is going to be that the girl in the tub will have more privacy.

• • • •

Sun-tan, what indiscretions are committed in thy name!

• • • •

The complete tan is what the modern bathing beauty is seeking and if she doesn't get it this year it won't be the designer's fault. To paraphrase Gunga Din:

The bathing garb she wore was nothing much before—
And rather less than arf of that behind.

• • • •

Even the wooden dummies in the department store windows look embarrassed. When a girl gets into her bathing garment this winter all she is going to need to outdo Lady Godiva is a horse.

• • • •

Godiva rode down the main streets of her native city with her long hair covering her like a raccoon coat. Not even her hard-hearted husband would have allowed her to ride horseback before the public with as little on as the bathing beauty of 1930 will wear.

The craze for tan is responsible. For centuries women dodged the sun's rays. They used to be afraid they would get burned. Today they are afraid they won't. The modern girl's idea of that school-girl complexion is something between Hottentot brown and lampblack.

• • • •

And she doesn't believe in skimping. She believes every vertebra's place is in the sun.

• • • •

SUGGESTIONS FOR DISPOSING OF XMAS AND NEW YEAR'S CARDS.

1. Tie them in little packages of three to stick under the short leg of wobbly bridge tables.

2. Tie them all up in a neat little package and give them to the ashman, enclosing a card with the puzzling message "From an admirer."

3. Keep them to give to the traffic cop who catches you when you have no operator's license.

4. Use them to stuff in mouseholes.

5. Chop them up and save for confetti for the next wedding.

6. Send them to Devils Island to brighten the lives of the sentimental dears there.

7. Mail them to Commander Eckener for dirigible ballast.

8. Use them to start the furnace fire next time it goes out.

9. Dump them on the floor where the maid will sweep them under the bed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Sugar Bounty Instead of Duty Would Reduce Consumers' Tax by $119,000,000, Says Alexandrian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "A Sugar Bounty," is misleading as to facts, in that it insinuates that a bounty on sugar to the domestic producers would be "a raid on the Treasury," meaning, of course, that the people would be robbed in that amount.

The true facts are as follows: The people of this country are now paying a sugar tax which amounts to about $211,000,000 under the present sugar tariff.

If this tax were abolished and the domestic producers were protected with a bounty of 2 cents per pound on the sugar they produced annually, the people of the country would save annually about $119,000,000. This because, based on the present domestic production, the bounty would not exceed $92,000,000 annually.

It matters not whether you tax the people under the name of a bounty or of a sugar import tax, as the money comes out of their pockets in either case.

Congress recently reduced the income tax, by $160,000,000, which helps the richer class of people. The House passed a bill to increase the sugar import tax by about $160,000,000 each year in addition to the tax now being paid.

This added burden would (if the bill passed the Senate) naturally fall heaviest on the poorer class of people, who are not able to pay any income taxes, and so can get no relief from the above mentioned tax reduction recently passed with a wild "hurrah."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At this time, when attention is directed to the Republic of Haiti on account of recent disturbances on that island, I have been asked to give my views as to the future of that member of the Pan-American Union, presumably because of my discussions on political and economic questions pertaining to Latin America.

The cooperation of the Borno regime with that of the Coolidge administration has done much to improve conditions there, and real progress will eventually come with the peace that is deserving to all nations. A diversity of opinion exists as to the policy of this Government obtaining at the present. Many believe that the treaty of 1916 has been a blessing to that republic, while others see in it a complete theft of Haiti's sovereignty.

If this treaty, which is to run until 1936, could be abridged to the extent of the withdrawal of American marines, to be supplanted by colored American troops, whose loyalty to this Government would not be questioned, but whose sympathetic interest in the Haitian masses would be understood and appreciated, the appointment of a colored American as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary in place of the present high commissioner, in my opinion, would go far in the solution of this perplexing matter.

The residence of Mr. Raoul Lizaire, charge d'affaires near this Capital, has done much to facilitate those cordial relations that should exist between this country and the republics of Latin America.

Demand for Liberty Bursts Through Peace Pacts—India Wants Independence.

To the Editor of The Post: Sir—We all hoped that the Kellogg pact would bring peace to all nations, and thought the pronouncement of the renunciation of war as the best policy would prevent all future wars. Let us dream on. This renunciation of war does not touch at all the principles that underlie all conflicts.

Now here is India declaring her independence by the same document that our forefathers framed. We are anxious to know if the Kellogg pact is workable.

We must not get away from our base. As with individuals, so with governments who persist in any injustice one toward another—pacts and promises are futile and hopeless. The sense of injustice will anywhere and everywhere turn into a flame, though smugly and ignorantly we may assure ourselves of serenity and peace. MICHAEL BLISS.

Sprinkling System Should Be Provided at Once to Protect the Capitol.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read of the fire in the Capitol and of the difficulty firemen experienced in getting lines of hose to the flames, and that twenty minutes elapsed before water could be played on the fire.

Is it possible that in these days of stand-pipes and sprinkler systems—used in all ordinary public buildings and factories—our finest public building, with its marvelous architectural beauty, is without this customary fire protection?

It is hoped that Congress will put aside for a few minutes even the tariff and prohibition legislation to appropriate sufficient funds to preserve this structure, in which every American takes such pride.

School Buildings Should Be More Attractive as Well as More Numerous.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was glad to read your sensible editorial about public school appropriations. I do hope the time will come when full provision will be made for all the needs of our school system, including schoolhouses. And the schoolhouses I am thinking of will be nice to look at, which is not so in regard to many of those in Washington today.

Beginning with the kindergarten a good deal of attention is paid to developing the sense of beauty in the children, and I do not think such teaching is entirely consistent in buildings that are as ugly as sin.

DEBT CONFERENCE SCHEDULE IS UPSET

Powers Inclined to Drop Smaller Creditors and Push Young Plan.

EARLY ENDING FAVORED

The Hague, Netherlands, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Delegates to the second session of the reparations conference are facing several problems which have upset the time schedule of the conference and necessitated calling in more experts.

Announcement was made today that efforts to bring about an agreement between Austria and her reparations creditors had failed and further efforts at negotiation were in progress. The general reaction to this development was a disposition by the big powers to disregard the reparations interests of the smaller creditors and to go ahead with adoption of the Young plan as soon as possible.

Briand to Leave Friday.

Along with that announcement came news that Foreign Minister Briand will leave The Hague Friday in order to get to Geneva comfortably for the council meeting of the League of Nations January 13. The fact that Premier Tardieu has taken things in hand was believed in some quarters to account for the foreign minister's decision.

Opinion grew in favor of the early termination of the present session inasmuch as Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, is known to be disinclined to dally with questions outside of the German reparations problem. It was thought by many observers that the failure of the little entente powers to come to an agreement with their reparations debtors might bring the conference to a quicker end instead of prolonging it.

However, efforts to straighten out the Austrian tangle are still going on and Bulgaria and Hungary will be given the floor tomorrow.

Time of Payments Related.

The Big Six powers made two efforts today to get the problem of when the monthly installments on reparations are due from Germany off the slate without success. The creditors maintain that all the calculations made by the experts in Paris were based on payments being made on the 15th of the month, the Germans hold that this means anticipation of the payment by 15 days, which, on the whole year's payments, would amount to more than 4,000,000 marks, or about $1,000,000 in interest. They insist they be given an allowance for an equivalent capital sum in the present value of the debt or that the payments be made at the end of the month.

It was decided to call in Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, and other experts to confer with the big powers on that question. While Dr. Schacht is not a member of the Gereman delegation, he has held himself ready for consultations.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE announcement by Representative Schafer yesterday that on Thursday of this week he will discuss "Prohibition and Christianity" in the House is of more than passing interest. He will probably be the first fellow ever heard in that body.

It is not that others have not spoken in the House before. There is forever and eternally some one on his feet haranguing, or Republicanizing, as the case may be. But he has not been heard. Mr. Schafer will be.

The gentleman established his reputation, indeed, by virtue of the fact that he is the only man ever able to out-shout Tom Blanton. Mr. Schafer's discussion Thursday will be heard above the din and confusion that is the House. There will be the same undercurrent of conversation, the same shuffling of feet, but over and above it will sound the voluminous voice of the gentleman from Wisconsin.

* * * *

IN so far as prohibition is concerned, he has been considered an authority on that for a long time. It is his selection also of the topic of Christianity that would seem to call for comment.

Mr. Schafer comes from as hard a school of missionaries as ever dealt with humans in the rough. Their language, if spilt in a regular edifice, would shatter the arched ceiling above and shake the stained windows from their fastenings.

It is the language of the road, the language of the railroad man. The conversation of a freight conductor with a freight engineer has been known to throw terror into pasturing cattle, to awake little farm children, whose houses lay along the right of way, and cause them to cry out in sleepy grief.

* * * *

SOME of the epithets that the "hoghead" has applied to the conductor when a coupling came loose and he was trying to make it to the next station in the face of the express train have been lifted by the lexicographers to give force and virility to the English language; to give it a moving quality. They have lighted the countryside and caused the country store meteorologists to report a storm in the heavens.

Before the railroads became so modern, in fact, these words were thought by many to have had a large part in the running of the trains.

Mr. Shaefer knows this language; he knows the reason and meaning of every word. He used to be a railroad fireman.

* * * *

HE has sat on his cushion on the fireman's side of the box and heard the engineer utter choice quotations from engineers who had held the throttle before, heard him coin new ones, in fact—when the pig-head of a dispatcher at the end of the road went crazy and slowed him up or put him into the siding for a scrubby, heavier freight. And there comes a time in every fireman's life when he has words of his own calculated to characterize engineers—words that would do nobody's but an engineer's ears any good.

But they have a religion, these men of the road. It is to get over it—that is, the road; get over it as fast as they can in spite of the pig-headed officials sitting at the terminals, who just think they know how to move a train.

Brilliant Fete Presents Future Bride of Prince to Rome.

SALUTED BY MUSSOLINI

Rome, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium, standing beside her future husband, Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, this evening made the acquaintance of all the high officials of the kingdom over which she one day will reign.

Surrounded by the members of her own and her fiance's families, the royal young lady from the north was the center of attraction at a formal reception in the Quirinal Palace, residence of the sovereigns of Italy. For brilliance of decoration and wealth of gowns and uniforms the reception surpassed any such function that Rome has seen for a quarter of a century.

The select company invited to be presented to the princess was restricted to the visiting kings and queens and princes and princesses, the principal officials of the Italian state, and the Belgian officials accompanying the bridal party. The members of the Diplomatic Corps, including Ambassador John W. Garrett and Mrs. Garrett, of the United States, were the only others invited.

The line of dignitaries that slowly passed before her this evening was headed by Premier Mussolini and other wearers of the Order of the Annunziata, highest decoration within the gift of the Italian monarch. This group included the princes of the blood; Count Calvi di Bergolo, husband of Princess Yolanda Prince Philip of Hesse, husband of Princess Mafalda; Prince Conrad of Bavaria, husband of Princess Maria Bona of Savoy-Genoa, and the marshals of Italy.

Mussolini in Full Dress.

Premier Mussolini was in full-dress uniform, dark blue with gold frogs, fourragere and braid. He carried his white-plumed, cocked hat under his arm. The members of his cabinet, who followed the wearers of the Annunziata order, also were resplendent in blue and gold. Next came President Federzoni, of the Senate, in full evening dress and decorations, heading the principal officers of the upper house, and then President Giuriati of the chamber, leading the officials of the chamber.

Deputy Augusto Turati, as secretary of the Fascist party, had a place apart, according to the new order of precedence at court inaugurated last year. He was clad in the full-dress uniform of the Black Shirt militia.

After him came the judges of the court of cassation, corresponding roughly in rank to the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. Close behind them were the judges of the court of appeals, and the members of the Royal Academy, including such well-known Italians as the composer Mascagni, the playwright Pirandello and the futurist author Marinetti.

Chiefs of General Staff.

The chiefs of the general staffs of the army, navy and aviation in full dress uniform followed. Each was heavily epauletted, wearing medals and broad purple "duty sashes" and a sword at his side.

Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi, Governor of Rome, was in blue and gold and plumed, cocked hat.

As each of the dignitaries approached the royal receiving party he bowed deeply, raised and brought the princess' finger tips to his lips, and then uttered his congratulations. Marie Jose, who since her early schooling in Florence speaks fluent Italian, replied to each and smiled radiantly. Crown Prince Humbert acknowledged the greetings with the military salute and his own infective smile.

SEARCH FOR EIELSON RESCUERS IS IN VAIN

Pilot Seeking Lost Rescuers Is Forced Down by Alaskan Fog.

MEN ARE BELIEVED SAFE

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—One of three big cabin planes in the search for the missing airmen, Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, still was lost in the northern wastes tonight. The plane carried Pilot Pat Reid and William Hughes and Jim Hutchinson, mechanics.

Another plane in the search was wrecked several days ago and the third was storm bound at Nulago, between Fairbanks and Nome.

The missing plane carried a plentiful supply of provisions and no fear was felt for the three missing men. It was hoped they had been able to land their plane safely.

Search Proves Fruitless.

After a fruitless search over 200 miles between Nome and Unalakleet yesterday, Pilot Frank Dorbandt was reported from Nome to have expressed the belief that Reid either overshot the coast there and landed on the ice out in Norton Bay or returned to the Yukon River.

Dorbandt was forced down by fog after reaching Solomon, 36 miles from Nome, but in a message to Alfred Lomen, director of rescue operation in Nome, the pilot said there was perfect visibility from the mouth of the Kyouk River to Analakleet.

Will Spare No Expense.

It was also reported from Nome that Graham B. Grosvenor, president of the Aviation Corporation, radioed to Lomen from New York naming him to direct activities of the reserve expedition. The three Fairchild planes were sent to Alaska by the corporation. Lomen was notified to spare no expense in carrying on the search for Eielson and Borland, fliers for the Alaska Airways, an affiliated company with the Aviation Corporation.

Lomen named Pilot Joe Crosson, now on the icebound ship Nanuk at North Cape, Siberia, as director of operations in Siberia. Crosson and Eielson accompanied Sir Hubert Wilkins on his South Pole expedition.

$61,821,000 FUND ASKED BY HOOVER

$68,500 for City Projects Included in Supplemental Sums Sought.

CAPITAL NEEDS LISTED

To meet contingencies that have arisen in Washington and throughout the country, President Hoover, through the Budget Bureau, yesterday called on Congress for supplemental appropriations totaling $61,821,000.

For Washington, the President asked for $68,500 to supplement the sum made available by the 1930 appropriation bill.

He also recommended that the sum of $850,000, carried in the District budget for 1931, for two high-temperature incinerators, be made available for the current fiscal year, so that the acquisition of sites and the actual construction might be expedited.

Would Speed New High School.

A provision was recommended for incorporation in the 1931 appropriation bill that will permit the municipal architect to speed up the plans for the new Business High School. As soon as the new structure is completed, the old building will be turned over to pupils in the elementary grades, thus making it possible to abandon some of the hated portable schools.

Another provision was recommended which would authorize the Commissioners to close alleys and streets around the site of the new junior high school, which is to be built near the Kingsman School.

The supplemental estimates of $68,500 are for the following: For combatting mosquitoes, $60,000; for transporting crippled school children, $5,000; for the training of three local students at the Columbia Institution for the Deaf, $1,500; and for an entrance to a new road in Zoo Park, $2,000.

$450,000 to Aid Rum War.

From a national standpoint, the supplemental estimates of interest included one of $450,000 for new boats and the repair of old boats of the Coast Guard to be used in combatting smugglers of liquor and other contraband.

For the construction of approaches to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery, the President asked for $416,686; to offset an unusually heavy expense on the part of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Commerce, $395,000; and for the Federal Farm Loan Board, $50,000.

Many other millions were asked for Federal penitentiaries, Federal officers, and the State, War and Navy Departments. For the Postoffice Department, a deficiency appropriation of $356,475 was recommended.

Envoy to Costa Rica Returning.

PERSHING ACCORDED HIGH MASONIC HONOR

Thirty-Third Degree Given General Amid Group of Distinguished Men.

RITES FOLLOW BANQUET

Amid a group of distinguished Masons, Gen. John J. Pershing was accorded the thirty-third degree last night at a ceremony in the Scottish Rite Temple, Sixteenth and S streets. The honor was conferred by Capt. John Henry Cowles, sovereign grand commander, in the presence of several other members of the Supreme Council of the Southern jurisdiction.

The rite for the former commander in chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, came as a climax to an afternoon ceremony in which 21 Masons from Washington, Maryland and Virginia received the Knight Commander of the Court of Honor degree. A dinner followed, and afterward came the ceremony to which only thirty-third degree Masons were admitted.

Approximately 150 high-ranking Masons from the District and neighboring States were present for the festive celebration. In addition there were a number of distinguished guests not included in the Southern jurisdiction. Among these were Ahmed Mouhter Bey, Turkish Ambassador; Charles A. Davila, Roumanian Minister; Senator Charles S. Deneen, of Illinois; Senator Arthur Robinson, of Indiana, and Representative George Darrow, of Philadelphia, United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder was also present.

Among the members of the Supreme Council present last night were William Bruce Price, of Baltimore; Robert Crump, of Richmond, Va., and Charles E. Rosenbaum, lieutenant grand commander, and H. W. Witcover, secretary-general of the council.

The Supreme Council voted to confer the thirty-third degree upon General Pershing last October during its biennial session, but the ceremony was necessarily delayed because the general was abroad at the time.

Some of the visiting Masons came from as far away as California, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Texas and Massachusetts.

Wales Enjoys Lounge After Storms at Sea

S. S. Kenilworth Castle, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales, traveling to South Africa for a hunting trip, came on deck today for his first lounge since leaving Southampton. Calm and summery weather succeeded the violent storms that have buffeted the ship since she entered the Bay of Biscay.

The prince mingled freely with the other first-class passengers and watched the deck games with amusement. His highness looked very fit and seemed to have recovered from his malaria inoculations.

Glider Remains Aloft For Nearly Six Hours

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Hawley Bowlus, America's champion glider pilot, today remained aloft in a glider 5 hours, 27 minutes and 1 3-5 seconds.

Caught out over the ocean during a lull in the wind, Bowlus soared to a forced landing on shore at a point lower than and not within 150 feet of his take-off place. Because he did not land within the imaginary circle of 300 feet diameter, Bowlus forfeited his chance to claim an official glider endurance record, flight officials said.

Helen Wills Moody Ends Her Honeymoon Cruise

San Pedro, Calif., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Frederick Moody, jr., and his bride, Helen Wills Moody, returned to Los Angeles Harbor today ending a twelve-day honeymoon cruise on the yawl Galatea in Mexican coast waters.

The couple, who started their southward cruise on Christmas Day, said they had spent most of their time off Ensenada, Lower California, fishing.

of the Barbers International Union, and Frances J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America.

This committee, Green said, will begin work at once in making plans for "carrying the gospel of unionism" south of the Mason and Dixon line.

It is to arrange an itinerary for Mr. Green to visit strategic cities in the South for the purpose of addressing mass meetings and to initiate actual organization work.

During the day, presidents of seven of the Southern federations of labor made addresses, outlining the necessity for immediate organization.

Addresses also were made by a number of national officials, who told of plans for organizing in the various groups affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The Southern presidents who spoke were James L. Hurst, of Alabama; J. Adams, of Arkansas; O. L. Petry, of Georgia; T. A. Wilson, of North Carolina; Dowell E. Patterson, of South Carolina; Paul J. Aymon, of Tennessee, and R. T. Bowden, of Virginia.

Among other speakers were Thomas McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America; George Googe, of Savannah, Ga., personal representative in the South of William Green; W. M. Cohn, president of the International Association of Upholsterers; Fred Baer, president of the International Association of Firefighters; Miss Florence C. Hanson, secretary of the Federation of Teachers; Miss Matilda Lindsay, representing the Women's Trade Union League, and Mrs. F. M. Campbell, representing the Garment Workers.

Mr. McMahon, in his address, pointed to the former fights in the organization of textile unions and declared "we expect to have to fight here."

Mr. Green's address was featured by the declaration that "We believe that if we are permitted to function in the South, we could develop cooperation and understanding between employers and employees. We come with a hand of friendship."

Mr. Green also assailed communistic labor organizations, declaring that there must be a "never-ceasing, never-ending conflict between the American Federation of Labor and these organizations."

The third series of Voters' Service programs, arranged by the National League of Women Voters and, the National Broadcasting Co., will be inaugurated by Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, who speaks on "Education by Radio" from WEAF and a network of stations, but not WRC, at 6:45 o'clock. Judge Ira E. Robinson, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission since 1928, is to introduce Dr. Wilbur.

Robert Ripley, of "Believe It or Not!" fame; Lita Grey Chaplin, Welcome Lewis, soprano; Margaret Schilling, soprano; Peter Higgins, Irish tenor, and Ken Murray and his gang will be heard at 10:30 o'clock tonight during the R-K-O Hour.

A radio dramatization of Edith Fitzgerald's short story, "Flash," will be the presentation during the Evready Hour at 9 o'clock.

"Chinatown," "Darktown Strutters Ball" and "Pony Boy," three old favorites arranged in medley form by Director Harry Reser, add a burst of sparkling notes to the Eskimos' broadcast at 10 o'clock. Reser will contribute a banjo solo to the presentation.

Mme. Frances Alda, famous soprano who is retiring from the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be featured in the Australian program scheduled from station WJZ at 8:30 o'clock. Time Alda will sing a group of concert selections and two traditional songs of the Maoris, the aboriginal inhabitants of Australia, her native country. This program will also be heard through WLW and KDKA.

Station WMAL will begin a feature at 11:30 o'clock this morning which for the next 40 weeks will bring before its microphone a staff of women experts discussing beauty, fashion, interior decoration, food and other ways and means to make the home attractive. "How Paris Launches Style" will be the theme of Miss Pauline Smith this morning.

Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, will broadcast another in his series of "Timely Topics" over WMAL and the Columbia Broadcasting System at 11:15 o'clock.

Another speaker from the station will be heard at 6:15 o'clock in the evening, when Dr. Harry J. Patterson, director of the experiment station and dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Maryland, will discuss "Some Observations on European Agriculture."

A foxtrot medley from the current musical comedy, "Fifty Million Frenchmen," is featured in the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman hour at 9 o'clock. Sophocles T. Papas will present a banjo and mandoline program at 6:30 o'clock.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:40 p. m., and 10:30 p. m. to 11:40 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:40 a. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Astrological conditions will be unfavorable the first half of this day and it would be well to cram all important negotiations into the afternoon's schedule. You may be deceived by some one of the opposite sex.

A child born on this January 7 will have a wayward, changeable disposition, but it will be above board in everything. It will be mischievous, but not malicious, and very kind hearted and good natured. It will require a careful education.

You possess many homely, but none the less admirable traits, which enable you to appreciate the finer things of life. There is absolutely nothing superficial about you, and you intensely dislike superficiality in others. You have too high a sense of honor to permit you to play any of the games of deception. You would rather become a chronic failure than to cheat any other human being out of the rights. This does not mean, however, that you are in any way a door mat, or that you are willing to play anything but a fifty-fifty game. Your charity, your play, and your business are all kept separate, but they all are savored with honesty, justice and squareness.

You do not lead an aimless life. You have both ambition and energy. You have practical aspirations, coupled with the powers of practical executive. You work hard to materialize your aspirations and inspirations.

It will not be your fault if your home life, and if you marry, your married life, is not a happy one. You realize that love, trust and true companionship are the only things that make life worth living, and you will not throw them away for an idle adventure, a shadow, or for anything else in this foolish old world.

Successful people born January 7:

1. Israel Putnam, Revolutionary general.
2. Millard Fillmore, thirteenth President of the United States.
3. T. De Witt Talmage, Presbyterian clergyman.
4. Charles H. Davis, artist.
5. Louise Imogen Guiney, author and poet.
6. Mary E. Wilkins, author.

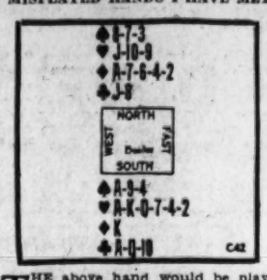
WORK'S BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET



THE above hand would be played at Auction Bridge with South the Declarer, contract one or more Hearts, depending upon whether South saw fit to start with a bid of one or preferred to make a pre-empting declaration.

In Contract, South probably would bid three Hearts and North four Hearts.

When the hand was played, West's opening lead was the Queen of Diamonds. Declarer won with the King in the South hand, led three rounds of Hearts, winning the last in the dummy and exhausing the adverse trumps which were divided 3-1. He then led his Ace of Diamonds from dummy, discarding a Spade from closed hand. He next led his Jack of Clubs from dummy and, as East had the King, it was captured and the adversaries made only one trick—a Spade.

Could Declarer have captured the thirteenth trick?

The Correct Play.

Declarer had a good chance to make thirteen tricks and a grand slam. He originally held six Diamonds in his two hands, leaving seven for the adversaries, which probably were divided 4-3. If so, Declarer can make three Diamond tricks and obtain two Spade discards, which, with the King of Clubs in the East hand, will produce a total of thirteen tricks as follows: one Spade, six Hearts, three Diamonds, three Clubs. It can do no harm to try for it.

To trick 2, South should lead a small Heart, winning in dummy. To trick 3, a small Diamond from dummy, South ruffing with an honor. To trick 4, a second small trump won in dummy; and trick 5, a second small Diamond ruffed with an honor in closed hand. If both adversaries have followed suit every time, only one adverse Diamond is left and dummy has the Ace and Seven, so Declarer, who has won five tricks, takes the remaining eight tricks as follows: a third small trump to trick 6 won in dummy; the Ace and Seven of Diamonds from dummy to tricks 7 and 8 on which closed hand discards two small Spades; then three Club tricks (9, 10 and 11); and finally South's Spade Ace and remaining Heart for the last two tricks.

Uncle Ray's Corner

AMONG the earth's interesting birds are some which spend a great deal of their time wading. These include the stork, the heron and the flamingo.

Flamingoes are wading birds with long, skinny legs.

Storks are widely known in Europe, and have been the subject of more than one story. In Holland, the people seem always glad to have them around. The birds are permitted to build nests on the roofs of houses. In return for this right, they kill rats and mice; but of course the storks do not do this for the sake of human beings. The object is to obtain food.

Storks sometimes fly as far north as Sweden. In the autumn, they turn south and usually go to Africa. A case is on record where a stork was "marked" while spending the summer in Germany. The next winter it was found in the Transvaal of Africa. This means that the bird flew more than 5,000 miles to reach its winter home. Some storks return to their same northern nest each year.

The heron is splendid at the art of fishing. Like all good fishermen, it is patient. Some of these birds have been known to spend hours waiting for "a bite." In this case, however, the fish does not do the biting; it is caught in the heron's long, sharp beak.

Several hundred years ago, people in Europe were in the habit of hunting herons with the aid of hawks. Tame hawks were let loose when a heron was sighted. Hawks seem to have about the same feeling for herons that cats have for mice. The tame hawk would dart up into the air and try to catch the heron for master or mistress. The heron would try to escape, but now and then it played a trick on its enemy. When the hawk was just about upon it, the heron would suddenly turn its beak around and let the other bird fly against it. This would probably mean the death of the hawk.

Flamingoes are wading birds with legs so long and skinny that you would almost think they would be ashamed to have them. They are very handy, however, when a flamingo wishes to wade into a river or lake and obtain a meal.

To make up for their outlandish legs, the flamingoes have feathers which give them a beautiful coat. The main color is usually red. That gives them their name, which comes from a Spanish word meaning "flaming." Some of these birds have a white or light pink color, but the reddish ones are much more common.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Paris, Jan. 6.

THE back decolletage is by no means entirely demode, but it just simply isn't as unanimous as it once was, if you see what we mean.

There is one rather extraordinary front decolletage that is seen hither and yon hereabouts—a very slender V, which goes, well, er-r-r-r, too far down the front to be so very nice! This is not to be construed, however, as an indication of either the mode or of very good taste, although it is just odd enough to be interesting if one doesn't mind being slightly theatrical and startling in appearance. Of course, it couldn't even be worn by the theatrical-minded unless the wearer were very, very slender.

But, the front decolletage that shows a nice roundness of neck and bosom is new and can be quite elegant. Look, then, to your evening gowns and see if they are turn-aboutable, as well as lengthenable and what-not.

• • • •

For your information or amusement! Jenny made it, and we are still trying to find out if any one bought it, much less wore it! And it was a lovely dress, too, all all-white satin and delicate gold braid. We should say off-hand that the back decolletage had disappeared with a bang, had we not seen the amused twinkle in Mme. Jenny's eyes when we exclaimed over this dress.

• • • •

"Women wear bathing suits and pajamas at the beaches all the time ——" and that, he believes, helps to make the watering resorts so popular!

You'll excuse us if we seem to be quoting the couturiers right and left these days—but some of them do tickle us to death, what?

• • • •

You'll like the leaflet, if you'll send for it. A stamped envelope to the Dare Department of the Washington Post will bring you the exact directions for making the most attractive sports jewelry. Yes, really, a necklace that matches your dress, for instance, made of button molds covered with the same material, or with bright paints and strung on silk cord or finely cut leather. It won't take you long, it won't cost you much—and it will amuse you.

The Couturiers.

Paquin. Oh-o-o-o-o, a hard one! Well, here goes—"Pack-ahn." The accent is on the last syllable, and the "ah" is not a very long sound. This one you'll have to say more than ten times, I'm sure.

The weekly Dare fashion letter, you know, is in the Washington Post each Sunday.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"The Girl With a Past."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I read all the letters written to you in the paper and now I am writing and wondering if you will answer: Is it wrong for a girl with a past to marry? I am such and am at a loss to know if I were asked to marry if I have a right to. I am now reformed. Do you suppose if there were children they would in later years come to know of it and hate me? Perhaps they would be shunned by other children. I am so dreadfully lonely and worry so as to what I shall do when I am old. Please help me if at all you can.

W. N. A. C

My dear child, some of the greatest mothers this sad, old world has ever known were women who had lived through the experiences, sordid and sorry, that we call for want of a better name "a past." Life has a way of being hard on some, and some are buried, helpless under its relentlessness. Others, however, great the pressure, never forget the stars. Sinking, defeated, they seem to lift their eyes from all that surrounds them, the darkness, the agony, the shame, and see aloft the priceless promise of release.

You are one of these. The children that you give to the world will not fall into the ways that were your ways. They will be reared by a serious and wise little mother who, having suffered, will understand life, the man who marries you will know that you are safe from temptations that an inexperienced girl might find too strong for her resistance. He will know, too, that yours is no negative virtue, the apathetic complacency of the untried. He will know that you have chosen virtue, fought to regain it, and that you will never again suffer it to be lost to you.

Should you marry? By all means, yes. But marry a man who is big enough to value the rare strength and courage and deathless determination that makes you a rare young woman in a loose and easy age. Tell him the truth without any facts. Merely what you have told me, and let him show by his reception of your statement just what sort of man he is.

For your encouragement I might state that recently I issued a questionnaire on this subject to 600 Y. M. C. A. men. Only 14 of the 600 would hold a girl's past experiences against her. All of the rest declared they would not even want to know. One of the men stated that he would not care "what life experience had produced the one woman" he desired for his wife. And this group of men is one of the finest to be found anywhere—the membership of Central Branch, Y. M. C. A. Brooklyn, N. Y. In that group are New York engineers, bridge builders, teachers, salesmen, typical men of the better class.

Be proud, dear girl, of your achievement in fighting for character and virtue in an age where such things are lightly thrown on the scrap book by those whose natural heritage they are.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Behind the Screens

By NELSON B. BELL.

UNIVERSAL PICTURES, personified for the occasion by Ted Schlanger, of the New York home office, who acted as master of ceremonies; Nate Sauber, manager of the Washington branch exchange; Howard Lichey, of the executive staff of the Rialto Theater in this city; Bob Wood and others serving as proxies for Carl Laemmle, Lou Metzger, general manager; M. Van Praag, general sales manager, and the rest of the high command, signalized the opening of their sales season for the new group of super-releases, of which "Hell's Heroes" is the first, by tossing a luncheon in the Red Room of the Hamilton Hotel yesterday afternoon at 1.

The guests of honor were the representative exhibitors of Washington and surrounding territory and members of the local and trade press.

Mr. Schlanger, in the course of his between-courses remarks, emphasized the merit of the forthcoming Universal product and centered attention upon the fact that the new slogan of the company is "Pictures—Not Promises." As a matter of fact, Universal, as I sense it, is making both!

One innovation recently inaugurated promises to strike a new note in the production of the audible newsreel. Universal has placed Graham McNamee, ace radio announcer, under contract to background their pictured news events with the same sort of terse description that he accords sporting and other events over the air. His speeches, as Mr. Schlanger confided to me as we nibbled, are minutely synchronized with the running time of the subject to which they pertain, so that there will be no liability of overlapping or incomplete exposition.

Universal estimates that with 10,000,000 radio receiving sets in use in the United States, each one listened to by an average of six persons, McNamee has a ready-made box-office appeal to some 60,000,000 people out of the country's total population of 120,000,000—which is by no means a negligible proportion.

Immediately following the luncheon the visiting exhibitors from out of town were whisked to the Rialto Theater to be guests of the management at the 2:30 projection of "Hell's Heroes."

A tasty collation was served, and a pleasant time was had by

But maybe that line has been used before!

I notice in reading over the Monday review of "It's a Great Life," I said, "The Theme of 'The Broken Melody' was its twin." At least that is what they said I said, but what I said was "The Broadway Melody"—I hope.

For the benefit of loge and balcony patrons of the Earle Theater, a sparkling, diamond-dust sign of generous proportions has been stretched clear across the slightly tilted floor of the stage to announce the coming week's attraction. My first impression from Sabbath afternoon's loge was that the device represented nothing more desirable than a modified throwback to the advertising drop curtain that furnished entr'acte sales talk in the fast-fading days of cheap vaudeville and popular priced road shows.

This must have been a mistaken notion, however, since no one strolled the aisles vending soft drinks, peanuts, popcorn and crackerjack. The two were always inseparable as ham and eggs, Lea and Perrin or any of the others of those indissoluble partnerships.

Since the continuation of their booking through a second week at the Fox caused the laying off of the "Jazz Buccaneers" unit, routed in this week by Panchon and Marco, Horace Heidt and his Californians will be hosts to the idle "Idea" tonight at 10:30, at an elaborate party to be staged at the Lotus Restaurant. There will even be a special bone for Lobo, the sagacious German shepherd.

Mr. Heidt and his Californians, by the way, were Movietoned on the steps of the Capitol yesterday morning, in company with Senator Samuel Shortridge, of their native State and other members of the California delegation. They first played "California, Here I Come," and then, at the request of Senator Shortridge, sang Leland Stanford's college song in compliment to President Hoover, with the senator wielding the baton.

During a recent midwinter vacation in New England, W. A. Whitney, a member of The Post's motion picture reviewing staff, witnessed "The Show of Shows," current at the Metropolitan, projected upon an oversize screen by means of a trick lens, but not by virtue of any wide-angle photography. The result was abyamal and I was accordingly warned against the picture as an abominable example of color work, recording, photography and everything else that Mr. Whitney could think of at the moment.

Last week he viewed he same subject at the Met and I find a note in part as follows on my desk:

"I was certainly amazed at the difference between the picture as it is presented at the Metropolitan and the way I was introduced to it at the Washington Street Olympia, Boston. Outside of a vague (and I don't mean perhaps!) similarity between the two, it might have been an entirely different picture that I saw in Washington.

"The clarity of photography and the definition with which it is projected are not among the least of the 'Show's' merits, but they are absolutely lost when that extra lens is placed before the projector for throwing on the large screen. Our Nell was treated kindly compared to the act of the Boston management!

"I had formed, too, an erroneous impression of the songs, which are far better reproduced here than in Boston, although the difference was not apparent until I visited the Metropolitan.

"To speak of the enlarged-screen version and the proper one in the same breath is an injustice to excellent entertainment."

CHICAGO BUDGET CUT STIRS WIDE PROTEST

FIREMEN GO TO COURT

Chicago, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Prediction by Health Commissioner Arnold Kegel that there would be a huge increase in contagion among school children, filing of a suit by a group of firemen to prevent their dismissal, and demand by the Chicago Medical Society that the health department appropriation be reconsidered furnish echoes of Chicago's reduced 1930 budget today.

Kegel asserted that the slashed funds for his office would necessitate dismissal of several nurses and physicians and make it impossible to detect disease among children in schools until they had become so ill they had to go home.

The firemen's suit, filed by three of them in behalf of the 200-odd dismissed, alleged that they were discharged without being given adequate reason. Mayor Thompson, Commissioner Goodrich and the civil service commission were made defendants.

City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson said that January payrolls could not be met until the tax levy ordinance had been passed and until he had been reimbursed, with 1930 tax anticipation warrants, for $11,665,106 he said he had advanced above the corporate fund, from other city funds.

At the board of education, a $2,500,000 cut was being considered.

Criticism of Police Commissioner Russell and Fire Commissioner Goodrich for dismising 473 policemen and 200 firemen was voiced by a group of aldermen who sponsored the economy budget.

Cook County employes failed to receive their regular pay checks today for the latter half of December and there was no indication when they might expect them.

Banks have indicated that they considered illegal the recently passed 1930 budget, which put all county departments on a tenmonth basis.

Black Hand Plot Seen As Chicagoan Is Shot

Chicago, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Louis N. Antonucci, 45, father of six children, was shot four times and probably fatally wounded today, the victim, police believe, of Black Hand terrorists.

A week ago, his wife said, Antonucci received a telephone call demanding money. He purchased a revolver for protection. The attendant at Antonucci's garage, aroused by pistol shots, found his employer slumped in his automobile shot through the head, chest and arm. His revolver was missing. The attendant said he saw three men running from the place. Mrs. Angelo Petitti, whose husband is serving a 25-year term for the kidnaping of Billy Ranieri, is the godmother of the youngest Antonucci child.

BOND IS DISCHARGED FOR NICKY ARNSTEIN

INDICTED 10 YEARS AGO

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Jules W. Arnold, better known as Nicky Arnstein, whose marriage last October in Quebec to a wealthy Chicago woman was learned today, is now at liberty without bond for the first time in more than ten years.

The $25,000 bond under which he has been at liberty while still under indictment in connection with the theft of $5,000,000 worth of securities October 1, 1919, was discharged today by Judge Morris Koenig in general sessions court.

Under the rules of criminal procedure, Arnold may now move within the next two months for dismissal of the indictment. The bond was discharged on recommendation of the district attorney.

Convicted in Capital in 1921.

Arnold was convicted in Washington May 4, 1921, of bringing stolen property into the city, served two years in Leavenworth Prison and paid a fine of $10,000.

In March, 1920, while he was under indictment in Washington, he was indicted on charges of having stolen the $5,000,000 worth of securities and of having received stolen goods in connection with their theft, and it was for this indictment that the $25,000 bond has been held all these years.

James G. Wallace, assistant district attorney, told the court today that the only evidence against Arnold was the testimony of Irving Gluck, charged with having participated in the theft, and the statement of a porter on a Washington train that he saw Arnstein with Gluck on the train.

Did Not See Securities, Claim.

In the Washington trial Gluck testified that neither Arnold nor Nicholas Cohen, who traveled to Washington with them, saw the securities until they reached the Willard Hotel.

Mr. Wallace told the court today that there was not enough evidence that Arnold had ever had the stolen securities in his possession sufficient to bring him to trial.

Earlier today it was learned that Arnold, formerly husband of Fanny Brice, had married October 18, in Quebec, Mrs. Isabelle McCullough, said to be wealthy, and that they now were living in the fashionable Sutton place district.

Three Die in Australia In Flying Boat Mishap

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Capt. the Hon. Hugh Grosvenor and two companions were killed today when a flying boat in which they were traveling made a nose dive into Port Philip Bay.

Capt. Grosvenor was heir and only son of Lord Stalbridge. He was aide de camp to the Governor of South Australia. It had been recently announced that the young man and the two pilots intended to make a flight from Australia to England in an effort to break the record of Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith.

Two-Inch Knife Taken From Stomach of Babe

Greenville, S. C., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—A 2-inch knife, swallowed four days ago, was removed from the stomach of the 7-month-old daughter of R. A. Helams, of Graycourt, at the Salvation Army Hospital today.

The operation was pronounced a success.

At the beginning of his farewell tour in the revival of "Sherlock Holmes," Mr. William Gillette had the honor of playing last night in the National Theater before one of those audiences assembled only on what the phraseologists term "an auspicious occasion."

There were representatives of all worth-while in the various professions and social circles of Washington; of all the living generations, elderly ladies and gentlemen who had seen Mr. Gillette when he was a boy, moderns who remembered the premiere of "Sherlock Holmes," their sons and daughters who were witnessing their first presentation of the old character, and grandsons hardly able to understand the electricity of the moment—a thrill that comes only once in a long while before the proscenium arch.

As for the star, William Gillette walked through his old part with the finesse of the practiced thespian, the embodiment of an ageless man; Sherlock Holmes of the infinite.

The play, though it creaks in spots, nevertheless has that magic about it that few of its more sophisticated competitors boast. It still stands as a great detective story shaped for the stage.

Certainly curiousity played a prominent part in the assemblage. Everybody wanted to see just how Mr Gillette would acquit himself; how an old stage vehicle, stored for years, would travel over the boards in this fast moving age; how the old folks enjoyed themselves in the long, long ago.

Well, Mr. Gillette stepped out and played his part in the same subdued fashion he employed in the hey dey remember him then; the old play of his youth, according to those who proved to be substantial and that people of one age are about the same as another: they all like to see the hero out-wit the villian. Human nature, then, remains about the same from year to year.

So far as concocting a melodrama goes, Mr. Gillette, who wrote this play with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, originator of the Sherlock Holmes stories, proves a master in stage technic. There are few dull moments in the play—and plenty times when the heart goes pit-a-pat, watching the great detective face danger. Even though common sense foretells that Sherlock Holmes holds the winning hand there is always an element of keen excitement in his adventures—which makes for old-fashioned hokum, as they call it.

None of the printed tales of Conan Doyle deals with the exact situation set forth in the stage play—save that old Prof. Moriarty and Sherlock come to a death grapple. Incidentally, the first stage villain in all these United States has the character of Moriarty—none other than oJhn Miltern, who makes of it a masterful piece of characterization. In fact, the supporting cast for Mr. Gillette is excellent, with Miss Peg Entwistle playing the pivotal role of Miss Faulkner, about whose plight all the action centers.

There hasn't been a night like this in the theater hereabouts since the World War. A veritable demonstration greeted Mr. Gillette after each act and when the curtain finally rolled down on the third some daring souls stood up and demanded a curtain speech. In his quiet, courteous way, the venerable star came before the stage apron. This, then, was the perfect touch; a speech entirely different from the common run. So everybody, after the denouement, after the threads of excitement had been gathered up, the play over, went home happy. The thing to do now is to have more farewell tours like this, with Mr. Gillette greeted every year or so by his admirers. It makes for grand theater, for illuminated pages in the memory books.

Peaches Browning To Get $188,999

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Mrs. Frances (Peaches) Browning today concurred in a motion presented in Supreme Court by Edward W. Browning, her husband, whereby she can collect $188,999.99 from his holdings as her dower rights.

The motion asks that Browning be permitted to sell four apartment houses and that Mrs. Browning's dower rights, one-third, be impressed upon the property.

The motion also asks the court's approval of a report made by Philip J. Sinnott, special referee, which fixed the value of the property and the amount of Mrs. Browning's interest in it.

In her testimony before the referee Mrs. Browning said all the property she owns now is worth $15,500 and that her income is $1,012.50 a year. She said she had debts of $7,800.

She and Browning, married in 1926, became legally separated subsequently.

Two Youths Killed In Texas Rum War

Alleged Hijackers' Bodies Are Discovered in Rio Grande.

McAllen, Tex., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The slaying of two youths and perhaps a third in what authorities believe was a fight between Mexican border rum-runners and hijackers was disclosed here today.

Bodies of Juan Gonzales and Salvador Bruno, who had been shot and beaten to death, were recovered from the Rio Grande, and search was continued for Cipriana Ybarro, also believed to have been slain. Officials said investigation indicated the killings were in reprisal for the hijacking of a cargo of liquor smuggled across the border.

Two murder charges were filed against Manuel Zamora, and a second suspect believed to have fled into Mexico. Zamora had boasted, said Assistant Attorney Rogers Kelly, who filed the charges, that he "would get even with them for hijacking our liquor."

Benefits Are Outlined By World Labor Bureau

"The International Labor Office has created completely new regime of friendly cooperation for improving conditions of life and labor throughout the world," Leifur Magnusson, director of the Washington bureau, declared yesterday afternoon before the Twentieth Century Club at the Young Women's Christian Association.

The record of friendly comparisons and rivalry includes 29 measures agreed upon by thirteen labor conferences since the first in Washington in 1919, a total of 400 government signatures to labor treaties, and a working staff of 400 men and women from 36 nations," he said.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Learning to drive an automobile is considered by the traffic authorities to be a serious task. If a motorist desires to teach a friend how to drive, he must not only be licensed, but the regulations further prescribe how many persons may be in the car while the lesson is in progress.

The instructor must be seated beside his pupil and no one else may be in the car. One purpose of the regulation is to prevent an unlicensed driver in the case of a joy-riding party giving the excuse that he was learning how to operate the car.

Example: A driver goes out with a friend to teach him how to drive. The pupil's brother goes along to observe the lesson. The regulation is violated though the third person may occupy a rear seat and in no wise interfere with the safe operation of the car.

Hundreds of Brave Boys and Girls Are Joining The Knighthood of Youth

Only men who were brave and true could be knights in the olden days and only brave little boys and girls can be knights in this great national order, sponsored in Washington by The Washington Post. A real knight had to prove his bravery by serving first in the ranks of page and esquire and boys and girls in the Knighthood of Youth have to prove their courage in similar ranks before they receive the title of "knight" and higher degrees.

Send in the Coupon Below And Enroll as a "Page"—As You Prove Your Bravery You Will Be Promoted.

Note to Parents and Teachers

The Knighthood of Youth is a national organization, under the auspices of the National Child Welfare Association, for youthful character building. The Washington Post is aiding their important work by devoting much time and space in its columns to the promotion of this movement in Washington and nearby communities. Charts, buttons and other material are furnished at actual cost by the association. After thorough investigation this newspaper has endorsed this program of character building as the simplest, most effective and acceptable of any method yet devised.

REAL knights did not prove their courage so much in battle as they did in the ordinary affairs of life. Self-sacrifice is the basis of all true bravery and a man proved that he was worthy to becomee a knight by going without many pleasures and comforts, that he otherwise might have had, and by doing many unpleasant tasks. Many times a knight would have preferred to stay in the security and comfort of his castle rather than to have ridden out to face hardships in the interest of some one else—but of course, he did the right thing and people loved and honored him for it.

There are many things that little folks do not like to do, and grown people realize that a boy or girl who does these things pleasantly and willingly has the courage that makes him deserving of the title of "knight."

It's a lot of fun being a "knight," too—but just wait 'til you get the beautiful green and white pin that identifies you as a "page" and the "chart of adventures" that tell just what you are to do to become an "esquire" and afterwards a real "knight" . . . Your first "adventure" will be to earn ten cents to send in with the coupon for your chart and button or to give an example of knightly self-sacrifice by using the money which you had intended to spend for candy or some other pleasure . . . Act quickly and be one of the first little "knights" in your school or neighborhood.

COPPER STOCKS RISE WHILE SALES SLUMP

Business Losses Shown by Report of Woolworths Disappoint Many.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES SAG

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The stock market continued to drift about today in the inconsequential eddies of professional trading. A few shares, notably the coppers, responded to favorable trade news, but price trends generally were narrow and indefinite. Trading still held at a low ebb, the day's turnover exceeding 2,000,000 shares by a scant margin.

A moderate rally during the morning was checked by bearish pressure. But trading turned extremely dull and operators for the decline withdrew before the close. Late in the day the general list rallied in sympathy with the copper shares, and closing quotations were steady to firm.

Further evidence of the January ease in money rates appeared in a sag in the call-loan rate to 4½ per cent, equaling the 1929 minimum, after renewals at 5. Foreign exchange rates continued to decline, making an early resumption of the outflow of gold improbable, although international bankers still predict a rise in the rates for leading European currencies as the month progresses, in keeping with the normal January tendency.

Copper News Creates Optimism.

The outstanding item of the day's business news was a report from copper trade circles that some 50,000,000 pounds of the red metal had been taken for first-quarter delivery within the last few days at the 18-cent-price level. This quieted the uneasiness of recent weeks over the ability of producers to maintain the 18-cent level, and the copper shares moved forward in the most emphatic manner in some time.

Woolworth's report of December sales, showing a decline of almost 3 per cent from December, 1928, was rather disappointing, but the facts that there was one less Saturday in the 1929 month, and that the weather was less favorable, make the comparison less displeasing than it appears at first glance. Such good tidings as came to hand included the inauguration of dividends on Hershey Chocolate common at the annual rate of $5.

In the coppers, Anaconda, Calumet & Arizona, Calumet & Hecla, Grandy, Howe Sound, Magma, Inspiration, and U. S. Smelting mounted about 2 to 4 points. Hershey Chocolate sold up more than 5 points on the dividend announcement, and closed up 3½ net.

Johns Manville Rises 6 Points.

Johns Manville mounted about 6 points in response to a favorable earnings estimate. Michigan Steel and Celotex were strong specialties, mounting about 7 points. American Machine & Foundry, Mathieson Alkali, Doty, International Combustion issues, National Biscuit, and Underwood Elliott also made substantial headway. The floating supply of Underwood Elliott is said to have become scarce since the dividend rate was raised to $5 a share, and accumulation is understood to be under way by interests close to the management. Fox Film A rallied 1½ points in a large turnover, but closed up only ¼ net. U. S. Steel fluctuated in a range of a couple of points, and closed steady at 169¼.

Allied Chemical lost 6 points, Auburn Auto nearly 9, and American Tobacco, Beatrice Creamery, J. I. Case, General American Tank, Eastman Kodak, Gillette, Lima Locomotive, Pullman and Woolworth lost about 2 to 4 points. It was notable that several of the railway equipments and specialties, strong last week, encountered realizing. Information that there was no near prospect of a merger of Pullman and General American Tank depressed those shares. Motors eased a little after the mild bull demonstration with the automobile show opening last week. Utilities and rails were dull. In the rails, such issues as Southern Pacific and Frisco did not appear on the tape at all.

Commodities moved in narrow ranges. Wheat was a little firmer in response to a decrease in the visible supply and renewed export demand. Cotton sagged moderately.

In the sagging foreign exchanges, sterling cables were quoted at $4.87⅛, off 3-16.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—After holiday steady during the greater part of today's session cotton weakened in the late trading under liquidation coupled with local, New Orleans and Southern selling. March contracts sold off from 17.16 to 17.02 compared with 17.11 at the close of Saturday and closed at the lowest, with the general market closing barely steady at a net decline of 8 to 11 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 2 points under Southern selling and some liquidation which appeared to have accumulated over the week-end. These offerings were quite readily absorbed by trade buying and covering promoted by the relatively steady showing of Liverpool, however, and prices worked up a few points later in the morning. January advanced to 16.99 or 2 points net higher while May sold up to 17.39 and October to 17.62 making net gains of about 3 to 6 points on the more active positions. The comparatively light demand was supplied with these figures, and the market eased during the afternoon under realizing or liquidation while a little more Southern selling developed during the last hour.

Closing quotations were the lowest of the day with January at 16.86, May at 17.25 and October at 17.51.

The early advance was accompanied by reports that cotton was offered less freely in the South and that the basis was steady or a shade higher in some instances, but after the initial demand from the trade had been supplied, the market appeared to be without much support. The continued decline in the price of silver as likely to interfere with the sale of cotton goods to China, came in for considerable comment later, notwithstanding the rather more encouraging showing of the Liverpool cables.

Cables from Liverpool said that Continental and Bombay liquidation there had been absorbed by covering, but added that the political news from India was causing uneasiness in Manchester. Traders evidently found no particular inspiration in reports from the domestic goods markets and except for spurts of business at the opening and again at the close trading was generally quiet.

Port receipts today 23,336. United States port stocks 2,607,298, exports 30,323, making 4,415,455 so far this season.

FIRMNESS PREVAILS DURING BOND SALES

U.S. SECURITIES ADVANCE

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The trend of interest rates was downward today, but bond prices, after an encouraging start, ran into a dull market and many forenoon gains disappeared in the later hours, as a whole, however, the list was firm, and the easier tone of money was reflected in a narrow advance by the United States governments.

Call funds were in plentiful supply at the renewal rate of 5 per cent and the charge fell to 4½ shortly after noon, with money available outside at 4 per cent. Time accommodations commanded 4¾, a shade below the recent figures.

One of the day's features was the movement of the French government bonds. Both the 7½s and the 7s exceeded their 1929 highs on good buying support, but the rally did not hold and the latter obligation finished a point below the Saturday close. German loans, both government and corporate, were moderately strong throughout the session. The foreign group in general proved to be in considerable favor.

Speculative and semispeculative domestic corporation bonds, particularly industrials and specialties, enjoyed an upward turn. A few foreign sugars, which suffered in the recent year-end tax selling, were in this group, which also included Indiana Limestone 6s, Hoe & Co. 6½s, Florida East Coast 5s, National Radiator 6½s, and Pathe 7s. The gains ran from 1 to 3 points.

Railroad mortgages led the early upturn, but were mixed at the close. With net changes small and gains and losses well balanced, utilities behaved similarly.

Convertibles ruled steady during most of the day and then softened. American Telephone 4½s declined ¾, Allegany 5s of 1944, ½, and American I. G. Chemical 5½s, 1. Missouri Pacific 5½s gained a point.

U. S. OFFICIALS SEE BANK LAW WORRIES

If Expansion of Firms Into Other States Is Allowed, Problems Will Arise.

U.S. FIFTH DISTRICT DATA

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Should national branch banking receive congressional approval, many obstacles must be removed and much compromise be effected in carrying out a successful arrangement of the plan. Such was the comment of Treasury officials yesterday regarding new congressional methods under tentative consideration whereby branch expansion would be limited to State boundaries instead of those of Federal Reserve districts or trade areas overlapping the latters' lines.

It was shown that entry of one national branch system into another State might be countered with the request of a State system for a similar privilege in the home territory of the expanding institution, this being cited as one of several situations to be considered in enactment of the plan.

National banks of the District of Columbia would not benefit should the State boundary plan become law, but if a suggestion of Comptroller of the Currency Pole is followed in prospective legislation they could establish branches in Virginia and Maryland or in broader trade areas within the Fifth Federal Reserve District.

Pole Offers Legislation.

Comptroller General Pole's suggestions would provide legislation permitting national banks, with the comptroller of the currency's approval, to establish branches within trade areas of cities where they are situated, such being, in some cases, coextensive with Federal Reserve district lines; in others, of more limited extent, but never extending beyond Federal Reserve district boundaries save in cases where a trade area of one district might enter another. Banks, however, Mr. Pole advised, should not be permitted to establish branches in another city where a Federal Reserve bank or a branch thereof existed.

Gains for the week of $273,000,000 in loans and investments, $529,000,000 in net demand deposits and $64,000,000 in time deposits with decreases of $97,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks and $10,000,000 in Government deposits were shown yesterday in the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities as of December 31.

Loans on securities increased $373,000,000, and all other loans declined $30,000,000 at all reporting banks. Holdings of United States Government securities also receded $117,000,000 at all reporting banks, while those of other securities advanced $45,000,000 in all of them.

The principal changes in borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks for the week comprised decreases of $38,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, $19,000,000 at New York, $16,000,000 at Cleveland, $11,000,000 at Boston, $9,000,000 at St. Louis, and $7,000,000 at Kansas City.

Retail trade in the local Federal Reserve district showed some interesting developments in November, according to the monthly review of Chairman William W. Horton, of the local district. Reports from 30 representative department stores scattered throughout the district showed sales averaging higher than sales in November last year, but practically all of the gain was in Baltimore, Washington and West Virginia stores. The Baltimore stores reported increases averaging 12.1 per cent, an exceptional increase in view of stock figures averaging 6.4 per cent less than those of a year ago. Some of the Washington stores did almost as well as the Baltimore stores, but two firms which reported lower figures in November than in November, 1928, brought Washington's average increase down to six-tenths of 1 per cent.

The rate of stock turnover in the district has been more rapid this year than during the first eleven months of 1928, except in Washington, where the figure is slightly lower. Averaging all the stores together, stocks have been turned 2.969 times this year prior to November 30, in comparison with only 2.820 times in the corresponding eleven months last year. Collections in the district in November averaged better than in either October this year or November, 1928, and this is also true of the Baltimore stores. The Washington collections were better in November than in October, but not up to those of November last year, while collections in the other cities' stores in November showed a decline from those of October, but were better than collections in November last year.

Insurance Directors Reelected.

All directors of the Firemen's Insurance Co., of Washington and Georgetown, were reelected yesterday as follows: Edward C. Baltz, secretary of the Perpetual Building Association; Bruce E. Clark, builder; Millard T. Dixon, secretary of the National Permanent Building Association; Parke A. Galleher, attorney; William M. Hoffman, president of the company; J. Logan Hopkins, real estate man; Albert W. Howard, vice president and secretary of the company; Charles H. Kindle, secretary of the American Building Association; John H. Snyder, Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co.; Schuyler S. Symons, secretary of the Northeast Building Association; Floyd P. Waggaman, Waggaman & Brawner, Inc.; Albert W. Walker, president Allen E. Walker Co., and James M. Woodward, secretary of the Home Building Association.

Louisville has been selected as the 1930 convention city of the Financial Advertisers Association, according to an announcement made yesterday by A. E. Bryson, of Halsey, Stuart & Co., president of the association. The convention will be held from December 17 to 20.

The growing importance of the South in the financial field is reflected in the fact that this is the second successive time the association is holding its convention south of the Mason and Dixon Line, the 1929 convention having been held in Atlanta.

District Exchange Data.

The Washington Stock Exchange opened the week with slightly improved business in the stock division but bonds were neglected, their sales aggregate of $1,700 representing a $1,800 recession from Saturday's volume. There was a 102-share turnover in stocks which was seventeen shares in advance of the previous session.

Seven shares of National Capital Bank sold at 250, a 20-point gain. All bond sales were in the Washington Gas issues.

Property investment is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railways, including materials, supplies and cash. The net railway operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals but before interest and other fixed charge are paid.

District Bankers to Meet.

Officers and members of the board of governors of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, will meet tomorrow evening to hear the report of the educational committee on the curriculum of the second semester.

An "Age of Alloys," destined to effect many revolutionary changes in modern life and ushered in by recent discoveries in great research laboratories of America and Europe, is described by F. J. Griffiths, chairman of the Central Alloy Steel Corporation, writing in the January issue of Nation's Business.

Griffiths, an international authority on alloy steel, is designated head of the research company of the Republic Steel Corporation, the new $350,000,000 Midwest steel merger, of which Central Alloy is to be a part. His views are of special interest just now because of the adoption of the new stainless steel alloy on a number of well known 1930 automobile models.

Virtually everything in which metal is used, from motor cars to skyscrapers, will be radically transformed by new alloys, many of which already have been perfected. Others are being developed by metallurgists here and abroad, according to Griffiths.

AMERICAN U. DROPS 4 FOR "OUTLAW" COURT GAME

BOUT PROPOSED TO DETERMINE THE WORST

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—A joke is a joke and Arthur Shires, the baseball person, has provided many hearty guffaws this winter, but it is just as well that the baseball training season will be here in a few weeks because he is beginning to repeat himself like a cowboy philosopher.

Mr. Shires has engaged in three professional prize fights, the second of which demonstrated that he could not fight to any noticable extent and a good time has been had by all concerned including the customers, up to and including the present.

But, if Mr. Shires continues his prize fighting, he will soon lose, if he has not already lost, his character as comedy relief in the very serious business of pugilism and become, through the subtle processes of crowd psychology, just another big clumsy bum falling on his face in the roped arena. Then the customers will quit laughing at him and start mocking, and Mr. Shires, being, as I read, a sensitive good-natured boy, with the finest of credentials from his pastor and the State senator of his home district in Texas, will be very unhappy.

Farewell to Pugilism Suggested.

As a farewell to pugilism for him I would suggest that Mr. James (Moon) Mullen, the gentleman who presented him in his first contest against Folding Dan Daley, the Human Telescope, arrange a contest between Mr. Shires and Quintin Romero Rojas, the South American raffle-board, who has been punched out of any semblance of his original form, if any, to determine whether there is any regularly ordained prize fighter in the trade whom Mr. Shires can lick. I offer this proposal with only the most kindly feeling for Quintin Romero, believing, that he would win this heat by a knockout of some sort by the end of the third round and that this would be a timely spiritual fillip to the most melancholy of all those abused, exploited and utterly hopeless unfortunates, the silent, patient stumble bums.

At the present time, Romero is reduced to the job of bull-pen catcher for Primo Carnera, who outweighs him about 100 pounds and beats him on the flanks and about his gnarled ears with fists as big as bowling balls.

Romero Mercifully Numbed, Mayhap.

The experts stand along the walls at the gymnasium in an atmosphere rank with smoke, winter green, sweaty training clothes and garlic fumes, studying Primo's foot work, which is remarkably agile, his conformation and his way of punching. It is only as though aside that one wonders whether Romero Rojas retains some sense of feeling or has been beaten so much that he has become numbed with a merciful faculty of insulation.

I have heard Mr. Dumb Daniel Morgan say that heavyweights have only two emotions, hunger and the promptings of romance, and he goes on to tell me that after a gladiator has been belted around for a certain length of time he feels only a vague reflection of the hurt, like an armadillo. But I am not sure that even an armadillo is not hurt by a kick on the tonneau. His apparent unconcern may be nothing but a disdainful pose, and so may Quintin Romero's.

Retrogression Is Very Speedy.

I recall Quintin Romero's first fights in this country in the old Garden, when he was young and hopeful, having read about Luis Angel Firpo's great prosperity in the American ring. Quintin was overmatched from the start, not steered by Tex Rickard as Firpo was, and in a rather short time he receded into the smaller centers of the ennobling sport, to be heard from only in 30-word dispatches on the A. P. sport wires stating that somebody had stopped him in so many rounds after a slashing contest before the Nonpariel A. C. the night before.

It has been so long since I heard of Romero's having won a bout that I would not be disposed to argue with any one who should arbitrarily elect him the least best heavyweight in regular practice nowadays, but in this I would make a distinction between

Scott Is Now Likely Foe of Sharkey

Garden Will Support Match With Other Heavy Fights.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The figure that won't be downed, lanky Phil Scott, of England, bobbed back into the picture today as the likeliest of all candidates to fight Jack Sharkey in Miami, Fla., February 27.

The official picture, after hours of discussion and argument, represented Frank Bruen, the general manager at Madison Square Garden, and Jimmy Johnston, dapper, pint-sized manager of the London fire laddie, at an impasse, with Johnston uninterested in the proceedings, and Bruen only lukewarm to the idea anyway.

The actual situation, however, is entirely different. Bruen today offered the match to Scott for a flat 20 per cent of the gate receipts, whereupon Johnston replied with a demand for a guarantee of $75,000 and the privilege of 25 per cent of the gate. Scott's manager finally agreed to take a flat offer of 25 per cent.

Johnson and Garden Hide Real Intent.

Such summary dismissal of a controversy so full of publicity possibilities is hardly in keeping with the very best principles of ballyhoo, however. Johnston maintained the attitude that he would rather not bother with Sharkey in Miami, preferring to wait until next summer, when the memory of the Englishman's hollow foul victory over Otto Von Porat has been dimmed by time. The Garden professes for the time being that it wants no part of Scott.

The conviction is growing, however, in the minds of both Bruen and his master, William F. Carey, that Sharkey can not be turned from his determination to fight only Scott or Max Schmeling in the second annual duel of the tropics.

Without Sharkey the Garden has decided there would be no adequate reason for a Miami fight. Since Schmeling is not only in disgrace with the New York State Athletic Commission, but is 4,000 miles away in Germany, the list has narrowed down to Scott alone. A general agreement on that score probably will be announced officially this week.

Attractive Supporting Card Planned.

The Garden has one more idea in mind. It plans to build the supporting card from the remainder of the first heavyweight fight with negotiations under way to display Young Stribling, Tuffy Griffiths, Victorio Campolo, Paulino Uzcudun and perhaps even Tommy Loughran, Otto Von Porat and Primo Carnera, along with Scott and Sharkey, if the shock does not seem likely to be too severe for the evening's entertainment.

Penn Looms as Threat For East's Court Title

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—It appears that aspirants for the Eastern intercollegiate basket ball championship will have to stop Pennsylvania. The Quakers began defense of the title they won in 1928 and 1929 on Saturday night by downing Yale, 27 to 23.

Three other league members will make their first starts of the season on Saturday night. Dartmouth, with a powerful array, tackles Penn at Philadelphia while Cornell, which has had no luck in preliminary games, tangles with the Princeton Tigers at Princeton. The fifth league team, Columbia, will not begin its season until January 15 when Princeton will be met here.

SLATED FOR MIAMI MATCH

White Sox May Bar Shires Unless Cleared of Charges

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Unless Charles Arthur (the Great) Shires clears his name of charges that he engaged in one "fixed" professional boxing match and had attempted another, he may find himself barred forever from organized baseball.

The White Sox management, which has remained silent throughout the great one's invasion of the cauliflower ranks, today made it clear it would not talk about a 1930 contract with the punch-slinging first baseman until he had gained a clean bill from the Michigan and Illinois State Athletic Commissions, which are investigating charges against him.

"Shires must clean up those charges before the White Sox will be ready to discuss a contract with him," said Secretary Harry Grabiner, of the South Side Club. "Too, he has to settle up his suspension which resulted from his last fist fight with former Manager Russell Blackburne last season. I have no date with Shires and have not seen him. When the time comes we will be ready to handle the situation."

Judge Landis Remains Silent.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, has refused to discuss the Shires case beyond the intimation that he would have something to say if the charges against Shires were upheld by either the Michigan or Illinois State Athletic Commissions. However, it is known that he is none too well pleased over the affair.

Meanwhile, Shires was ready to tell his side of the story before the commissions. He is slated to appear before the Illinois Commission tomorrow in an attempt to prove that his first professional match with Dangerous Dan Daly, of Cleveland, was on the square. Daly said he took a "dive" for Shires because he feared he would be "taken for a ride" if he failed to yield to a demand for a "dive," which he said, was made by Shires' representative.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois Commission, has served Shires with a summons to appear before him tomorrow afternoon. Promoter Jim Mullen, of Chicago, who conducted the Shires-Daly match, said he would insist that Daly make the charges before the commission in person.

Michigan Has Banned Shires.

Shires already is under the ban of the Michigan commission on a charge that a fake fight was attempted at Detroit between him and Battling Criss. The Michigan commission, however, has granted him a rehearing at Lansing Thursday.

Shires was in St. Paul tonight, preparing for his fight there tomorrow night. Friends said he would appear before the Illinois Commission tomorrow on time and then fly back to St. Paul to keep his engagement there.

Manager Says Shires Will Not Appear.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Denial that Arthur (The Great) Shires will be in Chicago tomorrow to appear before the Illinois Boxing Commission was made tonight by his manager, Nessie Blumenthal.

Mrs. Blumenthal, the manager said, will notify the commission tomorrow morning that Shires can not appear before it until after his Detroit fight, January 10.

"From St. Paul we will go to Chicago and then direct to Lansing, Mich., where Shires appears before the Michigan Boxing Commission January 9," Blumenthal said. "Shires fights at Detroit January 10, and from there we will head back to Chicago."

College Pitching Giant Signs With Yankees

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees announced today the signing of Fred Asbeck, of Lakewood, Ohio, giant University of Michigan pitcher, who stands nearly 6 feet 6 inches.

The Giants matched the Yankees and increased their roster by one, but the National League recruit is a catcher, Francis La Vegue, 19-year-old St. Louis boy, who played last summer with a California semipro outfit.

South American Tour For Giants Is Denied

Havana, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The New York Giants and Chicago White Sox have no plans for a tour of South America at the close of the 1930 baseball season, John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, recently credited with statements that such an expedition was planned, today denied that he had announced such plans.

"What I told a newspaper correspondent was that Comiskey (owner of the White Sox) had planned a South American tour in 1914 which was necessarily postponed because of the World War," said Mr. McGraw. "I then told this newspaper correspondent that since that time Comiskey and I had never been able to get together on the thing but that it would be a wonderful thing and that I had not forsaken the idea."

Local Baseball Writers Elect Frank H. Young

COLLEGE BASKET BALL

At Pittsburgh—University of Pittsburgh, 38; Montana State, 37.

At Minneapolis—Michigan, 32; Minnesota, 17.

Members of Nats May be Numbered

While he has no objections to the numbering of baseball players, as is the case in other sports and was done by the New York Yankees last season, President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, declares that he would prefer waiting for a league ruling to this effect before doing so.

"However," stated the Washington Club owner, "if it will help the fans and baseball writers, I am willing to have numbers placed on our 1930 uniforms and will take up the question with E. S. Barnard, president of the American League."

This subject was brought to Griffith's attention by the Washington Chapter of Baseball Writers, which went on record at its annual meeting yesterday as favoring the numbering of the Washington players.

Chocolate Bout Balked By Florida Color Line

Today, however, Louis MacReynolds, chairman of the boxing commission, announced that he had sent a letter to Sam Kantor, Magnolia's assistant, refusing to sanction the battle.

The letter, MacReynolds said, pointed out that Miami had a place for Negro fighters to appear and that the rule would not be waived. Further, he said, mixed fighting would not be permitted under any circumstances.

The chairman said he had received many telephone calls from residents opposing the proposition and quoted one objector as saying that if the commission did not stop the fight "he knew an organization that would."

Pirates Fear Only Injury Bugaboo

Strength Added at First Base, Box and Behind Bat.

This is another of a series of stories on coming season prospects of major league baseball clubs:

By ELLIS RAWNSLEY.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—What Pittsburgh's Pirates will do in the coming National League race will depend, it seems, on how successful Jewelens will be in preventing his men from playing mummy with the club physician's bandages.

Injuries alone, according to the Pirate management, kept the club from finishing on the upswing of its see-saw with the Cubs last year. The plague started during spring training, nibbled at the squad all season, and then took up the job in earnest just in time to stop Ens, or so he thinks, from grabbing first place after taking over the team from Donie Bush near the end of the season.

There have been no unusual measures taken to dodge injuries, however; the superstructure of the squad has been altered a little, but the foundation remains pretty much as last year, Traynor at third, Grantham at second, the Waners and Comorosky in the field, Bartell at short, and Grimes, Kremer, and Petty the keystones of the pitching staff.

Gus Suhr and Al Bool Reinforcements.

What substructure faults appeared last season the Pirate management hopes it has plugged by swapping Earl Sheely and some cash for Gus Suhr, lively first baseman of the San Francisco Seals, and buying Al Bool from the Baltimore Internationals to dispute the receiving end of the battery with Ralph Hemsley, now rated the Pirate first string catcher. The veteran Hargreaves, according to rumblings from Forbes Field, is to go to any major leaguer wanting him, for a consideration.

The pitching staff, however, is at once Ens' pride and greatest concern. With Grimes' thumb and Kremer's leg behaving, Jess Petty's southpaw working, and Larry French able to play ball on the field rather than listen in from a hospital cot, Ens thinks the Pirates should have no trouble in getting on top of the heap. With Brame, Spencer and Swetonic as a now seasoned relief squad, he's sure of it.

Stoner Among New Mound Talent.

Even at that, the Pirates have carefully gathered some minor league talent in Leon Chagnon and "Lil" Stoner, former Detroit rookie, both right handers; Andy Bendar, an untried right winger, and Ralph Erickson and Martie Lang, Omaha recruit, to bolster the southpaw staff.

Like Hemsley, Bartell may have to battle for his position at short. Charles Engle, former Memphis Southern Association brilliant, once tried out by the Athletics, has been snared, and his heavy-hitting and smart base running already are being counted as Pirate assets. Stuart Clarke, Ben Sankey and Floyd Young fill the infield roster.

Of the nine outfielders, the Waners are "sure things," while Comorosky approaches that classification through plans to hold Ira Flagstead for emergency duties. Fred Brickell, a left-handed batter, seems doomed to relief roles, too, though perhaps not to such a degree as the inevitable rookies, James Mosole, Mel Ingram, Larmon Cox and John Stoneham, the last two likely to join the back-to-the-farm movement for more seasoning.

Pro Court Franchise Forfeited by Syracuse

New York, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The franchise of the Syracuse Club of the American Professional Basket Ball League, was declared forfeited tonight. The announcement of forfeiture was made by John J. O'Brien, president of the league. The action was taken, it was announced, at the request of Syracuse promoters, who have been unable to obtain the players necessary to make the club a contender for the second half championship race, which will begin late next week.

All of Syracuse's remaining first half games will be declared forfeited to the clubs with which they were scheduled. Brooklyn, now tied with Cleveland for the lead, thus achieves two victories without the necessity of playing for them.

All of Syracuse's players were declared free agents eligible to negotiate for new contracts when the second half campaign opens January 17.

The league action marked the second franchise forfeiture within recent weeks. The franchise of the New York Celtics previously had been declared forfeited.

Mrs. Walker Charges Champion In Suit as Drunk, Cruel, Abusive

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Edward Patrick Walker, best known as Mickey Walker, world middleweight boxing champion, was accused of being drunk, cruel and abusive in a suit for divorce filed in Chancery Court today by Margaret Kelly Walker.

Mrs. Walker asked for an absolute decree in divorce, alimony and custody of Michael Walker, 5, and an expected child. The papers alleged Walker earned $200,000 a year.

Among the allegations were that the boxer tore a door from an icebox in a drunken frenzy, he threw the dinner meat at the chauffeur and then fed it to the dog. Also that he took a "lavish" trip to Paris that cost $60,000, and did not ask her to accompany him on the tour.

Mrs. Walker charged the fighter threatened to shoot her once one night he had her stay at their home in Rumson, while he "wined and dined other women." At frequent intervals during the night, the petition said, he telephoned his wife to make sure she was obeying his orders, the papers alleged.

Scholastic Court Season Opens Today With Twin Bill

Central - Eastern in First Game; Tech Plays Business.

CHAMPIONSHIP aspirations of four high schools will be pitted against each other for the first time this year this afternoon, when the basket ball teams of the respective schools clash in two games at the Tech High gymnasium to open the 1930 interhigh court series.

Central and Eastern will officially open the campaign promptly at 3:30 p. m., while the championship Tech five will engage a formidable Business quintet immediately after the close of the inaugural game. By virtue of the brilliant showing of the Central team in its last few games, every one of the contestants of the afternoon may be listed as a highly prospective contender for the 1930 title.

Records of the past few weeks indicating the seeming equality of the teams will be of little value this afternoon as the four open a "dog-eat-dog" battle for the coveted championship. An "upset" is an impossibility therefore, as the victory or defeat of any one team can occasion no surprise.

Two-team System Planned By Eastern.

A different method of seeking the crown than that of any of the other schools will be employed by the Eastern quintet, if plans of its coach, "Chief" Guyon, are followed. Guyon plans to alternate two complete teams throughout the game today, and if successful, may adopt the scheme for the entire series. A pair of quintets equally proficient in Guyon's style of play, makes this scheme feasible.

Accordingly a "pony" team of Fineran and Kessler, forwards; Zola and Wells, guards, and Lieb, center, will take the floor at the opening whistle for Eastern to perform throughout the first quarter. At the end of that period Guyon will withdraw his lightweights and insert what is generally known as the regular team, consisting of Capt. Ryan and Kane, forwards; Robey and Shirley, guards, and Noonan, center. If past methods are strictly followed, each team will perform for but a period at a time, alternating throughout the game.

Central's starting aggregation will in all likelihood include Capt. Cross and Delisio, forwards; Parkins and Lampson, guards, and Rice, center. With one exception this is the combination that has performed most regularly for the Blue and White throughout the training season and the one that has brought victory over seemingly stronger foes in two instances. The Pennsylvania Freshmen and Emerson both fell before this quintet.

Business Boasts Best Team In Years.

By virtue of his recent fine showing Delisio has won himself a regular forward berth and will start with the Blue and White today.

One of the most formidable Business High teams in a long while will be after the scalps of Tech's champions in the nightcap, and the urge of a title is being strongly felt at the Ninth street school. When Capt. Newman and Lucas, forwards Loftus and Singman, guards, and Chase, center, Coach Lynn Woodworth has a well-rounded five which should go a long way in the series.

However, they will have to fight to subdue the remains of the 1929 champions, who, with two of the title holders still performing, must be counted as a strong threat to retain their crown.

A last-minute change in the Tech line-up excludes Mal Johns from the center position, which he held last year, in favor of Olverson, who has impressed Coach Artie Boyd with his ability.

Johnson's Loss May Not Be Felt.

Capt. MacCartee and Talburtt constitute the duo of the winning quintet and are being strongly supported by Wilson and Lassise, who are playing for the first time. The recent "flunking" of Everett Johnson, another 1929 regular, may not be as disastrous as first feared if the two newcomers play as they have been performing for the past few weeks.

The whole fate of the second game seems to hang upon the question as to whether Business can perform on the spacious floor at Tech as brilliantly as it has played in the cramped Ninth street gymnasium.

Captain One Of Regulars Ousted

Charged With Taking Money for Game at Cumberland.

By JACK ESPEY.

CHARGED with playing an unauthorized game and violating their amateur standing by receiving money, four senior members, including the captain of the American University Basket Ball Team, yesterday were declared ineligible and suspended from athletics for the balance of the season by the university faculty committee on athletics.

Those suspended are Capt. David Lichliter, of Salisbury, Pa.; Leon Schloss, of this city; Jack LaFavre, of Hollywood, Fla., and Leland Field, of Chippewa Falls, Wis.

The suspensions stripped the regular American varsity line-up of all but one player and virtually wiped out American's chances of victory in its game with George Washington, a traditional rival, next Friday night. George "Reds" Olsen, a forward, is the remaining member of the regular team. Capt. Lichliter was the center, LaFavre was a forward, and Schloss and Field were the guards.

Players Warned Againt Game.

According to Dr. William B. Holton, chairman of the committee, who made public the action, the four players participated, against the advice of the committee, in a basket ball game with the "Caseys" at Cumberland, Md., on the night of December 21, receiving therefrom some money, the amount of which was not disclosed. A fifth student, Herbert Elliott, who is not on the team, also played in the game, but no action was taken against him.

Evidence that the players participated in the game was received in the form of clippings from Cumberland newspapers which contained advance publicity and descriptions of the game, Dr. Holton declared. The charge of receiving money was based on information obtained by the committee subsequent to receipt of the clippings. The source of this information was not made public by the committee.

The players were advised prior to the date of the game that they should not perform, and this, while tantamount to an official order, was not taken seriously by two of them at the time, asserted Dr. Holton.

Team Referred to As "College Five."

The Cumberland newspaper stories made such references, said the committee chairman, as the "American University collegians," the "American University five," and "College Team."

The committee, in arriving at its decision, explained that "the action was taken to place athletics at American University on a sound basis and to make sure that all athletic contests shall be under the direct supervision of the faculty and the coach."

Reconstruction of the team was started by oCach Walter H. Young last night immediately upon announcement of the committee's action. Seven players, mostly inexperienced sophomores and freshmen, were on hand. Following a practice he selected a tentative varsity composed of the following: Olsen and Robert Fuchs, forwards; Oscar Sells, center, and Orville Targee and John Woods, guards. The first two named are sophomores and the others are freshmen. Ralph aHrkham and Warren Collison, juniors, are the only available reserves at this time. This squad will perform tomorrow night at Baltimore against Johns Hopkins.

All Prominent in College Sports.

All of the ineligible players have stood our prominently in American University athletics for three years. LaFavre last winter captained the basket ball team, while, starting in his freshman term, he has been a regular on both the football and basket ball teams. He plays full back in football. Schloss has been a basket ball regular throughout his course and last fall rendered fine work as a reserve end in football. Lichliter, after two years at Blue Ridge Col-

JOHNSON WILL STAND PAT ON TALENT FOR INFIELD

Nats Release Bolton and Gooch

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THAT Manager Walter Johnson plans to stand pat with the infield and catching material on hand is evident in view of the Nationals' action in sending Infielder Charley Gooch and Catcher Cliff Bolton to Joe Engel's Chattanooga Southern Association Team. Gooch was sold to the Lookouts outright, but strings were kept on Bolton, who if he hits as he did last season while with New Haven, may be recalled.

The departure of this pair leaves the Nats with but 30 players to take South next month, and it is almost a certainty that two of these, Outfielders Alvin Powell and "Buck" Freeman, recruited from sandlot ranks, will be sent elsewhere during the spring training season at Biloxi.

Washington is sure to carry seven infielders and three catchers, and sending away Gooch and Bolton reduces the number in these departments to the minimum figures. This means that Bluege, Cronin and Judge are sure of being infield regulars, with Boss hanging on as first base understudy, Hayes and Myer fighting matters out for the second base berth and the loser, along with Jimmy McLeod, being slated for utility work.

McLeod Benched by Little Rock.

McLeod cost the Nationals $15,000. He starred with the Little Rock Club and supposedly was left there for more seasoning. As soon as the deal was consummated, however, Little Rock benched him in the hope of developing another saleable piece of shortstop talent, which did not do McLeod any good. He probably would not have had much chance of beating out Cronin anyway, as Manager Johnson is mighty sweet on the "San Francisco Kid" and sees in him a coming star, but can earn himself a utility job by putting forth his best efforts.

With Bolton removed from the running, the same staff which functioned last season will do the receiving work—Muddy Ruel, Bennie Tate and Roy Spencer, with all signs pointing to this trio rating about even in standing. For years, Ruel has been the boss catcher, but he has slipped and the others have made headway within the past year and the backstopping duties likely will be quite evenly divided unless one outstrips the others suddenly.

Nat Owner Ready to Talk 1930 Salary Terms.

"It won't be long now" before President Clark Griffith will be handing out advice to the fans that this or that member of the Washington Baseball Club has signed his contract for the coming season. Indications are, however, that the intervals between the announcements will be longer than usual, for the Nat owner admits that he will prove to be a hard man to deal with in this respect and that, offhand, he can not think of the name of a single player whose 1929 work entitles him to a raise, while his memory is most clear when he thinks of those who did not earn the money paid them last season.

When asked yesterday if he had started signing up his players, he replied in the negative, but added that he had been in correspondence with some of his players. This means that he is merely breaking the ground for the arguments which are bound to follow when he finally gets ready to use the spurs and to tell his hired help either to "pump, or let go of the handle!"

Few Increases Are Expected.

Griffith makes no bones of the fact that few, if any, of his Nationals will be given increases in salary, while he is just as determined that many of them will have to accept decreases, "or else." The Nat owner has been long enough in the game to know that one of the hardest things in the world is to force a salary reduction upon a ball player. He has doped out what he considers a fair plan, however, in the form of agreeing with what his players promise to do during the coming season, and then telling them that, if they live up to these promises, they will get the amount he plans to subtract from them in the form of a bonus.

One player sure to have to accept a big salary cut is Outfielder Leon "Goose" Goslin. As his home is in Salem, N. J., not far from here, the Nat owner has asked him to come to Washington for a conference, believing that he can better argue out the question face to face than through the mails.

Basic Salary and Bonus System Planned.

"Understand," said Griffith, "I don't want to treat my players unfairly, and Goslin, or any of the others who must take a cut will be paid in accordance with their showing next season. They will be offered a fair basic salary and a bonus proposition. This will assure them of being paid for value received and will not make the Washington Club do all of the chance-taking, which has been the case in the past."

CRESCENTS WIN, 29-25.

Crescent A. C. skidded to a 29-to-25 win over the Pullman A. C. last night on an extremely slippery floor of the Terminal Y. M. C. A. gym. Despite a second-half rally by Pullman which outscored the eventual winners, 19-to-12, the Crescents were never headed. Tripp ran wild with eight baskets during the rally for the losers.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THISTLE ARIOUS, $31.00, $16.90, $11.50; TEMPTER, $4.60, $4.20; FLAPDOODLE, $10.10.

THISTLE ARIOUS broke slow, worked way up and, coming through on inside, closed fast and won going away. TEMPTER closed a big gap, but was in close quarters at the end. FLAPDOODLE had good speed and held on gamely. YARGEE was well up, but was carried out on turn when FLAPDOODLE bore out. GRANDMA G. quit badly at the end.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY HERT L. COLLYER

GETTIN' hot. Your old Uncle Bertram has been setting a likely pace within the past few days down at New Orleans, having slipped you Sauce, $13.70, and another one Friday and three, including Garnish, $18.60, and Spanish Aster, $7.20, Saturday, and now for some more of the good things. As a matter of fact, a flat $10 play on every race at the Fair Grounds during the first four days of the meeting would have netted a player $186.50.

For this aft, down at N'Awlans, the good thing is UNCOMMON GOLD, which is to sport silks in the fourth feature. Rigged the same way, this trick beat this same field last out and it looks like one of those gilt edged good things. The much improved MOLE HILL for what is left.

Boy Walker, who says he has been getting up at the break of day lately, is high on KADIAK to grab the fifth from one or two that appear to have a bit more class. Will be a price, Wily Walter warbles, and say, mister, it won't even be close. An' dat's dat.

Down at Oriental Park, where I pulled Cloud Idolizer out of the brine, at 6 to 1, for you Saturday and made the comment about as strong as I knew how, the chief of staff slips me LUCKY SWEEP, shipped over to the island plant from Jeff Park—for a killing, as the ole wopsy tiger. Has had a conditioner down at the Spig layout, and the first race looks like the spot they have been looking for.

OLEMAN SUNSHINE is the hot one in the fourth, and the FIELD ENTRY seems nothing short of a cinch in the second.

TONTO ROCK, a snappy 3-year-old, should grab all the frijoles in the piece de resistence at Agua Caliente this aft. To be sure there is the good RED BRIAR and HATRICK, but TONTO ROCK, off his last effort, is entitled to a 6-point call, at least.

One of the safest propositions of the day, however, is SEMINOLA, in the first out at the Coast track. Hock the new spring benny, the trackman says, and I slip it to you, gratis.

SPORT OWES ROMERO ONE VICTORY

Pegler Suggests Bout as Shires' Farewell to Pugilism.

heavyweights in regular practice and mere adventurers like Mr. Shires and George Trafton. Romero has had about ten years of experience and while his sort of experience can be and, in his case undoubtedly has been carried to excess, a fellow with ten years of service in the ring will have learned certain routine tricks that Shires, after three fights, probably knows nothing about, just as a newspaper poet learns to think and almost to talk in meters and rhymes which would set a novice to counting feet on his fingers and fumbling in the rhyming dictionary.

Pugilism Owes Romero One Victory.

If Romero should knock out Mr. Shires or make him sit down in acute fatigue it would be a great thing for Romero, both chaps would make some money, and Shires himself would only be confirmed in a belief which must have dawned upon him with something of a noonday glare already, namely that he is no prize fighter. It is a moral duty of the pugilistic profession to get Romero somebody that he can lick before he leaves the ring and the match which I have suggested would give Shires a chance to leave them laughing as he says good-by.

The various boxing commissioners have been much upset about certain sinister rumors and the charges of Folding Dan Daley and one Battling Criss, of Detroit, Mr. Daley alleging that he was intimidated by unscrupulous characters in Chicago and Mr. Criss reporting that he was offered a sum of money to subside for Shires, which he virtuously refused to do. Mr. Shires has been blacklisted in 32 States on suspicion of having poisoned the bulwarks of clean sport or words to that effect.

Whirlwinds, Spartans, Meridians Win Games

Walter's Whirlwinds, Meridians, and the Spartans were returned the winners in the court play of the Boys' Club League last night at the club gym. The most sweeping triumph was scored by the Spartans, who defeated the Nye House Five, 34 to 9.

Shapiro's 12 points aided the Whirlwinds to their 44-to-25 win over the Boys' Club Optimists, and Scaffido's 14 markers were instrumental in the Meridian 36-to-10 victory over the Samosets.

3 Non-Series Games For School Tossers

Although not playing in the opening games of the interhigh league today, Western High School's tossers will not be idle, as they are listed to meet the Georgetown University Freshmen this evening in a preliminary to the Georgetown varsity-Wake Forest game at the Tech High gym. It will be Western's last start before making its debut in the series against Eastern on Friday.

In addition to the high school five, two prep schools will meet in another game, Woodward hooking up with Landon in the Epiphany Church gym this afternoon. The Woodward Juniors also will see action, meeting the Rockville High School at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

GEORGETOWN FIVE HOST TO WAKE FOREST TONIGHT

Hilltop Team Seeks 5th Victory

Contest Is First of 12 Games for D. C. Colleges This Week.

Catholic and American Have Battles for Tomorrow.

TONIGHT.

Catholic vs. Mount St. Mary's, at Brookland.
American vs. Johns Hopkins, at Baltimore.
THURSDAY.
Maryland vs. Duke, at College Park.
FRIDAY.
George Washington vs. American, at George Washington.
Catholic vs. Villanova, at Brookland.
Gallaudet vs. Blue Ridge, at Kendall Green.
Georgetown vs. West Virginia, at Morgantown, W. Va.
SATURDAY.
Catholic vs. Maryland, at College Park.
George Washington vs. Villanova, at George Washington.
Gallaudet vs. Baltimore University, at Baltimore (afternoon).
Georgetown vs. Pittsburgh University, at Pittsburgh.

THE first of twelve contests for Capital college quintets this week will be played tonight when Georgetown meets the five representing Wake Forest (N. C.) College at Tech High School, starting at 8:30 o'clock. In a preliminary game the Hilltop freshmen will play Western High's team, commencing at 7:15.

Georgetown's tossers returned to the Hilltop yesterday for a workout, a day ahead of the reopening of classes following the Christmas vacation. After two hours of passing topped off by a short session of shooting, Coach Dudack said his charges were in satisfactory condition and ready to travel in high gear against the North Carolinians.

The usual starting line-up will take the floor for the Blue and Gray; namely, Walter Morris and Bill Shea, forwards; Don Dutton, center, and Capt. Maurice McCarthy and Freddy Mesmer, guards. The personnel of Wake Forest is not known, nor is anything about the visiting team's past record. Coach Dudack, however, has warned the Hilltoppers to be prepared to encounter hard opposition.

Georgetown Seeks Fifth Victory.

Georgetown will be seeking its fifth victory tonight, meanwhile trying to regain the excellent brand of team work that marked its playing up until the last game of its recent Northern tour. The Hoyas worked like a well-oiled machine against Brooklyn Knights of Columbus, Manhattan, Crescent A. C., and New York University, but against Yale in the final game of the Yale tournament fell below par and took a 26-23 defeat.

Later in the week Georgetown will oppose two of the strongest teams on its schedule. On Friday night West Virginia University will be met at Morgantown W. Va., and the next night the opponent will be Pittsburgh University in the Smoky City. Pittsburgh has won seven straight games and lost none to date this season.

One or more contests are on the local college program every night this week, starting tonight. Tomorrow Fred Rice's revamped Catholic University Five will play host to Mount St. Mary's at Brookland in the first of the three engagements for the Cardinals.

Mt. St. Mary's Has Strong Five.

The Saints are rated powerful and probably will give Rice's charges a lot of trouble. This is the only local game for tomorrow, but over in Baltimore American University will stack up with Johns Hopkins in the Eagles' first post-holiday contests.

On Thursday night one of the most attractive games of the entire week's program will be staged in Ritchie Gymnasium, College Park, where the Maryland University Quintet will try conclusions with the formidable Duke University Team from Durham, N. C.

The invading Southerners number five former Washington High School players. They are Harry Councilor, forward; Joe Croson, center, and Bill Werber, guard, all of whom are regulars, and Don Garber and Bob Brist, forwards, who serve as substitutes.

Three games will be played here Friday night, with George Washington and American clashing in the feature on the Colonials' floor. Catholic will meet Villanova at Brookland and Gallaudet will take on Blue Ridge at Kendall Green in the others.

Maryland Meets Catholic U.

On Saturday, Maryland and Catholic will collide at College Park in the game marking resumption of athletic relations between the two institutions after a lapse of five years. Interest is steadily mounting in this fray, and it is expected that Ritchie gymnasium will be crowded to the doors with students and plain fans eager to watch the renewal of an old sports rivalry.

Gallaudet's hardest assignment of the season thus far will come on Saturday, too, but the Blues will go to Baltimore to try their luck. They will play Baltimore University, which fully extended Fordham last Saturday night in New York City before dropping a 28-21 decision.

Penn Crew, Track Candidates Report

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—Candidates for the crew and track teams at the University of Pennsylvania started their indoor campaign today when the former reported to Lawson Robertson and the latter to Rusty Callow.

The trackmen will do their training on the board track on Franklin Field, while the oarsmen will work on the machines in the rowing room under the north stand of Franklin Field.

Both squads have a large number of veterans. The crew has every member of the Poughkeepsie crew of last year, a number of junior varsity oarsmen and a half-dozen promising freshmen as its nucleus.

Lawson Robertson has practically the entire varsity squad of last year that led all Eastern teams in the outdoor championships and such promising freshmen distance stars as McKniff, Coan and Dean.

HARD WEEK FOR DUKE TOSSERS

Virginia, Maryland, Navy to Be Met on Successive Nights.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 6.—Opening with Virginia at Charlottesville Wednesday night, the Duke Blue Devil Cage Team will play Maryland on Thursday and Navy on Friday before returning home for their first appearance against college competition on the local floor.

The Blue Devils had marked success in their preseason games with Y teams, but they had no real opposition. Virginia and Maryland are boasting two of the strongest teams in the Southern Conference, and the Duke men are to meet them on successive nights.

Bill Werber, all-Southern guard last season, has recovered from an injured foot that kept him out of Duke's final Y game. His return to the team for the first games of real importance will aid materially. The remainder of the team, all veterans, are in good shape.

Plenty of Reserve Talent Available.

Coach Eddie Cameron is well equipped with reserves this year. John Shaw, who replaced Werber in the game here with Greensboro, gave a great performance at that position, and Carter, Garber, Warwick and Ormsby showed well when they were substituted.

Joe Croson, 6 feet 4 and center, bids fair to repeat his scoring record of last year. During the 1929 season he averaged over 12 points per game, amassing a total of 173 points for the schedule. In the first two Y. M. C. A. games this year he tallied 68 points.

Championship of Champs Event Schedule Changed

Large Entry List for Golf Classic Causes Shift; Medal Play Listed Jan. 15, With Two Match Rounds Jan. 16.

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 6.—The large and formidable list of entries already received for the third annual national championship of golf club champions, to be contested on St. Augustine links here beginning January 15, has caused a complete revision of the schedule of play in this tournament for the Walter J. Travis Memorial Trophy. The championship committee has announced plans which call for a qualifying round of 36 holes on January 15, with 32 to qualify for the titular division. On Thursday, January 16, there will be two eighteen-hole matches, which will reduce the field to eight by that evening. The remaining matches will be at 36 holes.

This is practically a duplicate of the schedule used in the national amateur championship. The sole exception is in the qualifying round, the national event having a 36-hole test which carries over two full days.

More Entries Received Every Day.

Each passing day brings in more entries for this new classic of winter amateur golf events. Some of the competitors in the national championship of club champions are stars of considerable magnitude. The majority are low handicap men, presaging play on a far higher plane than was customary in the early days of the national amateur.

The coming championship will be the third edition of the event to be played on St. Augustine links. Thus far the winners have been youths. The first was George Wingate, of Jacksonville. The second was Carl Dann, jr., of Rollins College. Each gained a year's possession of the handsome Travis Trophy, the anonymously donated, tall, valuable cup which becomes the permanent property of that club, whose representatives win the tournament three times, not necessarily in succession.

Many of National Prominence Will Compete.

Thus far many amateurs of national prominence have sent in entry forms. Among them are Eddie Stimpson, former Harvard University Golf Team captain and runner-up for the New England amateur championship; Harold Weber, of Inverness, five times Ohio State title holder; "Val" Bermingham, of Wykagyl, seventeen times winner of the championship at the New Rochelle Club; Wingate and Dann, both former winners of the championship of champions; Howard Tryon, of Elmira, N. Y., and forty-odd other title holders.

New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Michigan and Rhode Island are among the States represented by those already entered.

Johnny Farrell, 1928 national open champion and runner-up for the Professional Golfer's Association championship several weeks ago, is the winter professional at St. Augustine links. He will again supervise the details of play in the national championship of golf club champions.

West Virginia Preparing For Georgetown Quintet

Hoyas Make First Visit in History to Mountaineers for Game Friday; Hilltoppers, Beaten Last Season, Seeking Revenge.

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 6 Having been thoroughly tested in their two opening games with the University of Nebraska and Carnegie Tech during the past week, the West Virginia University Mountaineer courtmen will start "pointing" for the game with the Georgetown University outfit here next Friday night.

While the West Virginia passers are making ready for the coming of the Hoyas, Coach Steve Harrick will be priming the Mountaineer grapplers for their initial start of the season against the Waynesburg College Yellow Jackets here on Saturday night.

First G. U. Team to Visit Mountaineers.

When the crack Georgetown Team puts in its appearance here Friday, it will mark the first time that West Virginia has been host to a team from the "Hilltop." Athletic relationship in basket ball between the Mountaineers and the Hoyas has been meager. Last season West Virginia's floor representatives stopped off in Washington, D. C., on the return from a road trip in the East and defeated Georgetown.

Friday night's game will be the third in the history of basket ball at the two institutions, and when the opening whistle blasts the 1-all deadlock which now exists will be broken. The Mountaineers and Hilltoppers will clash a second time during the present campaign when West Virginia makes its invasion of the East in February. This second game is carded for Washington, D. C., February 3.

West Va. Mat Squad Weakened By Graduations.

Waynesburg and West Virginia had two previous meetings on the mat, and the Mountaineers were victorious in both instances. Last year wrestling relations between the neighboring college and the university were resumed after a layoff, the varsity teams of the two institutions having met as well as the West Virginia freshmen and the Waynesburg reserves.

Coach Herrick is registering concern over the impending meeting, inasmuch as his squad has been depleted in a number of divisions by graduation, while the Yell

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HOW TO JUDGE AGE.

THERE are various methods of measuring age in the progress of individuals from the cradle to the ballot box. The customary method is by counting birthdays. That happens to be the legal method as well. However, it is far from being satisfactory. Even physical growth does not proceed at the same speed with all people. The same statement applies in even greater measure with mental growth. In judging a child it is well to know not only his chronological age but his physical age, his emotional age and his social age. These do not always run parallel and the decision how a parent is to meet a certain problem may depend on any one of the several enumerated ages. Recognizing the shortcomings of chronological age as a standard, a Boston physician proposed that physical age in children be judged by X-rays of the bones, particularly those of the lower arm. Some persons can judge the age of older children in a fashion by the size of the feet or of the nose, or of certain organs.

The mental age is determined by intelligence tests. In recent years students of children and their problem have had much to say about the importance of judging children by their mental age more than by their size or the number of birthdays they have had.

And now we are reading of emotional age as determined by certain behavior standards and of social age as shown in play. An experienced teacher can judge the age of children by the games they play and the things they collect. Certain games are normal when played at certain ages and abnormal at others. They point to normality or abnormality of the child socially, emotionally, mentally or physically. Collecting follows certain patterns. This urge is rooted deep in human psychology.

In a very excellent recent book on the psychology of the adolescent, written by Dr. Leta S. Hollingsworth, there are excellent chapters on "Finding the Self and the Meaning of Maturity." In these chapters the growth pattern of the emotions and of social attributes is traced through the years of adolescence. The emotions begin very early in life, some of them at the very beginning, but the beginning of social qualities is delayed. According to Dr. Hollingsworth, the emotional and social age can be guessed at by a study of their religious reactions, their selection of movies, their hero worship, their doubts, fears, philosophies and their day dreams. The emotional and social age of the boy and girl can be guessed by the diaries they keep, the books they read, the companions they cultivate, their play, the way they occupy their leisure, as well as the reports on deportment which come home on the school card.

Some day we will have standards of emotional and social age measurement which will be approximately as good as the intelligence tests, growth and health tests and chronologic age tests which we now make use of, some more, some less.

ARLINGTON LAWYERS OPPOSE "BAR ACT"

ZONE BODY WILL MEET

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington County Bar Association meeting yesterday in the Boulevard Bakery at Clarendon went on record as opposed to the proposed legislation known as "The Bar Act."

The bill provides for the organization as an agency of the State bar, and for its regulation, powers and government, including the admission of lawyers to practice and their discipline and disbarment.

As pointed out by Charles Pickett, of Fairfax, who spoke in favor of the measure, the bill is for the purpose of creating a council with five of its members to be appointed from each judicial circuit with full power to act in all measures.

It was further pointed out should this legislation be enacted and a member of the profession be disbarred his only relief would be the State Supreme Court.

"To me the whole purpose of this bill is to make the bar a self-governing body one who shall say who shall practice in the State," Mr. Pickett said.

Says Similar Law in Six States.

He further stated that such legislation was now in force in six States and was said to be operating satisfactory.

In the State of Florida its constitutionality was attacked but was upheld by the State Supreme Court, he stated.

Christopher B. Garnett, of Fairfax, who is opposed to such legislation declared, "I was strongly opposed to it when brought up in 1927 and to this day have not changed my mind.

"I am opposed to any such act that would permit a council as provided by the Bar Act to sit on such measures as being 'Star Chamber methods.' Such action which might result in the disbarment of a member of the profession would leave him without any relief except from the State Supreme Court," he said.

"Such methods will never raise the standards of our profession," declared Mr. Garnett.

"Whenever a member of this profession does something which is considered against the ethics of the profession he should be heard before the court in which the act is committed and not by a council. It is in my opinion taking from the judges the power they possess," he said.

Says "Backbone" Is Needed.

"The great trouble, as I see it, is that we have some members who hear of what they consider acts unbecoming a member of the profession but have not the backbone to come out in open court and speak of such cases but want them heard behind closed doors? I am opposed to such methods.

"I could speak here all afternoon and show beyond all doubt that such legislation would be unconstitutional.

"Don't take away from the judge the power to act in a case of when a lawyer before his court commits an act considered unbecoming that of a member of the bar," Mr. Garnett concluded.

Replying to Mr. Garnett, Mr. Pickett claimed there was no provision for the holding of star chamber proceedings.

In accordance with the adoption of the constitutional amendments increasing the membership of the Supreme Court of Appeals from five to seven members, the association adopted resolutions offered by President Charles T. Jesse indorsing the name of Joseph W. Chinn, now judge of the Twelfth Judicial Circuit, and George Browning, of Orange, Va., as eminently fit to fill the newly created vacancies.

The action of the association will be submitted to State Senator Frank L. Ball and Delegate Hugh Reid, who will both attend the opening session of the legislature when it convenes tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon at Richmond.

The report as given out last night from the county clerk's office shows that during the month of December there were a total of 336 deeds recorded with a State tax of $1,077.90 collected. Wills and administrations recorded were ten with a State tax of $95.10. Chancery suits, twelve, State tax amounting to $18. Actions at law, sixteen, with a tax of $26. Fines collected during the month in prohibition cases totaled $323.75, with the costs amounting to $317.50. Fines collected in cases other than prohibition amounted to $60.25 with the costs totaling $65.25. Delinquent land taxes collected going to the State treasury amounted to $98.84, while the amount collected which goes to the county totaled $1,012.11.

It was learned last night that the secretary of the Arlington County Zoning Commission has requested the members of the County Board of Supervisors to meet with the commission Friday afternoon at the county courthouse, at which time the approved draft of the zoning ordinance will be presented to them.

According to Edward Duncan, chairman of the board, it is possible that it will be some time before final action looking to the adoption of the ordinance as drafted and approved by the commission is taken by the supervisors.

The executive committee of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alice Semmes, instead of at the home of Mrs. Amos C. Crounse, as previously announced.

The organization, having for many months made a careful study of jail conditions and convinced of the need of a new jail in the county, will make this subject the principal topic of discussion at the meeting Thursday.

The report of the special committee, of which Mrs. Crandal Mackey was chairman, having been adopted and having received the support of the sheriff the committee will lay plans to have the matter brought to the attention of the county board of supervisors with the view of having an appropriation made and included in this year's budget for the erection of a new jail.

While the organization recognizes that the county board of supervisors face a difficult task in rearranging the finances of the county as the result of the annexation by Alexandria of a large portion of Jefferson district, it feels the safety of the general public is at stake and a new jail should be erected even at the expense of many other projects.

With his pockets filled with deeds for rights of way for the Lee boulevard, Dr. Samuel M. Johnson, president of the National Boulevard Association, yesterday stated that he has received a letter from H. G. Shirley, chairman of the State Highway Commission, to the effect that the sum of $100,000 has been allocated for the beginning of work on the Lee boulevard.

"For more than four years work has been going on in an effort to start the construction of the Lee boulevard, which is a national project, and the $100,000 allocated by the State is but the beginning," said Dr. Johnson.

The plans call for a 40-foot pavement from the new Memorial Bridge to the west side of Fort Myer, with the elimination of all grade crossings. From that point to Fort Buffalo there will be a 30-foot pavement, which will be widened as traffic requires.

The construction plans are rapidly nearing completion, and it is expected that the work of grading and construction of needed culverts will be under way by spring and the laying of pavement completed with the opening of the Memorial Bridge in 1931.

The board of directors of the Arlington Investment Corporation will hold its January meeting this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the offices of the corporation located at 103 Washington avenue, Clarendon.

Plans for the activities of the Arlington County Monarch Club were discussed at a meeting of the executive committee held last night at the Boulevard Bakery, at Clarendon, with President A. B. Honts presiding.

Charged with reckless driving, both D. W. Salvey and C. W. Simms forfeited the sum of $15 in police court yesterday.

The Lyon Park Citizens Association at its meeting last night ratified the newly adopted constitution of the Lyon Park Community Center. According to its provisions the following four members were elected to the board of governors of the Center: Arthur Orr, A. A. Moore, J. W. Wiseman, and G. Kephart. Thomas P. Gary was named alternate.

According to the reorganization of the Community Center and the adoption of its new constitution, it is provided that the three bodies, the Citizens Association, the Garden Club and the Community Center shall each elect four members to the board of governors.

The back to the District Association will hold its monthly meeting tonight at its headquarters in the Rucker Building, in Clarendon.

At this meeting reports will be received from the various committees, including the membership committee, of which Richard L. Eacho is chairman, and the special committee appointed by President Frank T. Stone, to take action looking to the reestablishment of the original District lines, or the return of Arlington County and such adjacent territory as may wish to be included, to the District of Columbia, of which J. Cloyd Byars is the chairman.

It is understood that the meeting will consider also the widely published views of Frank Lyon, proposing to wipe out Rosslyn and thereby remove an obstruction that stands between Washington and Virginia.

$60 House Robbery Reported.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

AS I told Luella when she first broached the subject, "You really can't do these things and get away with 'em! That is, you can not go as guest to somebody's party and then——"

Luella looked me in the eye.

There was no pacifying her.

"It isn't that, Luella, it's the principle of the thing!"

"That's just it. The law's the law."

"You mean, then, you are actually going before the grand jury and tell them you sat between Mrs. —— and Mrs. —— and both had flasks on their hips?"

* * * *

AGAIN she leveled me with a look.

"Well, where did they have 'em—the flasks, I mean?"

"I'll have you understand women don't carry flasks on their hips——"

"No? Where do they——? Pardon me. That slipped."

Again that look.

"Who's going to make this report? Are you? Or am I?" she asked.

For the sake of argument I presumed that she was going to lay her cards on table, so to speak; but I warned her of ostracism.

"Oh, won't I?" she laughed. "Wait and see."

* * * *

HERE was a form of hysteria Usually, Luella is pretty levelheaded. She must have been upset by all these stories of the grand jury investigating this, that and the other thing, of the Senate having a fling at the tariff, of women jumping out of airplanes. They went to her head.

"You can't prove I was going before the grand jury and confess you were out on a booze party?" I asked, hoping it would steady her, bring back her senses.

"They'll know they're serving on a grand jury," she answered, "when I arrive. Up to now they haven't heard anything."

* * * *

WURRA, wurra, wurra! What kind of a country is this, anyway? It occurred to me that something terrible must have happened the night I stayed home and looked after the house.

"Did they flash a drink on you?" I asked.

"When I think of the drinks they flashed on me," she murmured, "it makes me wish you were along. They were swimming in drinks."

"Not here in Washington?"

"Yes, here in Washington."

"Not in the Nation's Capital?"

"Yes, in the Nation's Capital."

"Luella, you must be mistaken! If you had said Baltimore, now, or Atlantic City, or even New York, I'd believe you—and even my friends would believe you; but not the Nation's Capital. Why you'll even have ——"

"I'll even have what?"

This is what did the trick. So there'll be no scandal from Luella's lips. It was, though, a close shave.

$10,000 Lee Mansion Fund Given Approval

(Associated Press.)

An appropriation of $10,000 to insure completion of the furnishings for the Robert E. Lee mansion in Arlington National Cemetery, now being restored to the condition in which it existed prior to the Civil War, was approved yesterday by the House appropriations committee in the annual War Department appropriation bill.

Much of the furniture has been donated, and some funds remain from an earlier appropriation of $100,000 for restoration purposes, not yet, however, complete. The amount was requested by Col. W. R. Gibson, of the Quartermaster Corps, who said the restoration would be completed this year.

Trio Named as Having Counterfeit Plates

Joseph Harris, Roy Harris and Walter Harris, all of Capitol Heights, were indicted yesterday by the District of Columbia grand jury on charges of possessing copper plates and equipment for the counterfeiting of money.

The indictment is said to have followed an investigation by the police into an alleged liquor complaint made again a garage which the three men are said to have used as a workshop. Eleventh Precinct police who raided the garage are alleged to have found the three men with green ink on their hands. One of the men indicted is said to have been a visitor in the Bureau of Engraving on at least two occasions and to have been a student of books on copper-plate engraving.

Series of Holdups Laid to Soldiers

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 6.—Charged with a series of holdups and robberies on New Year's Eve, three soldiers of Camp George G. Meade have been lodged in the Anne Arundel County Jail here to await grand jury action. Sheriff Michael F. Carter and his deputies are hunting a fourth man, said to have been an accomplice.

The men under arrest are George M. Rupp, Charles E. Smith and Fred P. Richardson. One of the complainants against the men is John Krainer, who lives on the road leading from the camp to Laurel. Krainer reported to authorities that the men entered his home at 11:30 p. m., and flourishing a gun, took $35 from him. They also threatened to assault his wife, who had retired to her bedroom, Krainer told police officials. Later that night, the men are reported to have held up a man near the Laurel Race Track and relieved him of a bundle of clothing.

Early New Year's morning, four men, believed to be the same group, are reported to have entered the home of James Hill on the Camp Meade road, and made away with $300. This information was gathered by Police Justice Harry E. Melvin, of Linthicum Heights, who in turn reported it to Sheriff Carter. Three of the men, it is said, entered the house, and, brandishing arms, relieved Hill and a party of guests of all valuables. The fourth man, whose identity has not been obtained, is said to have put out of commission several automobiles parked outside of the house.

The three men in jail have been identified by Mr. and Mrs. Krainer.

UNABLE TO CARE FOR IT

Accused of abandoning her infant son, Mrs. Nellie Pearl Ernest, 19-year-old waitress, of Gaithersburg, Md., was arrested yesterday by Detective Sergt. John W. Wise, of the Detective Bureau, and Policewoman Mary C. Gainey. She was lodged in the House of Detention pending court action.

Located in a farmhouse on the outskirts of Rockville, Md., the young woman, an attractive blonde, readily admitted that the 6-week-old baby boy, found abandoned in an automobile at Thirteenth and V streets northwest on December 30, was her son.

The young woman, who said she has been estranged from her husband for more than two years, revealed to the detectives the identity of a youth, who she said was the father of her baby. She also admitted, the police said, that the youth accompanied her to this city when the baby was abandoned.

The infant was one of three found abandoned in the Capital within a month. All are at Children's Hospital. The infant that Mrs. Ernest is accused of abandoning is known at the hospital as "Robert V. Gordon."

Detective Wise and Policewoman Gainey have been at work on the case since the abandonment. The child was found in an automobile, neatly dressed, with a package of clothing, bedecked with Christmas seals, at his side.

An anonymous letter was recently received by the police, giving information that the mystery attending the infant's identity could be cleared by calling at a local address.

Unable to Care for Babe.

Going to the address, Detective Wise and Policewoman Gainey found it a vacant house, but inquiries in the neighborhood put the investigators on the trail of a young woman employe of a downtown department store.

Upon finding the woman, the investigators learned she was a sister of Mrs. Ernest and from her learned that Mrs. Ernest was staying at the Maryland farmhouse.

Mrs. Ernest, the investigators said, declared the child was born in Gaithersburg. Estranged from her husband and without funds to properly care for the child, the woman told her captors that she made a vain search for employment before abandoning her child.

Found by Colored Man.

Accompanied by the youth, Mrs. Ernest said she journeyed to this city early in the morning of December 30 and carefully placed the child in an automobile at Thirteenth and V streets northwest. The child was discovered by a colored man shortly after 7 o'clock the same morning and turned over to police.

The two other infants, who were abandoned within the month and who are being cared for at Children's Hospital, are known as Cecelia Jefferson, who was found abandoned December 8, and William Francis, who was found abandoned early Sunday in the rear of an apartment building on Eighteenth street northwest, near H street.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Thompson, 74 years old, widow of the late John H. Thompson, who had lived with her son, W. W. Thompson, at University Place, Md., for several years, died suddenly yesterday morning. Mrs. Thompson was born and reared in Washington, and lived here practically all her life. Her husband who died about eighteen years ago, was in the naval service and served at the navy yards for years.

The son, his wife and daughter are the only survivors in the immediate family.

Front Royal Jail Break Frustrated

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 6.—A jail delivery was prevented here about 1 o'clock last night when Browning Collins, son of Sheriff R. F. He investigated and called Sheriff Collins and another son, a deputy sheriff, who investigated further and found that two of seven prisoners were sawing out of the jail window.

This is the third attempted jail break in six months to be frustrated by jail officials here.

YOUNG WIVES FAIL IN SUICIDE EFFORTS

Two Nearby Virginia Women Thwarted in Attempts to End Lives.

RECOVERY OF BOTH SEEN

Two young women living in nearby Virginia were frustrated in reported attempts to end their lives yesterday by drowning. The women are Mrs. Lula Bryan, 26 years old, of 10 Clarendon avenue, Clarendon, Va., and Mrs. Jane Roberts, 16 years old, of Arlington Beach, Va.

Mrs. Bryan made the attempt upon her life, police reported, shortly before noon, when she leaped into the Potomac River at the foot of Wisconsin avenue northwest.

Allen Imich, of 4 Locust avenue, Takoma Park, Md., saw the woman's act and leaped into the chilly waters. After being brought to shore Mrs. Bryan was taken to Georgetown University Hospital, where police said she suffered only from the ducking. Police said the woman declined to make a statement at the hospital.

Mrs. Roberts, pretty girl-wife of an employe of the Washington Airport Corporation, police reported, swallowed poison and then attempted to drown herself in the Potomac River.

After taking a quantity of poison in her home, located just beyond the Highway bridge on the Virginia side, she then hurried across the road to the Blue Bird restaurant, where she announced her intention of "ending it all." Attempts to dissuade her proved vain and the girl rushed from the restaurant toward the river at Arlington Beach.

She was closely pursued by Mrs. Georgia Reganis, owner of the restaurant, who captured Mrs. Roberts before she had waded into deep water and forced her back to the restaurant. There, it was reported, she disclosed that she had taken the poison, a toothache medicine.

Mrs. Reganis and Nick Zaker, also of the restaurant, forced the young woman to take antidotes of eggs and milk until an Emergency Hospital ambulance arrived and took Mrs Roberts to the hospital. There her condition was pronounced not serious. Despondency over domestic difficulties were reported as the motive of her act.

Grandmother's Death Is Laid to Youth, 15

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 6.—Alleged to have confessed killing his 80-year-old grandmother, Mary Ellen Tyler, Leroy Tyler, 15, Negro, is being held in the county jail here pending further investigation by Sheriff Carter and Deputies.

The Tylers live at Deale in the southern section of the county. The woman died last November 26, apparently from a skull fracture, in falling from a sofa. A bloody mop, found on the shore not far distant, coupled with other circumstances, led authorities to reopen an investigation. The body was exhumed and a post morten examination performed by Dr. J. J. Murphy, county health officer, revealed evidences of a heavy blow. Quizzed by Sheriff Carter, the youthful Negro said he beat his grandparent with his fist and took a small amount of money from her. Police officials incline to the belief that some other instrument of death was used.

INDUSTRIAL BUREAU AGITATION REVIVED

$11,000 YEARLY NEEDED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

A meeting for the purpose of forming an industrial bureau of the chamber of commerce, the function of which would be to induce manufacturing establishments to locate in Alexandria, will be called by F. C. Goodnow, president of the chamber of commerce, some time this month.

The operation of this bureau, with a proper man at its head, including the services of a secretary and other necessary expenses, would cost, in the opinion of Mr. Goodnow, approximately $11,000 a year. He believes that the proposition can be put over if the merchants and manufacturers and others interested in the future growth of the city from an industrial standpoint, will give their full cooperation to the movement.

The new citizens of Alexandria, residents of the recently annexed territory, will be invited to attend the meeting and express their views, as will the citizens of Alexandria generally. The opinion prevails among many members of the chamber of commerce that this will be a move in the right direction, and that without it little can be done toward inducing industries to locate here.

At the annual meeting of the chamber of comerce last March, John A. Piquet, specialist in community and industrial development of the policyholders service bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., recommended the formation of an industrial bureau, with a $10,000 a year manager, to attract industries to Alexandria.

A resolution was presented by the board of directors at this time recommending the establishment of an industrial bureau and the employment of an industrial agent fully conversant with the work of dealing with manufacturing concerns that may be seeking new locations. No definite action has ever been taken to this end, however, this being the first step to be taken.

W. H. Johnston, game warden, recently confiscated 55 black bass, weighing approximately 110 pounds, alleged to have been caught in a fish net at Occoquan, and divided the catch between the Alexandria Hospital and the Alexandria Day Nursery and Children's Home. The man who is alleged to have made the catch is slated for a hearing shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. English, of 130 Summers drive, Mount Vernon Park, reported to the police that upon their return to their home Sunday night, after passing the week-end out of town, found their house had been entered and robbed of jewelry valued at $155, an overcoat valued at $10, a check for $20 payable to cash, and a bottle of prescription liquor. Entrance was made through a back window which had been left unlocked.

Robey, jr., secretary; John T. Hawkins, treasurer, and Robert H. Cox, teacher. These officers will be installed Sunday morning next by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the church.

William John Eynon, vice president of the Federal National Bank, of Washington, and president of the Master Printers Association of the District of Columbia, will be the speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club today at the George Mason Hotel. Blair McLeod is chairman of the entertainment committee and the meeting will be presided over by Dr. S. Nelson Gray, president.

A charter has been granted by the State corporation commission to the Mortgage and Finance Corporation, Alexandria, the purposes of which are to do a general mortgage and finance business. The maximum capital stock is $50,000 and the minimum is $10,000. Officers are: Robert G. Whitton, president; William M. Topping, vice president; E. Wallace Schreiner, vice president; Alice H. Whitton, secretary; C. Frederich Schreiner, treasurer. These officers constitute the board of directors. The charter was secured by Gardner L. Boothe, attorney.

With the reopening of the city schools, including the Mount Vernon and George Mason in Potomac, yesterday after the Christmas holiday, Superintendent R. C. Bowton stated that no new pupils will be enrolled until February 3, the beginning of the second semester. There is no change in the faculties of the Potomac schools, the only difference being they are now under the supervision of Superintendent Bowton.

New Market Hotel Razed by Flames

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 6.—The Shenvalee Club Hotel, at New Market, a fine example of Virginia colonial architecture and one of the newer Shenandoah Valley tourist resorts, was burned this morning with a loss estimated at $40,000. One-half the amount was covered by insurance. A defective flue, or defective wiring, is blamed for the blaze. The fire was confined to the second floor but owners of the resort regard the property as a total loss.

Six persons, including two children, were routed from their beds by the blaze, which had gained considerable headway when discovered. New Market firemen were aided in their task of conquering the blaze by one of the Harrisonburg companies. Three streams of water were poured upon the blazing mass for several hours.

A committee of stockholders, headed by John G. Miller, New Market newspaper editor, purchased the resort, which includes a nine-hole golf course and 200 acres of land, at a trustee's sale last June. They had sold the property to a Washington syndicate and the deed was to have been signed next Saturday.

Two automobiles were completely demolished and several persons badly injured as the result of a collision late Sunday night near the Bull Run Bridge on the Lee Highway. The accident occurred when the car of Eva White Ashton, 5014 Seventh place northwest in Washington, had stopped on the roadside to fix a tire. A car occupied by Edward Coleman, of 308 I street northwest, Washington; Robert W. White, Mabel Hughes and Louise Champ, all of Warrenton, Va., all colored, going toward Warrenton, started to pass the parked car when a car driven at a high rate of speed by William Harris, 1501 Ninth street northwest, Washington, and occupied by four other persons, attempted to pass between the two, and struck both cars.

The persons in the car driven by White were severely injured and cut by flying glass, the persons in the Harris car were so badly injured that they were rushed to Emergency Hospital in Washington by Dr. King, who arrived on the scene soon after the accident. Sheriff Kirby stated yesterday that Harris would be held on a charge of reckless driving, pending the outcome of the injuries to the other parties. There were no occupants in the Ashton car at the time of the accident, but the car was badly wrecked.

PRISON COMMISSION STRESSES REFORMS

Virginia System Is in Need of Many Improvements, Report Declares.

NEW PRISON LABOR LAW

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (A.P.).—Virginia prison system reforms to provide more complete segregation of criminals, their constant employment, new facilities for scientific observation of offenders and an industrial farm for women, are recommended in the report made public here tonight of the governor's commission on crime and prisons.

The commission, headed by Frank Bane, commissioner of public welfare of Virginia, was appointed by Gov. Harry F. Byrd in 1928 and instructed to prepare a careful study of the present State prison system and report with recommendations to the General Assembly session which convenes tomorrow.

General suggestions that the assembly consider the advisability of consolidating the management and control of the present State police forces, and that the trial justice plan be extended so as to speed up the handling of offenders, were made by the commission, although its detailed study was confined to penal institutions rather than to methods of commitment. It was explained that such a parallel investigation is being carried on by the research council of the University of Virginia, and that the Virginia Judicial Council is concerning itself with criminal procedure.

Bane Heads Commission.

A Nation-wide study of prison conditions revealed, the commission reported, a rapid growth of prison and jail populations within the last few years, from 73,000 on January 1, 1923, to approximately 100,000 today. In December, 1929, Virginia had a total penal population of nearly 6,000, including 2,627 convicts and 927 misdemeanants held in State institutions, the remainder being in local city and county jails.

A majority of all the State criminals are colored, the commission found. Of 683 convicts in the penitentiary, 282 were white and 401 colored, while the female convicts included 11 white women and 67 colored women.

Dry Enforcement Costly.

Criminal costs paid by the Commonwealth during the last eleven years have more than doubled, the report continued, reaching the sum of $908,210.63 in 1929. The enormous increase in the number of prohibition convictions was held responsible, having risen from 1,717 in 1918, to 17,127 in 1929.

In 1929 there were 191 more men received at the penitentiary than in 1928, and in 1928 the number increased by 267 over 1927.

The number of life-term prisoners increased from 108 in 1922 to 172 at the present time, while there was a corresponding increase in the number of long-term prisoners. About one-third of the convicts received at the penitentiary in Richmond in 1929 were 21 years of age or under, the report said, 99 of them being boys of approximately 19 years of age.

Prisons Are Crowded.

As a result of the increase in convictions, prison accommodations are crowded, the report continued, there being only 336 cells at the penitentiary to quarter more than 700 convicts. Quarters for women prisoners are "antiquated" and "entirely inadequate," it declared.

The local jail system has been somewhat improved in Virginia, the commission reported, pointing to the success of the experiment in operating a misdemeanant farm for men at the State Farm. An average of approximately 500 men are now serving their time at this institution, overcoming "the evils of idleness, poor care and food, unsanitary surroundings and denegerating environment."

The State will be faced with a new problem in its
